Forest Preserve denies land use for Mill-River link

by STEVE BROWN

Des Plaines will have to look somewhere else besides the Cook County Forest Preserve District for land to be used as a right-of-way for a connector road between Mill Street and River Road.

That was the news Mayor Herbert H. Behrel came away with Thursday after a meeting with Cook County Comr. Floyd Fuller.

"I am satisfied that the discussions are now over," Behrel said after meeting with Fuller. Behrel had hoped to obtain a portion of land, owned by the forest preserve district, which borders the end of both Mill Street and River Road, for a new street.

THE REFUSAL MARKS the second time the forest preserve district has balked at giving up land for street improvements in the central section of the city.

Last year, the district refused to grant an easement to allow the construction of an overpass to carry Thacker Street over the Des Plaines River.

Behrel said he had been told the forest preserve district had adopted policies prohibiting granting any easements after "bad experiences" in other areas in the past.

"They said he had to show that the use of the land would be of real value and a benefit to all of the people of the county, then maybe we could use the property," Behrel said. He added that he did not believe he could justify the acquisition under those circumstances.

The connector street is seen as an important key to plans for the construction of an overpass to take River Road over Miner Street and the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks. Original plans for the overpass would block Mill Street and residents along that street would need another access route.

Behrel noted that the decision by the forest preserve district will allow the city to look for other property in the area for the connector street.

Some city officials believe there is other property in the area which could be used.

Local residents have objected to the construction of the overpass in the past, stating it would force a decrease in their property values.

While the city got the bad news on the county land, Illinois Department of Highways officials have said they will give serious consideration to plans for an improvement project that could be an interim solution to some of the traffic congestion around the River Road and Miner Street intersection.

CITY ENG. Robert Bowen said Thursday that Illinois Department of Transportation officials have asked the city to prepare a detailed cost estimate for a plan which would involve an improved traffic signal system at the intersection and the routing of east-bound Miner Street traffic seeking to turn south on River Road along Pearson Street.

Some Des Plaines officials believe the proposal could reduce congestion enough to eliminate the need for an overpass.

Bowen said the state officials will review the cost estimate and then determine if funds would be available for the project. He said the city would probably have to share a portion of the cost for the improvements. No estimate was available.

Church youth group plans car wash

Area residents will get a chance during the weekend to get a break from an often burdensome chore and help a local youth group raise funds for a summer trip.

The youth group of the Trinity Lutheran Church, 675 Algonquin Rd., Des Plaines, will hold a car wash Saturday and Sunday.

The project is being staged to help the group raise funds for a summer retreat to the Michigan dunes in the near future.

The car wash will operate from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. on Saturday and 11 a.m. until 4 p.m. Sunday at the church parking lot.

Higgins, River

NIPC endorses program to widen, improve roads

A $1.6 million widening and improvement program for part of Higgins Road and for River Road from Devon Avenue south to Higgins Road in Rosemont has been endorsed by the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission.

The village of Rosemont and the Illinois Department of Transportation are requesting $1,144,220 from the federal government for the project. NIPC must review requests for federal funding in the Chicago area, and make recommendations.

The project includes widening the section of River Road by 10 feet, with four lanes for traffic. Also included are combination curbs and gutters, sidewalks, median channelization, storm sewers, pavement striping and upgrading of traffic control signals and street lighting.

Higgins Road, which has long been in poor condition, will be widened and repaved from Willow Creek east to River Road. Another section of River Road, from south of Williams Street to the Rosemont village limits, will also be widened.

The improvements are designed to reduce traffic congestion. River Road is designated an arterial roadway in the regional transportation interim plan and the 1995 arterial test network being evaluated by the Chicago Area Transportation Study.

LOVELY WEATHER might be the watchwords for this group of ducks which have taken up a residence in a pool at the DeSoto Chemical Co. offices on Mount Prospect Road in Des Plaines. Company officials said the mother had stayed at the pond a few years ago and has come home to roost.

Former teacher keeps busy

by LINDA PUNCH

Ruth Conard joined the East Maine Dist. 63 Volunteer Bureau six years ago as a retired business executive who "wasn't going to be put on the shelf."

"Like so many people, I was never going to retire," the 70-year-old grandmother said. "I went to the employment office and they referred me to the volunteer bureau."

Mrs. Conard began her stint with the bureau working one hour a day in Dist. 63 schools. Her involvement in the program gradually grew and she now serves as registrar — a job of locating and interviewing different types of volunteers.

A FORMER TEACHER, Mrs. Conard said the big "joy" of teaching was sitting down with children before classes to share "what's going on in your life." She sees the volunteer bureau as an extension of this philosophy.

The bureau is an enrichment program — we try to find people who can bring in what the teacher doesn't have time to," she said. "A person who's visited all parts of the world can bring in artifacts and experiences to make that country more real to the students."

Good volunteers are hard to find, according to Mrs. Conard, who spends her time tracking down experts on everything from beekeeping to Chinese cultures. Retired people — who often have the most experiences to share — are the hardest to get involved, she said.

"Many take the attitude that I've done my share." Others are timid and ill at ease with children. Unless you have the complete spirit, it loses value," she said.

OTHERS ARE willing to work with children but are unable to "keep in the range of the child," Mrs. Conard cited one man who has "an excellent program on Russia" but can't speak to students below fifth-grade level.

Burglar makes heist: garage-door opener

A burglar who broke in to break in was interrupted during his second approach to the Philip Saccamano residence, 2012 Kiowa Ln., Mount Prospect police said Thursday.

Police said a burglar entered the Saccamano garage through an unlocked window and took an automatic garage opener control from the family's car. The burglar then apparently left the garage, went across the street into some bushes and activated the opener.

However, when the garage door opened, the sound woke Mrs. Saccamano. The resulting noise apparently scared off the burglar as Saccamano told police he saw a youth, about 15 years old, in the area.

The incident occurred about 3:15 a.m. Thursday and the only thing reported stolen was the $35 garage opener, police said.

Burglaries becoming more common

by JOHN MAES

Burglars are becoming more and more at home in the suburbs and Des Plaines has been by no means immune to the ravages of such pilferage in its homes, garages, stores, businesses and autos.

Month after month, residents and merchants are reporting losses of thousands of dollars of goods, possessions and merchandise to burglars.

Eighteen burglaries, eight a result of forced entry to a building, have been reported to police for July alone. In June, 40 burglaries occurred in the city, with seven attempts. More than $19,200 in cash, clothing, jewels, tools, and drugs were stolen.

For the first three months of this year, burglaries increased 32 per cent from a 1972 total of 77 to 102 for all of 1973.

POLICE LT. LEE ALFANO said many burglaries these days are committed by younger persons with drug habits to support. "He can steal a color television, get the fast buck and turn it into one day's drug use."

"Many of them are users," he said. "They have a drug problem and a need for the money."

He mentioned as exceptions, however, auto burglars between the ages of 17 and 20 who usually dismantle tape decks from dashboards and put them in their own cars and professionals, who live off the spoils of their work.

Alfano said one reason burglars are attracted to Des Plaines is because of the city's large industrial and commercial

Volunteer Bureau enriching for all

by LINDA PUNCH

Ruth Conard joined the East Maine Dist. 63 Volunteer Bureau six years ago as a retired business executive who "wasn't going to be put on the shelf."

"Like so many people, I was never going to retire," the 70-year-old grandmother said. "I went to the employment office and they referred me to the volunteer bureau."

Mrs. Conard began her stint with the bureau working one hour a day in Dist. 63 schools. Her involvement in the program gradually grew and she now serves as registrar — a job of locating and interviewing different types of volunteers.

A FORMER TEACHER, Mrs. Conard said the big "joy" of teaching was sitting down with children before classes to share "what's going on in your life." She sees the volunteer bureau as an extension of this philosophy.

The bureau is an enrichment program — we try to find people who can bring in what the teacher doesn't have time to," she said. "A person who's visited all parts of the world can bring in artifacts and experiences to make that country more real to the students."

Good volunteers are hard to find, according to Mrs. Conard, who spends her time tracking down experts on everything from beekeeping to Chinese cultures. Retired people — who often have the most experiences to share — are the hardest to get involved, she said.

"Many take the attitude that I've done my share." Others are timid and ill at ease with children. Unless you have the complete spirit, it loses value," she said.

OTHERS ARE willing to work with children but are unable to "keep in the range of the child," Mrs. Conard cited one man who has "an excellent program on Russia" but can't speak to students below fifth-grade level.

Volunteers also encounter difficulties if they underestimate the knowledge of students.

"It just amazes me how much these youngsters know," Mrs. Conard said. "I once used the word archaeologist instead of anthropologist and a third-grader corrected me."

MRS. CONARD, who has an extensive collection of bells and stamps is a frequent visitor to the classroom. While some people might question the educational value of the collections she notes that every bell and stamp has a story.

"When I talk about bells I'm never at a loss for words," she said. "No matter what the students know, I know a little bit more."

The rewards of volunteer work are "intangible" — a letter from a 10-year-old boy, a phone call from a little girl.

"You can't measure these results — from the little things that happen, we know we're enriching their lives," she said. "If we can enrich their lives, that's what we're here for."

Indiana Dunes outing set for youngsters

Plans are being made for a day-long bus trip to the Indiana Dunes State Park for Des Plaines area youngsters.

The trip, which is slated for July 17, is part of the city's continuing youth activities commission program for area junior high school and high school students during the summer.

The cost of the trip will be $1 to defray the expense of chartering a bus.

Participants will depart at 9 a.m. from the Chicago and North Western Ry. station on Miner Street and return to the city about 5 p.m.

You can bet on it—race track clerk's life not easy

by KURT BAER

Lewis Spidalette stood at the betting window on the second floor grandstand at Arlington Park Race Track and talked about his job.

"Listen. This is our livelihood, our profession. At times it seems inhuman, and we have more broken homes than almost anybody. But nobody makes us do it. It's just our livelihood, our profession."

Spidalette works 12 hours a day, six days a week, as a mutual clerk at Chicago area race tracks. Like many of his co-workers who collect the money and hand betters the mutual tickets, he holds a job back of the betting windows at two different tracks each day.

Right now he spends his days at Arlington Park and his nights at Sportsman's Park in Cicero, some 50 miles away from his home in McHenry.

He knows that when he leaves his house at 11 a.m. each day he won't return until 1 a.m. the following morning.

THIS WEEK, mutual clerks protested delayed starting times on the nine-race program at Arlington Park.

On Tuesday, the last race was run at 6:12 p.m., more than a half hour later than usual.

Spidalette was due at Sportsman's Park that night at 6:45 p.m., 7 p.m. at the very latest. With a 6 p.m. post at Arlington, he can't make it.

"As long as the last race is off by 5:30, we can make it," says Joseph F. Nuccio, another ticket seller. "Sometimes it means gobbling your dinner, but the other way there's no dinner at all."

Ken Bell has spent the last 21 years working race track betting windows, both here and in New York. At age 65, he'll retire next year with a full pension.

"DRIVING BETWEEN tracks at 70

Accord reached on final time

Arlington Park Race Track officials and the Electrical Workers Union that represents the track's pari-mutuel clerks have agreed that the last weekday race will be run no later than 5:40 p.m.

The time of the last Saturday race reportedly still is being negotiated.

Wednesday, pari-mutuel clerks showed up more than an hour late for work at Arlington Park to protest a lengthening of the daily racing program. The action delayed the start of Wednesday's first race by about 10 minutes.

Mutuel clerks were unhappy about the later racing times because they said it made it impossible for them to report on time for a second job at Sportsman's Park.

Both union and race track officials Thursday declined comment on the dispute.

m.p.h., we take a chance on getting hurt, or now, with the 55-m.p.h. limit, getting a ticket," he says.

"We're not here to gamble. We're here to serve the public. And to do that we have to be able to get to our job on time," says Bell.

Pari-mutuel tickets sellers make a minimum union wage of $43.75 per track, per day. A man working double shifts, six days a week can earn a gross income of $24,000.

Each seller and cashier is financially liable for his own mistakes while behind the betting counter.

The man who cashes a "pigeon," that is a losing or counterfeit ticket, must make up the payoff price out of his own pocket. Similarly, the seller who punches out a wrong ticket may wind up buying that chance himself if no other buyer comes to the window before the closing bell.

Two mistakes at the $10 window, and a clerk has lost a half day's pay.

"IT'S EXPERIENCE that makes the difference. Some guys are already short by as much as $400," Spidalette says, pulling out his latest pay check to show that the price of a seller's "sins" show up as one more computerized deduction. So far, he has lost only $24 this year. His experience on the job dates back to 1952.

Two tracks is a rough schedule to keep the men say, but they do it voluntarily. Of the estimated 135 sellers and 80 cashiers on the job at Arlington Park Thursday afternoon, the majority also worked that night at Sportsman's.

"The only time I see my wife she's in pajamas," says Bell. "She's in her nightgown when I leave in the morning, and at night when I get home," says Bell.

"With the high price of living, what else can we do?" asks Nuccio.

Pari-mutuel clerks have not had a contract wage increase for three years, and like almost everyone else, these men say they are not keeping pace with the cost of living.

JEANE DIXON, internationally known psychic, spoke at Harper College Tuesday night. Mrs. Dixon called for "spiritual unity" in America.

Famed seeress at Harper College

Jeane Dixon: psychic 'by grace of God'

by NANCY NORTH

The door opened and a slender woman in a long, white dress appeared to float into the room. Her manner of carrying stated, "I am a lady."

"Why, you'd think I was somebody big and important, with all these people from the press," said Jeane Dixon, internationally known psychic, who held a press conference before addressing an audience Wednesday at Harper College in Palatine.

Close up, two things are striking out Mrs. Dixon: her intense blue-green eyes and the heavy gold cross hanging on her chest. Both are glimpses into the spirit of this curious woman.

HER EYES GIVE her a universal, ageless quality. Jeane Dixon is both youthful and aged at once — except for her hands.

"When a baby is born," Mrs. Dixon said, "you can look into his hand and tell how old his spirit is."

"You see," she said, showing her palms, "mine are the hands of a very old spirit." Mrs. Dixon's palms looked incredibly wrinkled.

On one of her palms is wrinkled in the distinctive outline of a half-moon and star. She said they designate her gift of psychic powers.

MRS. DIXON distinguishes between her psychic powers of "prediction" and "prophecy." Predictions, she said, are thoughts of men that she reads. She emphasized that events she predicts can be altered by the will of men.

Prophecies, she said, are the thoughts of God revealed to her in seven-day ecstatic trances.

On the fourth day of this "higher state of grace, something is revealed to you which affects the whole universe, and you live it," she said. "Then, on the eighth day, you wake up and it's like everyday life."

PROPHECIES, UNLIKE PREDICTIONS, cannot be altered by men, Mrs. Dixon said. They are "the Lord's plan, and you cannot change destiny," she said.

Mrs. Dixon said five prophecies have been revealed to her. One, which "the world is not ready for," will occur before the end of this century, she said.

"Jews will call it the coming of the Messiah. Christians will call it the second coming of Christ," she said.

As implied by such statements and the large cross she has worn for 30 years, Mrs. Dixon is a deeply religious woman. Frequently she cites passages from the Bible in support of her predictions.

AN OUTGROWTH of Mrs. Dixon's religious faith is her philanthropic foundation, Children to Children. The foundation supports medical and biological research in birth defects, prenatal care and cancer.

The foundation is dedicated to character building and inspiring spiritual principles in children and young adults.

Just as she is openly pious, Mrs. Dixon is an avowed patriot. In the wake of the Watergate scandal, which she says she predicted as early as 1967, Mrs. Dixon insists, "We must protect the Presidency, or we will not have a President at all."

Before her audience of 800 at Harper College, Mrs. Dixon called for America's "to put together a spiritual unit" around Watergate.

But Jeane Dixon did not stop there. At the end of her program she asked for a volunteer to lead the audience in "America the Beautiful."

Nearly everyone stayed to sing.

Med center asks location change

Itish-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center wants to change the planned location of its branch in Schaumburg from Schaumburg Road near Illinois Boulevard to Schaumburg and Barrington roads. Henry J. Buhrmann, hospital administrator, indicated construction on another site might be less expensive but stressed that no final decision has been made on relocation. The present site for the hospital branch was donated to the village and is located in a flood plain area.

Rift in Wheeling Jaycees

A falling out among Wheeling political figures in the wake of the village's zoning ordinance scandal has rocked the local Jaycees chapter. Gil Monoson, a plan commissioner and Jaycee member, has charged two other Jaycees, Plan Comr. Jack Metzger and Village Trustee William Hein, with mounting a "political smear" campaign against him. The charge was a response to Metzger's accusation that Monoson cashed Jaycee checks in his own name. Monoson earlier had quit a political group that included all three men in its membership when he was criticized for advocating certain reforms, including land trust disclosures in zoning cases and prohibition of crime-syndicate vending machines. After an investigation, Jaycee chapter officials now plan to take action against Metzger. Monoson explained the furor by saying: "You don't quit the boys."

Flood basin endorsed

A $13 million Weller Creek retention basin to relieve flooding in Arlington Heights, Des Plaines and Mount Prospect was endorsed this week for a federal grant by the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission. The basin is planned for the north side of Central Road near Busse Road in Mount Prospect. The project, however, has low priority among flood-control measures being developed by the Metropolitan Sanitary District and is not expected to receive federal approval for some time.

Forest land refused for road

Des Plaines has been rebuffed again in its effort to obtain a small amount of forest preserve land needed for a downtown traffic overpass project at River Road and Miner Street. Mayor Herbert Behrer reported Thursday after a meeting with County Comr. Floyd Fulle that the forest preserve district is sticking to its policy prohibiting road easements on forest preserve land. An interim plan to help relieve traffic congestion at the intersection is now being prepared by the city.

To quash 'no bullion' rumors

Crane to check out gold in Ft. Knox

Is there gold in Ft. Knox and the other federal repositories?

U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, has accepted an invitation by Treasury Sec. William E. Simon to inspect the nation's gold reserves.

Simon extended his invitation at a hearing this week of the subcommittee on international finance of the House committee on Banking and Currency. Simon reportedly offered the tour of vaults to squelch rumors that the United States' gold stocks have been sold off and that Ft. Knox is empty.

Edward Murnane, a Crane aide, said rumors have been circulating recently through Congress that the treasury was selling the country's gold.

"Some of these reports were being spread by some people who are usually reliable," Murnane said.

CRANE SAID THAT Simon categorically denied the reports and offered to take the entire subcommittee on an inspection tour of Ft. Knox "to eliminate this rumor-mongering."

Crane said he would accept the invitation and expressed "total confidence in the integrity of the Secretary."

Murnane said similar reports of elusive ingots have surfaced periodically since World War II. "They just pop up," Murnane said.

One of those passing along stories of an empty Ft. Knox is Sherman Skolnick, legal researcher and chairman of the Citizens Committee to Clean Up the Courts. Skolnick's "Hotline News," a tape recorded telephone message, has carried the story, among others, for several weeks.

When contacted for comment on Simon's invitation to the legislators, Skolnick said, "We'd be interested in going along, too. We'd like to see for ourselves. I think it's important that there be some nonpartisan observers."

SKOLNICK SAID he was basing his messages on stories that have appeared in the National Tattler, a weekly tabloid.

"Our so-called gold stocks are in Belgium in the hands of an intermediary," Skolnick said, referring to his informants.

To verify what the congressmen see is actually gold, Murnane said assayers may be taken on the inspection.

Final arrangements for the tours will be made upon Simon's return from the Mideast, where he will be meeting with Arab oil producing nations.

Ft. Knox is the largest and most famous of the six federal gold repositories. There is reportedly more than $13.2 billion in gold bullion in its vaults.

Cons hold several hostages

HEAVILY ARMED police gather outside U.S. District Court in Washington, D.C., where two prisoners seized the court. The court is the site of the Ellsberg break-in trial. The four U.S. deputy marshals and two attorneys and hold them hostage in a basement cell. The court is the site of the Ellsberg break-in trial. The four U.S. deputy marshals and two WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two "extremely dangerous" convicts, demanding to be allowed to escape by plane, seized at least six hostages Thursday in the basement cell block of the courthouse where the Ellsberg break-in trial was being held.

But the two convicts, facing 10 to 30 year prison terms for a previous escape attempt, claimed they were holding nine hostages and that 12 other prisoners were in the cellblock with them. Authorities could not confirm this.

The Ellsberg trial, which was just concluding its next-to-last day, was not disrupted, but Judge Gerhard Gesell told spectators to leave quickly after he dismissed the jury for the night.

Fink-jacketed police, armed with shotguns and rifles, sealed off the U.S. District Courthouse, which is only about four blocks from the U.S. Capitol.

The chief judge of the U.S. District Court, George L. Hart, twice held briefings on the takeover and in the second one changed his earlier report about the identity of the hostages.

He said four were deputy marshals and the other two were a member of the internal audit division of the Justice Department and his secretary.

Jones and the other convict, Frank Gorham, who held a gun to the head of the D.C. Corrections Dept. director during a 1972 uprising at the D.C. Jail, were facing sentencing for a 1972 jailbreak and were taken to the courthouse to meet with their attorneys.

Thursday's incident apparently started when the two first tried to escape but were stopped and pulled a gun. They took a number of weapons and took over the large cellblock in the basement of the courthouse.

Gorham was already serving a 73-year prison term and said he had "nothing to lose."

"We're not trying to hurt anybody," Jones said. "We do want you to understand that we will."

He said they just wanted a plane to get "somewhere out of Washington."

"That's all we want, man."

Swarms of police sealed off the area with dozens of patrol cars, motorcycles and other vehicles filling a rear street and occupying the curb space on the other sides.

One of the hostages was interviewed by reporters via telephone. Debbie Collins, a secretary, said: "They've been gentlemen. But I'm very scared. I've never been through anything like this before."

Animals, fowl dropping dead in Florida; pesticide blamed

FORT MYERS, Fla. (UPI) — Cattle, hogs, chickens, pelicans and bees are dropping dead in southwest Florida, and some residents contend mosquito spray is the killer. Officials say the pesticide is fatal only to mosquitoes.

Dr. Lee Shewmaker, a LaBelle, Fla., veterinarian, blamed the deaths of more than 20 cattle belonging to Fort Myers rancher Rupert Brown on the spray, which he said caused pneumonia.

"Those cattle were fat and healthy before the mosquito sprayer came through Monday evening," he said. "The spray destroyed their lungs."

Wayne Miller, director of the Lee County Mosquito Control District, denied that the spray could have killed the cattle.

"There's no way the spray could be responsible for sickness or death in cows or anything else for that matter," Miller said.

Mrs. Shirley Walters of a local wildlife protection organization said several dead pelicans have been found on beaches along the state's southwest coast in the past two days.

Logjam over, Assembly bobs along

From Herald news services

The Illinois General Assembly broke its major logjam Thursday and moved rapidly toward final adjournment of the record-late "spring" session.

The break came as Democrats decided to end their support of Gov. Daniel Walker in his dispute with Attorney General William Scott. That battle — over control of lawyers working in many of the governor's departments and agencies — had tied up dozens of budget bills and delayed passage of a large chunk of the state's budget longer than ever before in the state's history.

"Our main responsibility is to keep state government operating," Senate Democratic Leader Cecil Partee of Chicago said as his troops dropped their opposition to giving Scott control of lawyers working for the state Environmental Protection Agency and the state Liquor Control Commission.

Scott had singled out those two agencies as primary targets for an amendment giving him control over state lawyers.

Partee denied, however, that Thursday's vote against Walker in both the House and Senate amounted to an "abandonment" of the governor. "Anyone who suggests we have abandoned the governor would be very, very wrong," said Partee.

Norton Kay, Walker's press aide, said the governor "will review all budget bills as they come to his desk." He would not comment on whether Walker might veto Scott's lawyers back out of the two departments.

The break on that issue, termed by Partee a "gentlemen's agreement" with Scott, left only a handful of controversial matters still to be resolved by the General Assembly before adjournment.

Two of these are the massive $2 billion fiscal 1975 budget for the state Department of Transportation and leadership of a proposed $70 million coal research bonding program.

No matter how quickly the session was wrapped up, though, it will go into the record books as the latest-running regular spring session in Illinois history.

It also marks the latest date for final approval of the state's budget. Many agencies have been operating since July 1 without any authority to spend money. If that situation had not been resolved, it could have led to "payless paydays" for thousands of state employees as early as Monday.

Wallace to Dems; Get in middle

Gov. George C. Wallace, declaring that he has not decided whether to seek the Presidency in 1976, urged Democrats Thursday to "get back in the middle and away from the exotic New Left" before the next presidential election. The Alabama governor spoke to state Democratic chairmen meeting in Washington, D.C. Wallace is one of a group of potential presidential aspirants scheduled to address the party chiefs.

State to rest sex-murder case

With details of the sex and torture killings of six young boys already before the jury, the state is expected to rest its case today against Elmer Wayne Henley, 18, District Atty. Carol Vance indicated he would call 8 to 10 more witnesses and then turn the case over to the defense in the trial in San Antonio, Tex.

IRS pressure sought on Dem chief

The White House pressured the Internal Revenue Service to pursue a 1972 investigation of then Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien despite an election-year moratorium of audits on political figures, the Senate Watergate Committee reported. "I wanted them to turn up something and send O'Brien to jail before the election," former No. 2 White House aide John D. Ehrlichman is quoted as telling the committee.

GOP charges Dems hid aid

A Republican National Committee report charged Thursday that four Democratic candidates failed to report at least $80,000 worth of campaign assistance provided by organized labor in their special congressional elections this year. Democratic candidates who won seats in the elections included John Murtha of Pennsylvania, Richard Vander Veen and Robert Traxler of Michigan and Tom Luken of Ohio.

Opponent demands Gurney quit

The indictment of Florid Sen. Edward J. Gurney on bribery and conspiracy charges brought a demand from one of his political opponents Thursday that he immediately step down "until he is cleared, if he is cleared." The demand came from Miami attorney Burton Young, who qualified Thursday as the ninth Democrat seeking the seat of Florida's senior Republican senator. Gurney is one of three GOP members on the Watergate committee and has been President Nixon's staunchest supporter on the committee.

Watergate—the latest, in summary

From Herald news services

The House Judiciary Committee published impeachment inquiry evidence Thursday that said President Nixon expressed fear in the early stages of the Watergate investigation that his own involvement would be exposed.

The committee released eight volumes of accumulated evidence and documentation about Watergate which its 38 members had heard in the course of six weeks of closed-door hearings.

Included was the report Nixon expressed fear that two of his campaign aides — Hugh Sloan and Jeb Stuart Magruder — would bow under pressure from investigators and reveal their own involvement in the political espionage operation known as Watergate. Nixon's concern was expressed two months before the televised Senate Watergate hearings started on May 17, 1973, and before John W. Dean III, fearing that he was going to be made the White House scapegoat, told his story to a grand jury.

The committee's documents were compiled from a variety of sources — the Watergate hearings, White House-taped tapes, logs and diaries, civil and criminal court proceedings, and the testimony heard by the grand jury which named Nixon as an unindicted co-conspirator.

Magruder feared jail

According to evidence released by the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment inquiry, Jeb Stuart Magruder, former White House assistant and deputy Nixon re-election campaign director, feared he would go to prison for 135 years when he began talking to prosecutors about Watergate in April, 1973.

Magruder pleaded guilty in August to one count of conspiracy to obstruct justice and now is serving a minimum sentence of 10 months.

19-minute gap found

Watergate prosecutors revealed Thursday there is a 19-minute gap on a tape recording of the meeting where President Nixon and John D. Ehrlichman apparently discussed the Ellsberg break-in for the first time.

Assistant Prosecutor Richard Ben-Veniste mentioned the gap during a hearing before U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica, but he did not elaborate on it.

The conversation took place on March 20, 1973, the day before which Nixon said he first learned the full details of the Watergate cover-up from John W. Dean III.

Deputy White House Press Secretary Gerald Warren expressed confidence that there had been no alteration of the tape and accused the prosecutors of "playing more to the press gallery" than presenting evidence to the court.

Dean testifies

John W. Dean III told the House Judiciary Committee Thursday he now believes he and President Nixon discussed the possibility of paying hush money to the Watergate defendants prior to their March 21, 1973, taped conversation, according to two committee members.

Dean, the President's chief accuser, testified at the request of White House attorney James D. St. Clair. But his reported testimony appeared to contradict St. Clair's contention that Nixon first learned of Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt's demands for hush money on March 21, after the final payment of $75,000 was already decided upon.

Hunt received the money a few hours after the March 21 hush money conversation in which Nixon told Dean, "Well, for Christ's sake get it."

Ehrlichman trial

The prosecution and defense presented their final arguments Thursday in the 11-day-old conspiracy trial of former presidential aide John D. Ehrlichman and three others in connection with the Ellsberg burglary.

The jury of nine blacks and three whites will begin deliberating the case Friday after being charged by U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell.

Ehrlichman's co-defendants are G.

Gordon Liddy, former FBI agent and White House aide, and former CIA operative Bernard L. Barker and Eugenio Martinez — all three convicted conspirators in the Watergate burglary.

Ziegler responds

Presidential spokesman Ronald L. Ziegler Thursday accused the House Judiciary and the Senate Watergate committees of trying to manipulate public opinion by releasing piecemeal evidence supporting impeachment of President Nixon.

Focusing his attack on a 350-page Watergate committee report released

Wednesday and the Judiciary Committee's decision to release Thursday some 4,500 pages of previously secret evidence, Ziegler said these actions were "calculated public relations to manipulate public opinion through piecemeal leaks in support of impeachment."

Silbert shelved

Seeking to avoid appearances of a premature Watergate judgment, the Senate Judiciary Committee has shelved President Nixon's nomination of Earl J. Silbert to be a U.S. Attorney until after Congress resolves the question of Nixon's impeachment.

Citizen link to county board formed

Carl Hansen, Republican candidate for county board president, has formed a 17-member Citizens Committee on County Government "to provide better and more responsive representation of the North-west suburban interest on the county board."

John G. Woods, former Arlington Heights mayor, will be chairman of the committee.

Members include Arlington Heights Trustee Ralph Clabour; Elgin attorney Eugene Devitt; Donna Farley of Elk Grove Village; Prospect Heights Improvement Assn. president John E. Gilligan; Salt Creek Watershed Steering Committee chairman Tom Hamilton; Motorola Corp. director James Haring; JoAnne Hayes of Inverness; Hoffman Estates Mayor Virginia Hayter; Harper College Pres. Robert Lahti; Mount Prospect attorney Bernard Lee; Palatine Township Supervisor Howard Olsen; former Elk Grove Village Pres. Jack Pahl; Hoffman Estates Trustee Richard Regan; Clarence Schlayer, executive director of the Mount Prospect Chamber of Commerce; Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Telecheri, and Barrington Mayor Fred Voss.

Anti-tax office opened

Norman Dachman, a Democratic candidate for suburban county board election, has opened a "suburban anti-income tax center" in Niles.

Dachman, who also organized "Operation Yes!", a suburban group backing the Regional Transportation Authority, said the anti-tax office will "bring the one message to those who propose new taxes — leave us alone."

The center will be at 8045 Milwaukee Ave., Niles.

A county board advisory commission is expected to recommend either a county income tax or sales tax to provide additional, future county revenue.

Elrod against guns

Sheriff Richard J. Elrod is forming "a new national organization solely devoted to passing federal legislation to outlaw handguns."

Elrod plans to lobby at Congress for "comprehensive and effective legislation concerning the manufacture, sale and possession of handguns. The gun lobby is strong, but the people are stronger," he said.

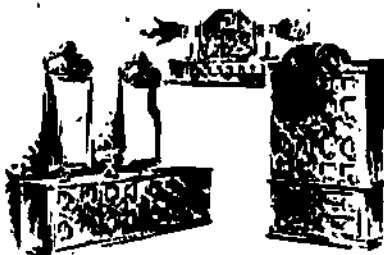

Elrod said he will seek cooperation from Common Cause and Ralph Nader organizations and that legislation "should make provision for the true sportsman but must curtail the widespread availability of handguns to halt the violent deaths with these weapons."

Public zoning hearing set

The County Zoning Board of Appeals will begin a second round of public hearings on a proposed, new zoning ordinance at 3 p.m. July 26 in Glenview Village Hall, 1930 Prairie St., Glenview.

The hearings will include discussion of manufacturing zoning and rules and definitions for the final zoning ordinance.

With monorail

18-story Hyatt Regency Hotel planned for Schaumburg

by PAT GERLACH

An 18-story Hyatt Regency Hotel, high-rise commercial and residential buildings, all connected by monorail, are planned for development on the 153-acre Union Oil property in Schaumburg.

Developers are suggesting a proposed cultural center be located in an I-shaped mall area in the center of the complex rather than on the 40-acre Schaumburg Road civic-cultural center complex.

The design concept is reportedly the brainchild of Marshall Bennett of Bennett and Kahnweiler. His partners in the project include Jack N. Pritzker, a Chicago attorney and financier, Union Oil Co. and possibly the Village of Schaumburg.

Informal meetings to discuss preliminary plans have been held with village officials over the past 18 months, according to Trustee Herbert J. Aigner.

A STRIP AT THE eastern edge of the property, along I-90, is being reserved for prime commercial space which might be utilized as midwest corporate headquarters for several major U.S. firms, Aigner said.

The Hyatt Regency Hotel would be at one end of the mall area and contain the cultural center and commercial space. The hotel chain is owned by the Pritzker family.

Aigner and Trustee Ray G. McArthur confirmed that a multi-family high-rise cluster development is planned at the west edge of the development.

The existing Union Oil Co. building is included in the total site and demolition of the structure is possible after 15 years.

SOURCES SAY that Bennett has asked the village to:

- Build all streets and install utilities
- Construct a pedestrian overpass at Golf Road
- Construct a bridge or underpass at I-90 near Golf Road
- Build a secondary access road from Meacham to Roselle road midway between the tollroad and Golf Road

- Design and construct a monorail
- Provide water reservoirs, wells, and sewers and waive all tap-on fees.

Bennett, who is vacationing in Sun Valley, Idaho, could not be reached for comment.

THE PROJECT, to be completed over the next 20 years, is being designed by James DeStefano, of Skidmore, Skidmore, Owings and Merrill, Chicago architects. Real Estate Research, a Chicago consulting firm, has been researching a market for the complex for several years, sources say.

Robert Archie, a spokesman for Union Oil, confirmed his company's involvement in the project, but said he has little information on the plan. Archie said a $300,000 price tag on the project "appears grossly exaggerated" unless major revisions have taken place since he saw the design concept.

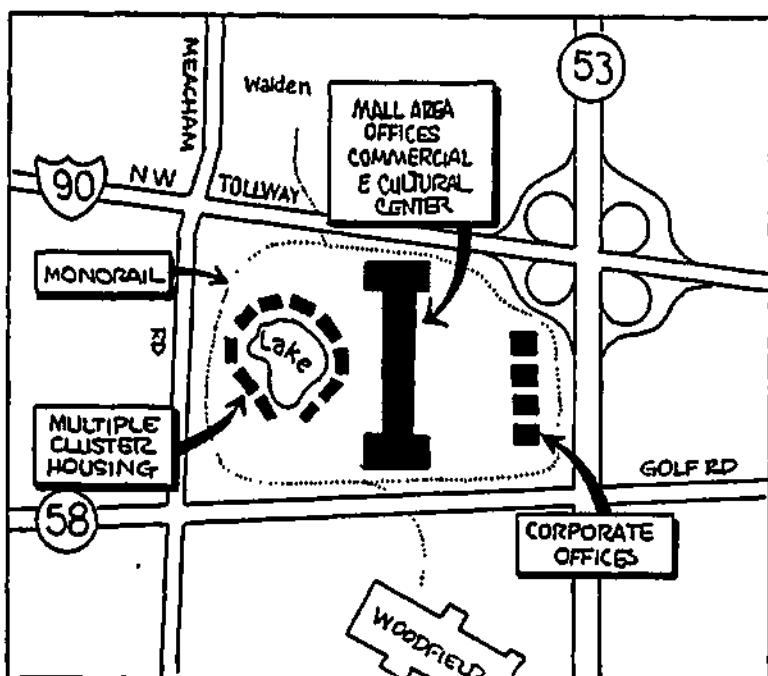

Sociologist Pierre DeVise considers the project "very feasible" for the Schaumburg area, which he considers "one of the hot suburban real estate markets."

BUT DeVISE, an assistant professor of urban sciences at the University of Illinois Chicago Circle Campus, said he "deplores" the type of development being planned there because "it is taking away from the center-city Chicago" hub of activity.

The Northeastern Illinois Plan Commission (NIPC) refused to comment on the plan "because of its purely local nature," a spokesman said, adding that NIPC is now "negotiating" with the village on population forecasts.

Village Pres. Robert O. Atcher said through a spokesman Thursday he is "not at liberty to discuss the project." The village has not received a petition for zoning or annexation of the property now in unincorporated Schaumburg Township, he added. The spokesman refused to comment on whether a petition is expected though sources close to the developers anticipate an early August meeting to announce plans.

Park board wrapup

Attendance record set at golf course

Last Friday, the day after the Fourth of July, was the busiest day ever at the Mount Prospect Country Club. Some 451 golfers took advantage of the long weekend to tee off, reported Mount Prospect Park District Director Thomas W. Cooper. The record tops the previous high of about 400 golfers in a single day. Receipts on Friday exceeded $1,200.

In the month of June, some $16,592 was collected in daily golf fees, despite 18 rainy days. Last June, $17,631 was raised. Total receipts for 1974, including season passes, are $104,591. Last year at this time, $96,017 had been collected.

Fish appear in retention lake

An assortment of fish has turned up in the park district's retention lake at Clearwater Park. The state conservation department found some 45 goldfish, 3 bullhead and 18 mud minnows in the 3 1/2-acre manmade lake. Where did they come from? "Eggs, I guess," surmised Cooper. The prevailing theory is that a couple of fish wandered over from the pond at the nearby St. Johns Apartments, 1500 Busse Rd. then proceeded to reproduce.

The park district plans to poison the lake next month to get rid of the fish, then stock it with bluegill and bass for fishing.

Heat detectors to be studied

The park board Monday night decided to study the feasibility of installing heat detectors in the washrooms at the Lions Park Recreation Center as a result of a small fire in a washroom there July 1. No one was injured in the fire, although the building was evacuated as a precaution.

The building currently has heat detectors in the hallways, but Park Comr. William Selep noted that most fires deliberately set by vandals take place in washrooms. Two board members suggested that instructors of classes be informed of exit procedures in case of fire.

No parking on grass urged

Park Comr. Elmer Blasco urged that cars be prohibited from parking on the grass during the annual Village Fair at Lions Park around the Fourth of July. He said the lawn already takes a beating with rides and individuals, and cars should be banned.

Asked about the numerous "ground skimmers" during the fireworks display on the Fourth, Cooper said it "happens in every show." He blamed it on "a little bit of sloppy handling and a little bit of moisture."

Tiles to prevent flooding

Burglaries becoming more common

business areas. Police statistics showed that last year, residential, or home burglaries occurred less frequently than those in non-residential establishments.

ALFANO ALSO SAID burglary patterns are usually "sporadic." Burglars from town, or other areas may work certain neighborhoods of the city until they are either caught, or go to another area.

He mentioned one spree earlier this year where burglars repeatedly struck at the Holiday Inn, Touhy Avenue and Mannheim Road and the Royal Court Inn, 1750 S. Elmhurst Rd., where guestrooms were entered and television sets stolen.

The rash ended, however, with the arrests of two men who were later turned over to Chicago police to face charges for similar incidents there.

The recent string of cat burglaries and attempts are also an example of how sporadic burglary patterns are in the city.

Ex-Oakton trustee gets probation

Robert Gutschick, former member of the Oakton Community College board of trustees, has been sentenced to five years felony probation after pleading guilty to a charge of selling LSD to undercover agents.

Gutschick, 24, of 7902 Lotus, Morton Grove, was arrested in March by agents of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group (MEG) and charged with arranging to sell $2,250 worth of LSD to the agents along with Michael Jolly, 21, of 1807 Andea, Mount Prospect. Jolly also pleaded guilty and was sentenced to five years probation, according to MEG Director John Hinchey.

Gutschick was elected to the Oakton board in 1972 while a student at the college. After his arrest, he resigned from the board and was replaced by LeRoy Wauck, who will serve until the election in April 1975.

The true number of burglaries is not always reflected in police statistics however, he said. Sometimes, what was originally reported as a burglary investigation discover was only a theft, according to Alfano, where no illegal entry was made.

Temple summer services

Maine Township Jewish Congregation, 8800 Ballard Rd., Des Plaines, conducts a full schedule of religious services throughout the summer months. Daily services are at 7:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Sabbath services on Friday evening are at 7:30 p.m. with other services on Saturday at 9:30 a.m. and 7:45 p.m. Sunday Minyan is at 9 a.m.

Registration for nursery school and daily religious school is now in progress. Membership applications are being processed through the Synagogue office during regular hours, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Special appointments can be arranged in the evening or Sunday morning.

Bingo continues each Sunday evening at 7:30 p.m. The community is invited to this weekly event.

Real estate is big in Florida

by DEAN C. MILLER

NEW YORK — William J. Holland, a Fort Lauderdale, Fla., real estate broker, has come a long way since he waited on tables in Detroit restaurants.

Last year his W. J. Holland, Inc., operation sold $280 million worth of land, reputed to be the largest dollar volume by a U.S. real estate firm. In 1955, after selling real estate in the Detroit area for 10 years, Holland migrated to Fort Lauderdale "because of its great real estate potential in fun, sun and lifestyle."

There was one problem. He needed a Florida real estate license. So he studied and passed the exams. The same day Holland received his license he sold a piece of property that made him $100,000 commission.

Several years ago Holland took a $100 option on a tract of land west of Fort Lauderdale and it eventually generated $6 million in profits.

"ALL OF THAT may sound very good and very easy," said Holland, a bald, bespectacled man whose quiet voice and manner don't jibe with his sales record. "Actually, I've fared well because I've always done my homework. Take that $100,000 commission I made the day I got my license in Florida.

"Months of study of the Florida real estate scene, how and where to sell, went into that transaction."

Aside from such spade work, Holland thinks big. His average sale is about $1 million.

"We don't sell houses; we sell knowledge about land," Holland told UPI just before taking off on a vacation to the Greek Isles.

Here's the way I see it. The many local, state and federal rules and regulations realtors face today sometimes delay deals for 15 to 18 months. We try to cut that down to 90 days by putting the pieces together ahead of time, by processing the land to get it through the governmental red tape so you can move it at opportune times."

HIS 18-MAN STAFF includes experts in zoning, land planning, environmental controls, water and sewage installations, architecture and marketing.

"We frequently buy property for $6,000 per acre, and, after careful massaging, sell it for $15,000 per acre," he said. Holland says he has a land inventory of around $100 million.

His holdings and joint ventures are located primarily in the Fort Lauderdale - Palm Beach - Tampa - St. Petersburg - Clearwater areas of Florida. But he has branched out recently. He's involved in the 1,300-acre El Rancho Zorro in San Diego County, Calif., formerly owned by movie stars Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford, a shopping center in Charleston, S.C., and an office building in Greenwich, Conn.

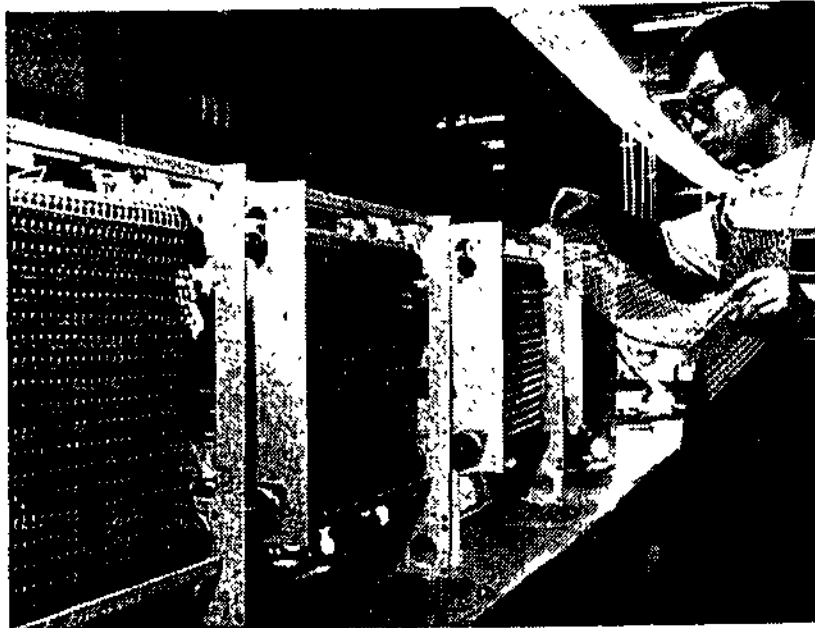

HOLLAND HAS unlimited faith in the future of land.

"There's just so much of it, and more people are coming along every year to use it," he said.

As for home buyers, Holland thinks the condominium approach is a good one. But he criticizes developers who aren't open and above-board about commonly owned facility charges such as clubhouses, tennis courts and swimming pools.

"But I'm certain they will adjust that properly in the near future," said Holland, always the optimist.

FUSERS FOR COPIER machines are assembled at Addressograph Multigraph Corp.'s Multigraphics plant in Mount Prospect by Thirayuth Tansiri. The company recently introduced a new offset duplicator.

Copier prints on 2 sides of paper, eases shortage

by LEA TONKIN

Back-to-back reading will become more common in business and government printed materials as the crimp in paper supplies continues, predicts merchandising man Dick Guthrie.

A marketing specialist for the Addressograph Multigraph Corp.'s Multigraphics division in Mount Prospect, Guthrie is an avid watcher of the paper industry. He sells the company's copier machines that gobble sheets of paper and spew out copies by the thousands.

Sluggish growth in the paper industry is expected to continue, Guthrie said. Notoriously low profit margins, the adverse effects of price controls, the tremendous costs for building new plants and compliance with environmental standards hamper the industry, he said.

"At the same time the demand for paper increases at 8 to 12 per cent a year," Guthrie continued. "As a result, during the past 12 months the cost of duplicating bond (paper) has doubled."

This means that Multigraphics customers want to cut down their paper consumption as much as possible, he said. In addition to suggestions that business and government agencies cut mailing lists and shorten communications, Multigraphics recently introduced a duplicator designed to alleviate the paper problem.

THE PROCESS of duplicating on both sides of a sheet of paper is called duplexing. Multigraphics' new Multilith offset 2875 can automatically print both sides of a sheet of paper in a page-number sequence. Single page printings, or multipage documents can be reproduced at high speed on the machine. It can produce 8,400 copies an hour if one side of a sheet of paper is used, or 16,800 pages an hour if both sides are printed.

The concept of duplexing has been in existence for years, said Guthrie. The automation of the entire procedure is recent.

Another Multigraphics idea for the company that would like to cut the cost of paper, postage and filing space is writing correspondence on legal size paper. The correspondence is then reduced to 8 1/2 by 11 inches, and printed front and back sides of a sheet of paper.

"I don't ever think you're going to make obsolete a sheet of paper," Guthrie said. "The approach you're going to take is to a reduction of the original to get more information on the sheet, and to utilize both sides of the sheet."

Savings. loan to open second branch office

Arlington Heights Federal Savings and Loan Assn. received permission from the Federal Home Loan Bank Board to establish a branch facility in north Arlington Heights.

The association is among the first S&L's in Illinois to receive authorization for a second de novo branch. The board allowed federally chartered S&L's in Illinois to apply for branch operations permits Jan. 31, 1973.

The new branch operation will be located in the vicinity of Rand and Arlington Heights roads, said association president Donald Morton. Arlington Federal's first branch, authorized in May, 1973, is in Lake Zurich.

"In addition to reflecting the strength and quality of our present operations, this permission enables us to provide more convenient service to the owners of more than 11,000 savings accounts in the 60004 and 60090 zip code areas who represent more approximately 30 per cent of Arlington Federal's Savings capital," said Morton. The association's assets exceed $140 million.

Arguments close in township tax collectors' case

Township tax collectors have a right to function and suburban voters have a right to their services as provided by state law, attorney Philip J. McGuire said in closing arguments of the collector suit.

He was one of five attorneys making statements Wednesday at the close of a nine-day hearing before Circuit Court Judge Donald J. O'Brien, who is being asked to lift a five-year-old injunction preventing the township officials from collecting property taxes.

William Harte, one of the attorneys opposing an end to the injunction, said allowing township collectors to function again would force Chicago residents to pay increased taxes to Cook County to support the extra costs of the separate suburban collection system.

O'Brien, who took tax collection powers away from the townships in 1969 and gave the county treasurer sole power to collect taxes in the city and suburbs, said he will issue a decision in the case at some future date.

O'Brien said he would notify the participants in the case when he had decided whether or not to lift the injunction.

THE 1969 INJUNCTION is an out-

SIU dean to help pick school head

The dean of the College of Education at Southern Illinois University in Edwardsville has been named to help the newly formed State Board of Education in its search for a new state school superintendent.

Dean Wiley, who is presently on leave from SIU, will serve as executive secretary to the board for the next six months as its members conduct the search for the superintendent. He was named by the board in a meeting Thursday in Springfield.

Wiley will serve without pay, but will be reimbursed for expenses he incurs while working for the board, a board spokesman said.

The 17-member state school board officially will take over the functions of elected State School Supt. Michael Bakalis in January. Between now and January they must choose a superintendent to replace Bakalis.

The state board was formed under provisions of the 1970 Illinois Constitution which also provided that bakalis, who was elected in 1970, would be the last elected state school superintendent.

growth of an original suit filed by Chicago taxpayers that invalidated a collection fee of 2 per cent for all taxes that the township collectors had received.

But five years have elapsed since that case, and a new state Constitution and new situation in the 30 townships in Cook County may affect O'Brien's decision.

The case also has been expanded by the intervention of two groups of suburban citizens — one group that wants to pay taxes to the township and another group, including League of Women Voters members, which opposes the alleged extra cost of having township collectors take over a job already being done by the county.

The hearings included testimony that collectors in all 30 townships were "ready, willing and able" to begin collecting taxes again.

ARGUMENTS Wednesday included McGuire's plea on behalf of the collectors that as a matter of law the judge has no power to supersede the Illinois General Assembly.

Attorney Richard Cowen, who represented Wheeling, New Trier, Barrington, Palatine and Elk Grove townships, told the judge his injunction effectively abolished the office of township collector. Cowen said the township collectors can work compatibly with the county's new computerized tax collection system, and he disputed assertions that county collections were less expensive.

Even so, "whether township governments have acted wisely or foolishly... is not really the issue," the issue is the legal right of the collectors to collect taxes, he said.

HARTE ARGUED the legislation creating township collectors may be unconstitutional and unfair to Chicago residents.

Richard Troy, who represents the suburban intervenors who want the injunction continued, argued that as limited local units of government, townships really have no function collecting taxes for other local governments.

He said if the injunction were removed suburban taxpayers would have to pay twice to have their taxes collected, supporting not only the county treasurer's office but also the salary and expenses of the township collector.

Sheldon Gardner, a representative of the State's Attorney's office, said County Treasurer Bernard Korzen would comply with the specifics of O'Brien's order.

Obituaries

Robert Rokos

Visitation for Robert Rokos, 66, is today from 4 to 9:30 p.m. in Oehler Funeral Home, Lee and Perry streets, Des Plaines.

Mr. Rokos, a retired salesman for Maher Lumber Co. in Bensenville, died Wednesday in Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines. He was born in Chicago, Dec. 12, 1907, and had resided in Des Plaines for the last 20 years. He was a veteran of World War II, U.S. Army.

Funeral Mass of the Resurrection will be offered Saturday morning at 11 a.m. in St. Stephen Catholic Church, 1257 Everett St., Des Plaines. Burial will be in St. Adalbert Cemetery, Niles.

Surviving are three brothers, John of Downers Grove, Joseph of Stone Park and Stephen of Chicago. He was preceded in death by his wife, Josephine, nee Mraczkowski, and a sister, Mrs. Mary Pelinski.

Deaths elsewhere

MRS. MAE LOUISE BALL, 55, nee Eichler, of LaJolla, Calif., formerly of Arlington Heights and Moon Valley, Ariz., died Wednesday in Scripps Clinic, LaJolla, Calif., after an extended illness.

Private funeral service will be held today in LaJolla, Calif.

Mrs. Ball was a founder of the Friends of Clearbrook School in Rolling Meadows; former president of Infant Welfare in Arlington Heights, and a lifetime member of the Northwest Community Hospital Auxiliary.

She is survived by her husband, William; a daughter, Mrs. Betty (Ken) Roberts of Fairfield, Conn.; a son, Fred Ball of New York; one granddaughter, Lisa Roberts, and a brother, Edwin and sister-in-law, Lois Eichler of Del Mar, Calif. Family requests, memorial donations to the Scripps Clinic and Research Foundation Cancer Fund, 476 Prospect St., LaJolla, Calif., 92037, would be appreciated.

Raymond Henning

Raymond J. Henning, 74, of Palatine, formerly of Park Ridge, died Thursday morning in Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, after an extended illness.

Visitation is Sunday in Ahlgren and Sons Funeral Home, 201 N. Northwest Hwy., Palatine, from 2 to 9:30 p.m.

Mr. Henning was a retired supervisor for Commonwealth Edison Co., with 43 years of service. He was born in Evanston, June 16, 1900.

Preceded in death by his wife, Florence, survivors include one sister, Mrs.

Helen Siedel of Decatur, Ill., and many nieces and nephews. He was also preceded in death by three brothers.

Funeral service will be held Monday at 2 p.m. in the chapel of the funeral home. Officiating will be the Rev. Carl F. Thrun of Trinity Lutheran Church, Rolling Meadows. Burial will be in Memorial Park Cemetery, Skokie.

Family requests, in lieu of flowers, memorial donations may be made to the Trinity Lutheran Church Welfare Fund, 3201 Meadow Dr., Rolling Meadows, or your favorite charity.

Overdoing diet can lead to faint spells, fatigue

The doctor says

by Dr. Lawrence E. Lamb

I'm a 6-foot, 74-year-old man, and I weighed 198 pounds two months ago. I didn't go on any of those newfangled diets. I just cut down on food. Also eliminated all fats and sweets. For one week I had a large orange and coffee for breakfast, an ordinary meal at noon, then no more until the next morning.

I got so weak and faint from this that I took a little skim milk with breakfast and a little at evening. Now I weigh 179. I walk an average of three miles a day. Also go through exercises four times a day. I'm very satisfied with the way I have lost weight. How far do you think I should go? Would 160 for my age be too far?

When I walk quite fast, suddenly I become a little faint. So then I rest a few minutes. It doesn't last but a minute or two, then I can go on again. Is this any danger of a heart attack? I had a physical recently and my heart checked out perfectly.

In general you are on the right course. I suspect you are rushing it a bit. You have been losing a bit more than two pounds a week. Eat a little more and be satisfied to lose one pound of actual fat a week. A combination of physical exercise and diet is really the best way to control your excess fat problem.

Those symptoms you had were signs you were overdoing the dieting. I can't repeat too often that failure to eat enough calories leads to semistarvation with fatigue, faintness, and many other changes that are bad for your health.

And, don't try to overdo the exercise, either. It isn't necessary that you walk fast and cause yourself to feel faint. I suspect this too is part of your overdoing your diet. It doesn't mean you will have a heart attack. I want to encourage you to continue your effort but at a safer level. You sound like a typical person who is impatient for results and tends to overdo most things. You can walk three or more miles at a comfortable rate or even by breaking it up into two or three walking periods a day.

HOW MUCH should you lose? I never could answer that question with certainty, even with radio-isotope measurements of the amount of fat and the patient before me. The only way you know how much you should lose is after you have lost it. As long as you have any significant amounts of fat around the small of the back, or signs of a spare tire, or too much to sit on, you still have fat you can do without.

A good way to approach the problem of how much is to set a sensible goal and after you have reached it, reevaluate yourself in terms of fat under the skin. If there is still some there, do something about it.

Still another problem is the change in the amount of muscles a person has. If you diet too fast you may lose muscles as well as fat, and then there will still be fat to lose. Or, if you are exercising regularly, which I recommend, then you may grow muscles. As your muscles enlarge and the fat goes away, you might not lose so many pounds even though you are healthier and have lost fat. In that case you may reach the important goal of losing fat even though you may not have lost many pounds. Again the key is, "how much fat is under the skin?"

Must we allow hiring relatives? It's embarrassing!

Herald opinion

Easy way to end nepotism

Nepotism is still working in the Northwest suburbs to help get the children of public officials and employees jobs.

A recent Herald survey showed that 12 local government units, including school districts and park districts, are employing the offspring of their elected officials or full-time employees for the summer.

This practice is needless and unwarranted. It unnecessarily places public officials in a position to be criticized for profiting, at least indirectly, for their positions.

Granted, the Herald survey did not reveal any blatant examples of unqualified persons being hired for jobs requiring no work — the kind of practice that is frequently associated with nepotism in politics. Instead, the nepotism in the suburbs is on a small scale, with children of public employees being hired for maintenance work or as temporary clerical help.

We have no evidence that the children working in those positions are not fully qualified and dedicated. Nor are they making princely salaries. One girl, the daughter of a park director in Buffalo Grove, makes just $2 a week helping with a gymnastics class.

But the fact that nepotism is penny-ante stuff in the area does not mean it should be allowed to continue. Public officials and public employees must realize that because of their positions they are more subject to criticism in this regard than the private businessmen who may hire their children. Public officials can and should prevent nepotism and the way to do it is simple and straightforward. They should simply make it official policy of their school district, park district or village that there be no nepotism — that no relative of an employee or elected official be hired for any job. Indeed, several agencies already have taken that position.

This policy would not necessarily work a hardship on children in need of work. Governmental agencies, after all, all need summer help, and children who cannot under a policy seek work at one agency could always apply to others, or even to private industry.

However, the policy would have the advantage of preventing criticism of government by voters and taxpayers who may otherwise be understandably upset by the practice of favoring relatives of public officials.

Summer jobs for all teenagers are, after all, becoming harder and harder to find. Public officials should be cautious about taking up all the jobs with their own children.

The solution to the problem is simple.

Shed a tear up the river

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT
Metropolitan Affairs Editor

Federal indictment and prosecution for corruption does funny things to crooked politicians.

Faced with years in prison, the practitioners of hands-out community rule develop strange illnesses and beg for judicial clemency.

The same gruff monarchs who threatened, bribed and/or abused when in power become when convicted, family men, pillars of the community who made a single, small mistake.

The list is endless and begins, most recently, with former Gov. Otto Kerner. Despite pleas that the 65-year-old U.S. Dist. Court judge suffer from a heart condition, that his wife recently died and that he has heavy family responsibilities, Kerner's three-year prison sentence was reaffirmed Tuesday.

Add to the list:

- Former White House aide Charles Colson, of Watergate fame, who found religion;

- Former Wheeling Building and Zoning Director William Bieber who suffered from a bad back;

- Former Wheeling Township committeeman James Stavros who developed a love of family and a fear of death;

- Former State Rep. Bernard Peskin who feared that a prison could not meet his special dietary needs;

- Former Hoffman Estates Trustee Herbert Gibson who pleaded that he was an alcoholic seeking treatment at Downey Veterans Hospital;

- And former Hoffman Estates officials Howard J. Nobel, Roy L. Jenkins and Gerald L. Meyer who pleaded the death of other family members.

The sorrows of the officials are real enough. Kerner does have a heart condition. Bieber does have a bad back.

But, the ailments, loyalties and problems that surface during sentencing never seem to bother the former officials during conduct of their misdeeds. The tales are designed by lawyers to make judges and juries cry. The only real weeping comes from the officials who face prison.

If the moaning during court sentencing provides typical examples of suburban officials, local government is becoming a haven for heavy drinkers, out of work union members and seriously ill persons.

Consider the corruption-filled suburb. A builder is seeking zoning for a huge housing project. "Talk to The Man," a local official says. "My ribs are killing me, an old war injury, and I can't lift any bundles of money today. Besides I'm tied down with paper shuffling."

The developer calls The Man. When will they meet? Where will they meet? How much will zoning cost?

"I've got a wife, family and kids and I'm so busy fixing zoning cases that I don't see them enough," The Man says. "I'm getting an ulcer worrying about all this money. I've got insomnia worrying about who to shake down next."

"Let's meet at two tomorrow morning at the Six Birds Restaurant to work this out. No one will see us then," the builder says. "I need this zoning right away."

"Two a.m.," The Man says. "I'm a sick man. I have an old football injury. How much did ya say ya'd pay?"

The Six Birds is quiet the next morning as The Man, his trusted aides and flunkies and the developer huddle in. The Man limps, clutching his latest traffic injury. The municipal official holds his back. The builder groans under the weight of his money satchel.

"Make dis quick," The Man says. "I've got a busy day tomorrow — arranging free water for my parents' house, visiting my doctors, counting my money, swimming in my Olympic pool." "Isn't all this payoff stuff illegal? I've got my rights," the developer says. "Did you say something about lights?" The Man says. "I'll turn out your lights if ya don't shadup. I'll fix your wagon. Even worse, I'll call you at church some Sunday."

"Dis isn't illegal," The Man says. "I'm just a poor farmboy, providing for my family. When ya can't make it with the Bears, and those damn Republicans take your patronage job, you've got to do something for a living."

"Just look at this little token of affection as your investment in our fine community," The Man tells the developer.

"How will I know there won't be more demands?" the developer says.

"There will be," The Man promises. "In fact, I need $500 worth of booze. A couple of my zoning board friends are starting to build a case for clemency if they're indicted by the feds. First they become alcoholics which also improves their ability to vote right. Then, just before sentencing, they commit themselves for da cure."

"Aren't you worried that you'll get caught," the developer asks.

"Naw," says The Man. "I've got expensive lawyers. I've got friends in high places — one runs a hamburger stand, others are cops whose campaigns I've financed. If worse comes to worse, I'll tell them how sick I am. No judge will send a sick man to jail."

The Man's last argument has proved wrong. Federal judges in Chicago are sending political figures to jail. At best, it's free medical treatment in an exclusive hospital system.

Buffalo Grove paramedics— 'thank God we had them'

Fantastic — that is the only word I can think of to describe the paramedics in Buffalo Grove!

On Memorial Day, I had occasion to call them. My 8-year-old had been hit under the left eye with a bat. It was split open and bleeding very badly.

I called the fire department, gave them my name and address. The fireman who answered my call very quickly told me the ambulance would be right over. I hardly had the phone back on the hook and they were there, also two squad cars.

Everyone was so helpful and treated my daughter quickly and carefully. Naturally she was frightened and scared and the young man treating her explained everything he was doing.

On the way to the hospital, he held her hand and talked to her, telling her where we were, and how soon we would be there.

Both of the paramedics stayed with my daughter while I signed insurance papers. Although I didn't get their names, I hope that Chief Winter will tell them how much I appreciated their help, also the police and everyone else who helped.

Some people don't think much about these wonderful men until they need their help. I thank God we had them.

My daughter needed nine stitches, but

FTC boss happy

Your recent article by Monica Perin, headlined "FTC moving on consumer behalf," has been brought to my attention by our regional director in Chicago, Stephanie Kanwit.

I thought it was an excellent summary of the Commission's consumer protection activities over the last several months. I would only add that no one person can take the credit for the FTC's activities. Certainly the other commissioners and the commission staff merit praise for their dedication and skills.

At any rate, please accept my appreciation for the kind words you had for us.

Earl Warren— he fanned fire

From Herald news services
Earl Warren, who died this week at age 83, rose through the rough-and-tumble of California Republican politics to become at the same time one of the most admired and vilified jurists in the nation's history — a controversial figure whose ultimate tribute was dominating a Supreme Court era that will forever bear his name.

The Warren Court was one of repeated historic decisions, and one that by those decisions stirred national passions and debate that haven't been felt over the high court since his retirement.

It was axiomatic to its critics that the Warren Court was a left-leaning instrument undermining the country and rendering impossible the task of law and order — and the irony was that Warren, when appointed to the court by President Dwight Eisenhower, was expected to be a conservative influence.

He was a living symbol of the theory that men appointed to that august body somehow undergo a kind of conversion in politics and philosophy after sitting in those historic robes, and Warren — to be sure — surprised a lot of people.

The furor over Warren waned quickly after his retirement five years ago, and the view of his supporters — that he was one of the great chief justices and one of the great champions of the ordinary citizen — has gained sway in hindsight.

The highest praise for him now is that above all he cherished fairness and that for which he was appointed to the bench — justice.

Perhaps the major achievement of the court during Warren's 16-year tenure was Brown vs. the Board of Education, the 1954 unanimous decision outlawing segregated schools and setting in motion a generation of gains in equal rights. It fit every definition of a landmark decision, touching off an historic chain of events in the nation and influencing the national mood.

Warren himself, however, said in later years the most significant ruling was the 1962 "one man, one vote" decision giving federal courts jurisdiction over state legislative reapportionment.

Warren also headed the commission that investigated the assassination of President John F. Kennedy and determined that Lee Harvey Oswald, acting alone, killed Kennedy.

President Nixon, who opposed many of the Warren Court's decisions expanding the rights of criminal suspects, said Warren was "an articulate spokesman for the ideals he cherished. He did not invite controversy but neither did he shun it; he fulfilled his duty as he saw it."

Warren, whose career in public life spanned 50 years until his retirement in 1969, was a crime-fighting district attorney of Alameda County, Calif., state attorney general, three-term governor and Republican vice presidential candidate in 1948. From 1936 to 1952 Warren harbored presidential ambitions. He was appointed chief justice by President Eisenhower in 1953, replacing Fred M. Vinson.

Upon leaving the court, Warren said, "I would like the court throughout its history to be remembered as a court of the people."

The controversies surrounding the civil rights, voting rights and civil liberties cases between 1953 and 1969 made Warren an opponent of judicial and political conservatives and an enemy of the far right, especially the John Birch Society. Billboards throughout the country trumpeted the slogan, "Impeach Earl Warren."

He answered criticism, however, by saying: "A man whether he is a Communist, a Fascist or a Ku Klux Klanner, or whatever it might be, is entitled to have his rights protected in the courtroom."

THE HISTORIC career of Chief Justice Earl Warren included the swearing in of three Presidents — John F. Kennedy (top) in 1961, Lyndon B. Johnson (c) in 1965 and Richard M. Nixon (bottom) in 1969.

Cowboy won't be thrown off the title trail

by BARRY SIGALE

When Ken Felten puts on his black hat, red shirt, bandolier boots and spurs and blue chaps with white trim and fringe he looks more like a seasoned bull rider from Oklahoma or Texas than a 20-year-old from Buffalo Grove aspiring to be a professional cowboy.

But there he is, a wiry 5-foot-9-inch, 130-pounder, holding on to a 1,000-plus-pound bull that's jumping, kicking, spinning around in violent turmoil. Felten's right arm is flailing in the air for balance, his blunt spurs digging into the animal's flesh to keep from getting thrown off and stopped on. It is better for him to get off the bull on his own terms.

Tonight, at the Wauconda Rodeo (usually a standing room only Friday through Sunday event), Felten again will try to regain some of his early form when, as a part-time bull rider at 18, he first began to earn money in return for all the hard knocks he was taking in arenas across the county.

It wasn't lot of money in the winter of '72, about $300 for placing second and third in four different rodeos, but it nourished his desire to compete and win more money and say, "I'll win the World (championship) some day."

FELTON, A card-carrying member of the International Rodeo Assn., wasn't born with rodeo blood but through a series of events became interested in the rugged sport and vows to make it his life's work.

Interested in horses, he bought an untrained animal, full of life and bucking for its freedom. Felten broke in the horse, then enrolled in a school so he could practice on more horses. At the suggestion of a friend he entered his first bull ride competition and missed making money by a slim margin. An observer told him he had potential and to buy a bull rope and to rodeo full-time.

The Wheeling High School graduate said he first competed because of the satisfaction that went along with riding through a bull's snort gyrations for the eight-second requirement, "but then I figured I could make money doing it."

WHEN HE LEFT high school, Felten worked for the Buffalo Grove Public Works Dept., while going to rodeos on weekends. Last year he quit his job to work part-time for the village's park district so he could devote more time to the bulls. Because of the expenses involved he works only as a means to continue to rodeo. He also lives at home to save money.

"It takes a lot of money to go (the average entry fee is $20 plus gasoline and motel bills), he said. "If you're not beaten 'em regularly it gets pretty expensive."

To say the least, Felten is not "beaten 'em regularly" or even at all this year. He hasn't returned to his more successful efforts of two years ago. Since then injuries — cracked ribs, cracked vertebrae, injured kidneys and legs and other assorted ailments — have slowed him. He went to only six rodeos last year, but has competed in 15 already in 1974.

"I was undecided (after the injuries) if it was really worth it. I didn't know if I wanted to go through that again." But he resumed his career. "I saved my money this year. I have the desire now to win more than ever."

FELTEN IS optimistic about his future (he still considers himself a rookie bull rider), though he hasn't won any money this year. "You rank yourself on how much money you've won," he said. "So far this year I haven't won a dime. I haven't broken the ice, yet. But I know what it takes to win. I just have to put it together."

RIDE 'EM COWBOY! Ken Felten of Buffalo Grove, at 20 years old already an experienced bull rider, competes tonight in the Wauconda Rodeo. One of only a handful of cowboys from the Chicago suburbs, Felten, at 5 feet 9, 130 pounds, is considered small for a bull rider.

Bull riding is a science, according to Felten, and as such he spends a lot of time psyching himself before a rodeo. Since the bull he is to ride is determined by a pre-rodeo draw he must find out the personal characteristics of the bull and how it reacts in the arena.

"Then I program my mind. I plan a strategy on how I'm going to ride. I go over it several times. I picture myself riding all eight seconds. I have to have all positive thoughts running through my mind. You have to believe you can ride 'em."

"The hard part about riding bulls," Felten said, "is matching their moves. Reaction is more important than brute strength. There's no way you can outlast a 1,000 pound bull. You've got to boogie with them."

AS IF FELTEN needed any more incentive, last year's all around IRA champion earned more than $27,000 (at between $200 and $1,000 an event), combining his talents in steer wrestling and calf and team roping. Felten will concentrate on saddle bronc riding as his second event when he masters bull riding because it takes more than one event to earn enough money to win the championship.

But it all boils down to one thing, said Felten, if a cowboy is to be successful. "You have to defeat the animal," he said. "before you can defeat the cowboys."

House kills motion to halt inquiry rule

From Roll Call Report
Following is a summary of key votes cast by members of the Illinois Congressional delegation June 27 - July 3.
Included in the summary are votes by Illinois' two senators, Republican Charles H. Percy and Democrat Adlai E. Stevenson III, and Northwest suburban congressmen Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, and Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th.

House
IMPEACHMENT: A motion to suspend a House rule that guarantees each member of the House Judiciary Committee at least five minutes for interrogating witnesses at the committee's impeachment inquiry, rejected 207 for to 140 against, with two-thirds majority required.

In rejecting the motion, the House voted to grant five minutes to each member of the committee to question each witness.

Supporters argued that suspending the five-minute rule would have speeded the impeachment inquiry.

Opponents argued that the House should not subvert the rights of committee members simply to expedite the inquiry.

The vote was viewed as an early but far from conclusive test of impeachment sentiment. Retaining the five-minute rule, some members felt, would aid the President's effort to vindicate himself.

Others: Ralph Metcalfe, D-1st; Morgan Murphy, D-2nd; Cardiss Collins, D-5th; Sidney Yates, D-9th; Frank Annunzio, D-11th; Robert McClory, R-13th; John Anderson, R-16th; Thomas Rallsback, R-19th; George Shipley, D-22nd, and Melvin Price, D-23rd, voted yes.

Edward Derwinski, R-4th; Harold Collier, R-8th; George O'Brien, R-17th; Robert Michel, R-18th; Paul Findley, R-20th, and Edward Madigan, R-21st, voted no.

Robert Hanrahan, R-3rd; John Kluczynski, D-5th; Dan Rostenkowski, D-8th; John Erlenborn, R-14th; Leslie Arends, R-15th, and Kenneth Gray, D-24th, did not vote.

COMMITTEE REFORM: A motion to bring to the floor House Resolution 988, a resolution to reform the House committee structure, tabled 242 - 163.

House Resolution 988 was sidetracked several weeks ago by a secret vote of the House Democratic Caucus. In moving to table the motion to force consideration, the House voted to continue delaying a major overhaul of committee jurisdictions. The last major restructuring was approved in 1946.

The resolution would eliminate overlapping jurisdictions of the 21 standing committees. In 1973, for example, 14 committees conducted hearings on energy-related matters.

Those voting to table argued that the move was out of order and violative of House procedures. Those voting against wanted to force the House to consider the reforms.

Crane ..... No
Young ..... No

Metcalfe, Murphy, Derwinski, Kluczynski, Collier, Collins, Rostenkowski, Yates, Annunzio, Arends, Shipley and Price voted Yes.

Hanrahan, McClory, Erlenborn, Anderson, O'Brien, Michel, Rallsback and Findley voted No.

Madigan and Gray did not vote.

ABORTIONS: An amendment to prevent the use of federal funds for abortions, family planning and contraception, rejected 247-123.

In rejecting the amendment, the House voted to continue federal programs that support family planning and to provide Medicaid to poor women seeking abortions.

Supporters argued that the unborn's right-to-life must be protected. Opponents argued that the amendment would discriminate against the poor and destroy successful family-planning programs.

Crane ..... Yes
Young ..... No

Hanrahan, Derwinski, Annunzio, Erlenborn, O'Brien, Price and Gray voted yes.

Metcalfe, Murphy, Collins, Yates, McClory, Arends, Anderson, Michel, Rallsback, Findley and Shipley voted no. Kluczynski, Collier, Rostenkowski and Madigan did not vote.

WORK SAFETY: An amendment to exempt small businesses — those with 25 or fewer employees — from enforced compliance with the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970, passed 201 - 194.

The amendment's effect is to give small businesses and farmers more time to comply with the work-safety standards established in the 1970 safety act.

Supporters argued that the added time will allow Congress to eliminate flaws in the enforcement provisions of the safety standards.

Opponents said that small businesses should be forced to comply because they have the worst work-safety records.

Crane ..... Yes
Young ..... Yes

Senate

MEDICAL RESEARCH: A conference report safeguarding the rights of human subjects of biomedical research passed 72 - 14. The bill creates a commission to implement the safeguards and provides federal loans to needy medical researchers.

The safeguards are designed to prevent abuses such as occurred in syphilis studies in Tuskegee, Ala., where in the name of medical research syphilitic persons were denied treatment.

Opponents argued that the safeguards are too weak because they do not cover subjects whose religious beliefs might be abused and do not prevent research on live fetuses.

Percy ..... Yes
Stevenson ..... Yes

Hanrahan, Derwinski, Collier, McClory, Arends, O'Brien, Findley and Shipley voted yes.

Crane seeks to rescind auto pollution plan

Calling it "arbitrary and capricious," U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, has called for rescinding of a federal Environmental Protection Agency order for mandatory emissions testing of all suburban Cook County automobiles by 1975.

Crane said the "preposterous ruling" would apply to 1.6 million suburban automobiles at a cost of approximately $3.5 million, and would result in only a 1 per cent reduction in air pollution in the Chicago Loop, at which the order is aimed.

"Only a tiny percentage of suburban residents ever drive to work in Chicago's Central Business District," said Crane, "and yet EPA proposes to force all suburban residents to mandatory testing of their vehicles to be paid in the form of fees or taxes."

Crane said the EPA order was based on 1971 traffic studies that are now out of date because of reduced traffic rates caused by higher gasoline prices. He also said the order overlooks the fact that in 1975 new cars will be equipped with catalytic converters.

The congressman also charged that the EPA has refused to consider an alternate requirement proposed by Cook County authorities that commercial vehicles be equipped with catalytic converters. That alone, he said, would bring the Loop within Clean Air Standards.

Crane said the 1 per cent reduction in pollution to be achieved by mandatory auto testing is the EPA's own estimate, but the Cook County Environmental Control Department estimates the reduction at only one-half that.

When you want to eat out

Sunday brunch may be best buy

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Bored on Sunday? Not enough to do? Gather your family or friends and sample the entrees of special Sunday brunches offered by restaurants in the area.

Brunch on Sunday is becoming increasingly popular and I suspect it's because breakfast as a main meal is too often overlooked . . . and more important, food prices have soared. That makes eating out expensive, especially for the whole family.

Sunday brunch, however, is one of the least costly ways of dining out regularly. With all you can eat, you know you'll get your money's worth and maybe a tummyache if you're not careful to keep track of the number of times you fill your plate.

And if by chance a sudden rain ruined a golf or tennis outing for the day, allow your disappointment to evaporate in bubbles. Champagne is served with many of the brunches.

Listed below is a selection of Sunday brunches available throughout the northwest suburbs. Try a different one every week. It's habit-forming.

ALLGAUER'S FIRESIDE, 2855 Milwaukee Ave., Northbrook (immediately past the intersection of Milwaukee Avenue and River Road). Menu includes a choice of fresh fruit cup, tomato or orange juice; selection of cheeses, hard rolls and coffee cakes; scrambled eggs, bacon, sausage. Hot dishes change weekly and might include beef stroganoff, chicken a la king or fresh perch. Also baked apples and rice. All you can eat. Adults, $4.25; children $3.25. Hours: 11 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

ARLINGTON INN, 948 E. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights. Included on the menu are scrambled eggs, bacon, ham, sausage, barbecued ribs, American fries, juice, sweet rolls and toast. A complimentary Bloody Mary is served after noon. All you can eat. Adults, $2.95; children, $2. Hours: 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

ARLINGTON PARK TOWERS (Carousel Room), Euclid Avenue and Hohlwing Road, Arlington Heights. Plenty from which to choose. Scrambled eggs, sausage, ham, bacon, cereal, sweet rolls, muffins are served beginning at 7 a.m. From 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. casserole items are added including beef stew, chicken a la king, vegetables, hash, lox and bagels. All you can eat. Adults, $3.75; children under 12 half price; children under 3 are free.

The hotel also offers an evening candlelight supper, 5-9 p.m. Featured as main entrees which vary weekly are round of beef, chicken, whole ham, pepper steak, chop suey, lasagne, assortment of salads, vegetables and desserts. All you can eat. Adults, $3.75; children under 12 half price; children under 3 free.

BLACK FOX, 3405 Algonquin Road, in the Rolling Meadows Holiday Inn. Basket of sweet rolls, homemade blueberry muffins and baking powder biscuits given to each table. Choice of fresh fruit cup or juice. Main menu items are Eggs Benedict, capon, hash or French toast. Prices vary according to entree, $2.50 to $3.50. Children's plates are available. ## Dom DeLuise: more old friend than celebrity

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Dom DeLuise was late for lunch. But any mounting anxiety on my part was squelched when the door to the Horseshoe Club at Arlington Park Towers unexpectedly opened and a familiar faced man with balding round head and small suitcase in hand charged through the entrance, uttering several "Oh's" while glancing quizzically in every direction.

"Hey, I'm over here," I came to his aid.

It wasn't a case of catering to the whims of a celebrity but rather listening to an old friend apologize profusely for his tardiness due to unavoidable circumstances and delays.

He had been in Chicago, he said, scouting around for just the right outfit to wear for his role in "Luv," now playing at Arlington Park Theatre.

No, IT WASN'T something dashing he needed. Rather, he had spent the morning trying on second-hand suits at local thrift shops.

"And it's great!" he exclaimed, quickly scanning the menu. "I finally found a super old pair of tapered pants that will be just perfect for the role."

Making a whole-hearted attempt to follow some sort of diet (actors like to start each new show in tip-top shape), DeLuise ordered chilled salmon, but couldn't resist the lentil soup of the day and ended up eating everything on his plate including a huge mound of cole slaw.

"Now see what I did. And that was all loaded with mayonnaise."

The comedian, who right now is most familiar to television viewing audiences for his series "Lotsa Luck," exhibits a natural exuberance that could easily be part of what he likes to label his "peasant personality."

"I THINK THAT'S important in today's world, don't you? That you have a personality that is approachable?"

DeLuise's likable, lovable manner and amusing openness keep the conversation flowing no matter what the subject.

I don't doubt he does meet every airplane passenger on all his flights, and when he talks about getting together with his best friends, Mel Brooks and wife Anne Bancroft, you begin to feel a part of the neighborhood and expect to be included the next time the whole gang gathers at Dinah Shore's place for dinner.

"She is a fabulous cook," he attests and then I couldn't help but inquire about the greatly publicized romance. Are things really cooling between Dinah and her centerfold beau, Burt Reynolds? Not in the least he feels.

"I CAN ONLY TELL you what I notice when I see them together. He has the utmost consideration for her and she is so very much aware of him."

"Lotsa Luck" has been cancelled though DeLuise doesn't seem to care.

"The series really did help my career. After doing too many variety shows and silly five-minute sketches, people begin to wonder if you really can act. And after awhile you begin to wonder yourself . . . can I really act?"

"The series proved that, though I'm not disappointed it has been cancelled, I have too many other things right now to do."

"This play and I are a good marriage," he said concerning "Luv." "I'm not very good for a drawing room comedy nor that Donna Reed kind of thing . . . you know, good morning dear. How are you? Bye, I'm going off to work now."

"I'm most comfortable when someone draws a gun on me, puts me in some sort of danger where I have to react . . . or rapes me. I just said that last one to see if anyone was listening," he chuckled, smiling at two nearby waitresses.

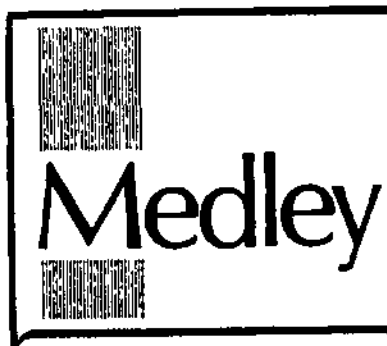

AFTER A FIVE-WEEK engagement at Arlington Park Theatre Dom DeLuise will finish out the summer with the same play and cast, Joyce Van Patten and Bill McCutcheon, in three different Michigan playhouses.

It is a play he very much likes, having already toured with it seven years ago opposite Mickey Rooney and Joan Rivers.

After that . . . it is difficult to say.

"My dream is to have Mel Brooks write a movie just for me."

DeLuise greatly admires the comedy writer who he feels is able to tickle people genuinely with a humorous dig at the human side of life that everyone can appreciate.

His wife, Carol Arthur, whom Dom met while both were doing the musical review, "Mixed Company," appears as the school teacher in Brooks' celebrated "Blazing Saddles," now playing in the area. So did Dom DeLuise, who had a bit part at the tail end. This all led to a general reminiscing about the more hilarious scenes from the movie which he both agreed was "tremendous."

IN HIS SPARE TIME DeLuise needlepoints and to indicate just how involved he is, he pulled out one small half-finished piece from his suitcase.

"I'm never without it," he said. "In fact I always pack one small suitcase of just needlepoint wherever I go."

Strictly a cross stitcher (though he often designs or traces his own patterns), DeLuise maintains needlepointing is a great release for all his nervous energy.

"Dinah got me going. No," he corrected himself. "You want the real story for America to know? This is how it happened. I had to be on a train once for two and a half days and I took a small piece of needlepoint to work on. I finished it coming and going."

"I took it with me to show when I was a guest on the Dinah Shore show which is a silly thing to do anyhow . . . show the first piece of needlepoint you ever do."

MISS SHORE supplied him with several more kits and DeLuise has been needlepointing ever since. His second piece was a lion because he and his wife are both Lions.

DeLuise, though happy about being near Chicago, a city in which he has never performed before, is still "torn" over being separated from his three sons, Peter, Michael and David, ages 7, 5 and 3.

His dog, cat, tropical fish, parakeet and rabbit round out the household.

A Brooklynite who gave up New York for the sunny west coast, DeLuise enjoys California very much.

"I like it because I like my vegetable garden. I simply love picking my zucchini."

Woodcarving preacher prefers the rural life

by TOM TIEDE

(Sixth in a series)

Until a few years ago, the Rev. Francis Ihrman was a young man on his way up in the Presbyterian church. Hard work, hustle, some clerical politics — he was going places. But no more.

Today the minister is, by his own request, assigned to one of the smallest and poorest congregations in the Presbyterian chain, the bottom of the ladder. Some might say the Siberia of the sectarian world: Terra Alta, W. Va., pop. 1,504, including 92 Presbyterians "on a good Sunday."

Reason: woodcarving. "I got tired of the rat race," Ihrman says. "I felt there must be something better than the usual series of bigger and bigger congregations, bigger and bigger problems." He says he began reading The Whole Earth Catalogue, developed a yen to "get back to the real things in life," and then one day carved a crude powderhorn, to pass the time, which changed his life.

THE POWDERHORN led to the acquisition of tools, which began a search for carving knowledge, which developed at length into a family decision which in its simplest form was to flee the cities and go someplace to whittle.

Ihrman requested transfer to the "temple-making ministry," a Presbyterian category of self-supporting clergy work associated with the memory of St. Paul. Thus his wood carving is no longer merely a spiritual pastime; since he now earns below minimum clergy salary, he carves to supplement his income. He has established a craft shop down the road from his church ("actually it's a refurbished gas station") where he sells his wares for up to $300.

Ethetically, he is still a novice in his craft. Woodcarving has never been a popular trade in America, as iron mongering or tinmithing, thus there is only a small well of expert experience from which a newcomer can draw.

Besides, Rev. Ihrman has the most difficult kind of carving as his specialty: deep bas relief, etched out scenes on wood backgrounds, an ancient art in other parts of the world, notably Asia, but rarely mastered in this nation.

YET DESPITE inexperience the minister has the proper philosophy. He does it the way it should be done, not with modern power conveniences, but totally by hand. He uses none but antique wood — scouring the West Virginia countryside for old butterwood or chestnut, usually found now as barn siding.

Joining the planks to form plaque-width working surfaces, he takes care with grain and glue to achieve a solid, one-piece look. He draws his patterns from early American favorites such as spread eagles, or imaginative originals such as mice peeking out of holes. His tools also are old and authentic. "Years ago the automobile manufacturers used to carve their new models out of wood. My tools were used for that purpose."

While lacking flair, the effect of Ihrman's finished product is pleasing. He digs into his wood as much as an inch and his figures — "everything from nudes to birds" — have dimension and character. His work is not as intricate as it might be, but it is unusual because it is so seldom done in America today.

IHRMAN KNOWS a couple of other carvers in West Virginia, "but they do statues, not deep bas." The one place such work does proliferate is on the walls of furniture store showrooms, but such is atrocious claptrap cut by machines.

Ihrman's forte is the feeling he carves into his pictures. It is as fundamental as the beetle holes in his chestnut blocks. And it is recognized and appreciated by his community fellows. Newcomers are rarely accepted in small Appalachian towns, not easily anyway, but the Reverend's personality and sentimentality fit in well.

He surrounds himself with things of the past — old wood burning stoves, as example. He busies himself with things of the soil — he owns several acres for farming. And just as the old-timers do here he spends much of his time in quiet, tidy conversation, kicking the earth with his toe, hitching up his jeans, nodding his head. In short, he lives slowly and openly.

BECAUSE OF his personal commitment to the basics of rural life, Rev. Ihrman is able to juggle his dissimilar vocations to the liking of the locals. He does his ministering in the morning — "The other day a fellow came in who wanted to kill himself" — and his carving in the afternoon. There seems no open resentment that he's not a full-time preacher.

And if somebody does occasionally wonder about the propriety of this artisan cleric, Ihrman says that it's all in how one interprets the Bible: "A lot of people think Jesus was a carpenter — I prefer to think of him as a carver of wood."

Decorative dolls may still be found at reasonable price

The small half dolls in the foreground of the picture are made of glazed china. These were used, around the turn of the century, to top many household items such as pincushions, whisk brooms, powder puffs, etc. The small holes in the flanges were the means by which they were sewn to the bases of the utility article.

Today, such dolls are very collectible and bring much more than their original price tags of a quarter or half dollar. Such dolls were made in other materials, such as papier mache, wood, composition, plaster, wax or bisque, but the glazed china are by far the more plentiful. They have charming detail, delicate coloring, and quite carefully modeled features. The painting is even, with rosy tints on cheeks and a luster color on clothing and hair. The modeled hair and hats show fashions of the late 1700s, but the dolls, of course, are no more than 75 to 80 years old. Some are stamped "Germany" on the base, but one, the whole boy doll in the center, is "Made in Japan." Several such china half dolls have bald pates which were made to bear a mohair wig, but often the little wigs are missing. Most have stationary arms, but a few have movable, and some have separate legs which were attached to the bottom of the article for which the doll served as handle.

MUCH OLDER ARE the dolls shown in the background. At the left is an eight-inch German bisque doll with molded blonde sausage curls and the original dimity dress. She has a kid body, china feet with boots painted on them, and china hands. She and her companion, a five-inch black modeled hair "Mary Lincoln" doll, also in her original dress, date from about 1860. Mary Lincoln has a cotton stuffed body, china feet and hands, and sits on a china sofa which is "Made in Japan" and dates from the 1920s.

Such small half and whole dolls are most desirable as collectibles, and may be still found at quite reasonable prices. The half dolls should cost about $6, and the older dolls, in the neighborhood of $20. The girl in this family who recently graduated from high school has her miniature dolls packed away now, but in a few years, they may become the favorite collection of a grandchild, and should have increased in value, as most antiques seem to do. These dolls seem to be more plentiful than larger ones, perhaps for the reason that they were more decorative than used for playthings, and as such, were less subject to breakage.

IF YOU HAVE a question, I will try to answer it by mail, and those of general interest will be printed in the column. This week, Mrs. D.V.M. wishes to know about the art work of such early 20th century artists as Charles Dana Gibson, Harrison Fischer, Howard Chandler Christy and Wallace Nutting. Research is being done on these and will appear in a future column. You may write to Grace Carolyn Dahlberg, in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

Book shows another side to flag-wavers of DAR

"THE DAUGHTERS," by PEGGY ANDERSON
St. Martin's Press, $10

Reactionary and racist. Little old ladies in old-fashioned dresses and tri-cornered hats, waving the flag against anything more liberal than women in pantsuits. This is what comes to mind when you mention DAR.

And why not? The Daughters of the American Revolution, the largest hereditary patriotic organization in the country, is famous for its stands against the Peace Corps, the United Nations, UNICEF Christmas cards and fluoridated water. More recently, the group worried that agents of the Marxist-Socialist-Communists were seeking to win the hearts and minds of the American youth through rock festivals.

Like the rest of the country who are not DAR members, Peggy Anderson knew little of the group when she started her book. She's gone a long way since then. While making no excuses for the DAR, she gives a good readable account of the other side of the story.

THE DAR, WITH roots back in 1805, now has 200,000 members, dedicated to serving patriotism. After interviewing old and young alike, Anderson discovered that the only thing they all have in common are ancestors who fought or helped someone fight for American independence. Oh yes, and the fact they bothered to prove it.

The author talks to daughters like Elizabeth Duff, who helped take over the administration center at Northwestern University during the final throes of student protest. And members like Carol Glennon, who believes the government should bring back the electric chair, throw anyone who steals anything in jail, and that we don't need juries.

Anderson goes into depth to explain how the DAR got its reputation for being racist when the group refused to let black singer Marian Anderson sing in DAR's Constitution Hall in 1939. She shows that the reputation, at least back then, was warranted.

AND SHE TALKS about race in the present, and the daughters she interviewed who would like to see a black member in the DAR if only she could prove proper lineage.

In many ways, Anderson is critical of the Daughters. She says they deserve their bad image. Partly because it is warranted, and partly because the group has done nothing to correct it. Many times, the DAR seems like any other women's club with members interested in card parties, socializing, pageantry and little else. She comments on the fact that leaders always know best; the other Daughters rarely question.

The book stall

"Yeoman service is the chief characteristic of membership for the vast majority of the Daughters," she writes.

But Anderson has hope for the DAR. Some of its members are beginning to question past policies, to promote change from within. There is evidence the status quo is not so sacrosanct. And, as Anderson points out, if there were anytime for the DAR to show the country a better image, the upcoming Bicentennial is that time.

"THE COMING CREDIT COLLAPSE," by ALEXANDER PARIS

Arlington House Publishers, $8.95

While public attention is focused on inflation and its effect on the family budget, it is only an indication of greater economic problems to come in the 1970s. Are we ready for financial panic, recessions and deflation? According to author Alexander Paris, author of "The Coming Credit Collapse" they are the future return on 30 years of financial abuse.

Paris offers some straight talk about excessive government spending and its effects on the economy. Government's infectious habit of pulling money from thin air has prompted banks and corporations and many consumers to follow suit. You've got no money today? Borrow and worry about paying off the loan at a high cost tomorrow.

The problem with this easy money is that it causes interest rates and overall inflation to settle out at continuously higher levels. And it means that the ups and downs of the economy are going to hit the overextended borrower hard. So hard that we will likely go through some painful readjustments in the next several years, Paris believes.

HOW WILL IT all end? Paris offers three scenarios which may follow the cancerous spread of illiquidity. First, we could experience financial panic — loss of confidence in banks and the government which in its final throes becomes a "supercrunch." Second, elected officials, the Federal Reserve Board and the pub-

Dylan live album year's best so far

What many have billed as the concert tour of the decade — Bob Dylan's triumphant return to live performing last winter — now has a suitable souvenir in a two-record album culled from those live performances.

The album, "Before the Flood" (Asylum records), is not just for the thousands who were lucky enough to see Dylan to remember the concerts by, however. It is an opportunity also for those who missed Dylan live to get some idea of what the concerts were like.

The album is the best live album issued so far this year and I have to go back to 1972's "Rock of Ages" by the Band (Capitol records) to find a comparable live album. Certainly, this comes as no surprise as it was the very same Band who backed Dylan both on his tour and the live Dylan album. Certainly, this comes as no surprise as it was the very same Band who backed Dylan both on his tour and the live Dylan album.

DYLAN'S VOICE has matured, as has his manner in approaching a song. The differences in tone and word emphasis are momentarily disconcerting, but it soon becomes evident that Dylan is working with his material, not just singing the old songs one more time.

Thus, just through the manner of his singing, Dylan often puts more life, more vitality into his well-known songs. "Lay Lady Lay" is an example of how a lighter song is given more zest. "Knockin' On Heaven's Door" (from the "Pat Garrett" soundtrack and the most recently written song included here) is perhaps the best example as the song takes on real power and becomes a highlight of the album.

TOGETHER DYLAN and the Band do 10 songs. Alone, Dylan has three acoustic numbers, including a very fine "It's Alright Ma (I'm Only Bleeding)," and the Band does eight songs, including several of its hits. As usual the Band is super together in its playing. Throughout the album, the keyboard work of both Garth Hudson and Richard Manuel shines and Robbie Robertson is his usual fine self on guitar. The best Band only numbers are "Up On Cripple Creek," "The Weight" and a version of Dylan's "I Shall Be Released."

The album ends on a tremendously high note with simply stunning versions of "Highway 61 Revisited," "Like a Rolling Stone" and "Blowin' in the Wind." With the crowd singing and screaming along, "Like a Rolling Stone" becomes almost an emotional experience just to listen to. It should become a classic piece of recorded music history. And leave it to Dylan to infuse new life into the well worked over (by others) "Blowin' in the Wind."

As the album draws to a close, I got the impression it will stand as a brilliant summation of Dylan's career to date. It also made me wonder what greatness lies ahead.

BILL WYMAN SAID he was worried because his first solo album would be judged against the music of the Rolling Stones, the "world's greatest rock band" and for whom he regularly plays bass.

No need to worry, Bill. Your solo album, "Monkey Grip" (Rolling Stones records), is fine and indeed worthy of a member of the Stones.

In "Monkey Grip," Wyman chose to "come up with an album of the kind of music I enjoy listening to at home." Since his tastes run to old blues, '50s rock, rhythm 'n' blues, hillbilly and Cajun music, that's what Wyman offers. "I Wanna Get Me a Gun" is a bit of New Orleans sound with Dr. John on piano and Betty Wright walling the back-up vocal. Yet, "Pussy" is country with fiddle and banjo.

The '50s sound comes in on "Monkey Grip" which is a bit of fun, featuring a catchy chorus, percussion break and extended coda. The song shows, as do most the others, that Wyman is a pretty good songwriter. As he does not have great vocal strength, Wyman blends his singing in with the fine musicianship and backing vocals. Some of the musicians who also help out include Leon Russell, Jo Lala, Dallas Taylor, Lowell George, Danny Kootch and Byron Berline.

THE LIGHTWEIGHT crown of British rock is fast being earned by the South-land Brothers and Quiver, the union of two bands determined to find the perfect three-minute song.

Quiver, as the band is called for short, has been mainly a singles band, producing songs like "Dream Kid," which also happens to be the name of its second album on Island records. The album demonstrates the band can do more than make good singles. It makes good albums now too.

Throughout, the music is bright, well played and features pleasant harmony singing. "You and Me," "I Hear Thunder" and "Bad Loser" are three nice songs. Better than that though are "Maker" (with its "I Am the Walrus" undertone) and "Champion the Underdog." A closing trilogy also shines. America needs more Quiver — especially on our AM car radios.

Art at the Market

Arlington Heights Art Guild is sponsoring its third annual Art at the Market Show this Sunday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., rain or shine. The art fair is being held at the Arlington Market, Kensington at Dryden in Arlington Heights.

Winners in various art categories will receive cash awards and ribbons. Judging the show are Estelle Fedelle and George Rocheleau, both artists and instructors.

A few covered spaces are still available for exhibitors. Further information, 299-6921.

Outdoor concert

The third annual community orchestra pops concert and buffet dinner are Monday outdoors at Harper College.

The buffet will be served at 6 p.m. by Harper Food Service. Charges are $1.75 for adults and $1.25 for children under 12. Harper students and staff are admitted free with a summer ID.

The concert by the Harper College Community Orchestra will begin at 7 p.m. There is no admission charge for it. Everyone is invited to attend the concert whether or not they come for dinner.

In case of bad weather, dinner and concert will be moved into the college center. Otherwise the festivities are being held behind Building A.

Book Stall

He could reach mass consciousness for reform which results in a cutback of government spending and a plan to reduce the expansion of credit. The third and most likely outcome is "business as usual," Paris suggests. This will involve continued credit expansion, patchwork efforts to curb inflation, and an eventual "supercrunch."

Advice to the investor is also offered by Paris, an investment counselor, in the form of a 13-point checklist of stocks to avoid.

"THE SALMON: THEIR FIGHT FOR SURVIVAL"

Houghton-Mifflin, $15

This is more than you ever wanted to know about the salmon, but it includes the distastefully absorbing story of man's greed in killing them along with exploring the ways in which the salmon may yet be saved. Again, also, there's the collision course of technology and nature.

O'Brien a narrator

Pat O'Brien has been set to host and narrate the "When Movies Were Young" syndicated television film series beginning in October.

Godfather, Part III

Robby Benson, 18, has been signed by Francis Ford Coppola to play Al Pacino's son in Paramount's "The Godfather, Part III."

Poker player debuts

Amarillo Slim, who bills himself as the world's champion poker player, will make his motion picture acting debut in a sequence of "California Split."

'I Do! I Do!', one-acts on bill

Guild's theater festival opens tonight

A lyrical piece of propaganda for marriage opens this weekend at Guild Playhouse in Des Plaines, with the first of five performances of the musical "I Do! I Do!"

It will be presented five times through July 28, alternating with an evening of one-act plays in Des Plaines Theatre Guild's Summer Festival of Theatre.

The theater festival is a new and different offering of entertainment on three weekends. Audiences are invited to dress casually, be comfortable and enjoy the musical one night and the three one-act plays the next. Curtain times are 8:30 p.m. on Fridays and Saturdays, 2:30 p.m. for the Sunday matinees on July 14, 21 and 28.

Jim Tuverson of Buffalo Grove and Pat Piper of Arlington Heights are co-stars as Michael and Agnes in "I Do! I Do!," being directed by Michael Sims of Wauconda, with musical direction and accompaniment by Grace Coash of Des Plaines. A. J. Riegler of Des Plaines is assistant to the director, and Jackie Tuverson, assisted by Christine Gyssler of Des Plaines, is in charge of props. Set furnishings are by Betty Kandlbinder of Palatine.

TOM JONES and Harvey Schmidt, who came to fame with their first musical "The Fantasticks," created this accentuation of the positive side of marriage by setting the comedy success "The Fourposter" to music. Jones is responsible for the book and lyrics, and Schmidt for the rollicking tunes. Mary Martin and Robert Preston starred in the original cast.

Tickets at $2.50 each may be bought at the box office or reserved by calling 298-1211. For the combination price of $4.50, playgoers may see both the musical and the evening of one-act plays to be presented July 13, 19, 21 and 27. Guild Playhouse is located at 620 Lee St. in downtown Des Plaines.

Included on this bill of one-acts are "The Chairs" by Eugene Ionesco, "The Zoo Story" by Edward Albee, and "Double Solitaire" by Robert Anderson.

FOUR ACTRESSES usually seen on stage for Des Plaines Theatre Guild are working backstage this summer on the Guild's summer festival. They

Best Off Broadway chooses '1776' to open next season

Best Off Broadway Players are getting a head start on the U.S. Bicentennial Celebration by choosing to begin their 14th season with "1776."

The musical is a tribute to and historical replay of the writing and signing of the Declaration of Independence. The show, to be presented in November, has a male cast of 25 men and only two women.

The women will not be neglected however, for BOB is also producing "Hello Dolly" next spring.

Season tickets and block sale information are available through Fran Pitchford, 392-8633. Audition dates for "1776" will be announced shortly.

MIMI SANTICOLA of Arlington Heights was recently elected president of Best Off Broadway for the 1974-75 season. Vice president is Natalie Ferguson, Hoffman Estates, who will also serve as business manager. Elected to another term as treasurer is Tracy Albert of Barrington, who is sharing the talent bank chairmanship with BOB's new secretary, Jeanne Haight from Lake Zurich.

Other members of the board are Art Creighton of Long Grove, membership chairman; Carmella Gabl of Arlington Heights, ticket chairman; and Fran Pitchford, also of Arlington Heights, producer.

Frank Getz and George Wajla, both of Palatine, are in charge of publicity for the coming season and "Bobserver," the newsletter of the theater group. Larry Peterson of Arlington Heights is handling block sales and Allen Johnson of Hoffman Estates is the member-at-large.

Persons interested in joining BOB should write BOB Players, Box 3, Arlington Heights, 60006.

OIL PAINTINGS By Ferol Stofft are on display through the end of this month in the main lobby of Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge.

Signing her works, Ferol S., the artist has exhibited at a number of local art fairs, at the Park Ridge Federal Savings and Loan Association and various other exhibits. The paintings currently on display focus on still lifes as well as pastoral moods of nature. The works are on sale daily from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m.

A PHOTOGRAPHIC exhibition by Ralph Eugene Meatyard is on display at Oakton Community College in Morton Grove until August.

Meatyard, a photographer of the surrealist school, works in black and white. Posing his subjects in masks, he gives his photographs an atmosphere of unreality. Basic elements of Meatyard's work include rotting farmhouses, mysterious shadows, blurred woodland scenes and hideously masked childlike figures.

The photographs are being shown in the William A. Koehnline Gallery in Building 4.

Artists invited to exhibit

Senior citizens and students under 18 is a new category of entrants added to this year's annual outdoor art fair of the Wheeling-Des Plaines Community Arts League.

The fair is held in conjunction with Wheeling Historical Society's annual Brat and Beer Fest, set for Sunday, Aug. 4, in the parking lot of Wheeling Trust and Savings Bank at Milwaukee Avenue and Dundee Road (Rtes. 45 and 60).

Area artists are invited to exhibit in the show, which is open to both members and non-members of the Community Arts League. There is an $8 fee for non-members which must be accompanied by an entry form, available by calling Barbara Sharp, 537-2123, or Mrs. Richard Westgard, 537-3871. Fee for senior citizens and students under 18 is $5. Students must have an adult sign their form.

FORMS AND fees should be mailed to Mrs. Westgard, 481 Forestway Drive, Buffalo Grove 60090.

Seven special programs for young people are being planned for this year's Ravinia Festival. Saturday morning programs, at 11 a.m., include:

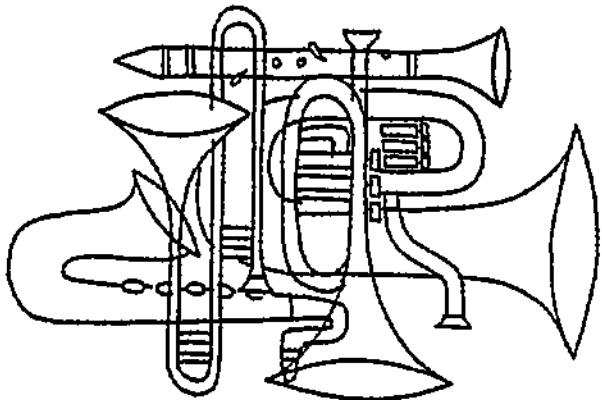

- July 13 - Chicago Symphony Orchestra Brass Ensemble
- July 20 - Valucha, folk singer from Brazil
- July 27 - Philip Hanson, famous storyteller, doing his adaptation of "Huck Finn"
- Aug. 3 - Hootenanny by Ella Jenkins, well known folk singer (in the Pavilion)
- Aug. 10 - "World of Mime" by mime artist T. Daniel giving a lecture/demonstration
- Aug. 17 - Pascual Olivera, Young Spanish dancer.

On Aug. 24 at 2 p.m. there will be a special young people's matinee by the Joffrey Ballet in the Pavilion. Tickets for reserved seats are $7 and $5.

Admission for Saturday morning programs is $1 (child or adult) at the box office. Unless otherwise specified, programs will be in Murray Theatre.

Ravinia Park is in Highland Park, 22 miles north of Chicago. Enter the parking lot from Lake Cook, Green Bay, or Sheridan Road.

For information about these or other Ravinia programs call ST 2-9696 or 273-3500.

Store corn syrup in 'frig'

Dear Dorothy: I've been dying to try a recipe calling for a small amount of corn syrup. But I hate to buy something I use so infrequently that it probably will get moldy. Any way to prevent this from happening? — Julia Hohenberg

A simple remedy which seems to prevent syrup from getting moldy is to turn the bottle upside down (after it's been opened and some of it used) to seal the top and then store it right side up in the refrigerator.

Chances are that with corn syrup on hand you'll find yourself using it in other things like barbecue sauce, glazing ham, in salad dressings and frosting and, if you're the kind that indulges, heavenly pecan pie.

Dear Dorothy: Do you know of a simple trick to keep away chiggers? — Doris Elliott

You might try what Novella O'Brien suggested a few years ago. She made a bag from an old T-shirt, filled it with powdered sulphur, then dusted arms, elbows, wrists, bends of legs, ankles and around the waist.

Having used it regularly, she said she hadn't been bothered in years.

Dear Dorothy: Every time I wash the

Night out

Elegant evening with The Four Lads

by GENIE CAMPBELL

One of the best, most enjoyable and refined shows yet hosted in the TOP OF THE TOWERS opened this week as a part of the hotel's summer salute to the Nifty Fifties.

On center stage are THE FOUR LADS whose smooth, mellow delivery and beautiful harmonizing lend grace and the utmost of elegance to the penthouse dining room.

Baritone FRANK BUSSEI usually leads the four into song and he is joined on stage by tenor JIM ARNOLD, baritone-bass JOHN D'ARCE and the newest of the lads, SIDNEY EDWARDS, who no doubt was just an infant when the original four were cutting gold records. But that doesn't seem to make a difference in the show.

The Four Lads do go way back for such numbers as "My Melancholy Baby" and then follow up with something more contemporary like "McArthur's Park" and "Portrait of My Love."

No doubt most attention is paid to their medley of old hits including "Standing on the Corner," "No, Not Much," "Mementos to Remember" and "You're Nobody 'til Somebody Loves You."

Jim Arnold and John D'Arc clip in a few one liners and glib retorts that put many of the comedy acts seen around Chicago lately to shame.

JIMMY NUZZO and his band play for the show which will continue through July 20. Next up is JOHNNY DESMOND on July 23.

About the only disappointment in the evening was the patrons themselves who were extremely disrespectful and noisy. First, need it be said that people don't choose to dance during a regular floor show? And in these inflationary times, why pay for a dinner and a show if you're not about to listen?

The same happened in the TACK ROOM downstairs during the LINDA MERRILL SHOW, though extra condensation is always more tolerated in a small lounge (it shouldn't be when a show is on).

Linda and her three talented musicians seem to rise above it all, however, with a fast medley of Fats Domino tunes and selections recorded by Neil Diamond. Linda is the lead singer though all three join in harmonizing, the kind not usually heard with lounge combos.

JIM BOOTII is her right-hand man on flute and lead guitar, M. G. RYAN is on organ and piano, and STEVE ONDO plays drums. The group plan to cut their first album under their own label the end of this month. They are playing in the Tack Room through Aug. 17.

BILL JEAN and his magic strings with MAX HODD on piano are featured in the CELEBRITY ROOM of the hotel Sunday through Thursdays beginning at 6 p.m.

The Pinto family, who operate COSMO'S PIZZA in the Westgate Shopping Center in Arlington Heights, recently opened a new Italian restaurant, MAMA DI PINTO'S, in a renovated old Victorian home, 350 S. 8th St., West Dundee, on Route 31 two blocks south of Route 72.

Opening a small place where people can sit down and leisurely enjoy her cooking has always been the dream of Mama Pinto, who oversees the family restaurant consisting of four comfortable furnished rooms that can handle 50

KOKOMO JR., 5-year-old chimp who's been seen on television, is performing in the Grand Court of Woodfield Shopping Center, Golf Road and Rte. 53. He may be seen at noon, 4 and 7 p.m. today and at 11 a.m., 2 and 4 p.m. Saturday along with his trainer and friend, Nick Carado.

Couple met as counselors

When Kathleen Susan McGovern of Mount Prospect served as a counselor in a freshman dorm at Valparaiso (Ind.) University, she met another counselor who was to become her bridegroom.

She and Paul Edmund Reinholdt of Sheboygan, Wis., both now graduates of Valparaiso, were married June 15 in St. Paul Lutheran Church in Mount Prospect. They are making their home in Madison, where Paul is a third year medical student at the University of Wisconsin.

Kathleen is the daughter of Mrs. Ruth Gustafson, 106 S. Louis St., Mount Prospect, and Frank McGovern, Palos Heights, Ill. Her bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Reinholdt of Sheboygan.

THE BRIDE and her only attendant, maid of honor Peggy Gustafson, made their own gowns for the five o'clock candlelight ceremony. Peggy is the bride's sister.

Kathleen made her gown of pink and white seersucker printed in tiny pink roses. With it she wore a white picture hat tied with fabric that matched the dress, and she carried a bouquet of pink roses and daisies, white mums and greenery.

FOR THE DOUBLE ring nuptials Paul chose Gene Kussart of Des Moines, Iowa,

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Reinholdt as his best man. Ushers were the bride's brother, Larry Gustafson, and Robert Kleber, the groom's cousin of Sheboygan.

Seventy guests greeted the bride and groom at a dinner at the Scandia House, Mount Prospect, following the rites.

The newlyweds have delayed a honeymoon while the groom attends medical school. Kathleen is working in Madison while completing work on her master's degree in sociology. She attended Northern Illinois University for the classwork but now has to write her thesis.

She is a '71 graduate of Valparaiso and Paul a '72 graduate. Kathleen attended Prospect High School prior to college.

Theodore Goebberts married 50 years

In the company of their entire family of eight children and most of their bridal party of 50 years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore H. Goebbert of Des Plaines celebrated their golden wedding date on June 10.

The actual ceremony was June 8, 1924, in St. John Lutheran Church on Linne-man Road, Mount Prospect.

Since their marriage the Goebberts have lived in Des Plaines the past 46 years. Although moving several times within that city, their present home is at 660 Van Buren St. Theodore's livelihood was farming for their early years together, but later he became a bookkeeper.

Their golden anniversary celebration started at 11 a.m. with services in Trinity Lutheran Church, Des Plaines, where the couple have worshipped for 40 years. They, their children and families all attended together, hearing a special prayer of thanksgiving by Pastor Bergmann and a solo, "O Perfect Love," by their grandson, Allen Goebbert, who had just the week before graduated from Concordia Seminary in Fort Wayne, Ind.

ALLEN is the son of the Goebberts' first child, Theodore Jr., who now lives in Arlington Heights with his family.

The other children include Mrs. June Gallagher, La Grange; Robert Goebbert, Arlington Heights; Mrs. Margie Davidson, Miles City, Mont.; Mrs. Geraldine Soenksen, Ottawa, Ill.; Harold Goebbert, Arlington Heights; Henry, Des Plaines;

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Goebbert and David, Wenatchee, Wash.

After the church service there was a dinner at Heuer's Restaurant, Rosemont, for the couple, their family and all the living members of their bridal party. Twenty-one of their 22 grandchildren attended as did their one great-grandson.

Maid of honor had been Miss Lucy Zolk of Park Ridge, an aunt of the bride of 50 years ago. She was present at the party along with the bridesmaids: Mrs. Goebbert's sister, Mrs. Mathilda Seegers, Marengo; Mrs. Alvina Boergener, Arlington Heights, the groom's sister; Mrs. Helen Heldemann, Winter Haven, Fla., his cousin; and Mrs. Rose Rowlett, Elgin, the groom's sister.

THOSE AT the party who had served the groom were best man Alfred Goebbert of Arlington Heights, Theodore's brother, and the groomsmen: Walter Goebbert, Palatine, another brother; Henry Boergener, Arlington Heights; and Emil Bloese, Harvard, brother of the bride.

Herman Zolk of Des Plaines, ring bearer for that ceremony long ago, was also present.

After dinner an open house was planned at Trinity Lutheran Church, where 200 guests greeted the couple. Among them was Henry Helms of Elgin, a cousin of Mr. Goebbert who had been one of his groomsmen.

Red Cross offers summer sewing for Christmas

Christmas sewing in mid-summer?

An organization called Citizens 60 Plus of Skokie has already ordered 80 Christmas stockings which members of the organization are sewing and decorating for veterans, according to Frank Eldridge, volunteer production chairman for the North Cook county region of the American Red Cross.

Other organizations such as church groups or service clubs are invited by Eldridge to contact him at University 49000 and order stockings to be distributed at Christmas, not only to veterans but to children in orphanages. Materials and directions for easy-to-stitch stockings will be delivered.

A record total of more than 1,750 Christmas stockings were sewn and decorated by Red Cross volunteers last year. Those for veterans were filled by adults and those for children by school youngsters.

Birth notes

NORTHWEST COMMUNITY

Wussler hopes to get CBS back into the sports game

NEW YORK — CBS, which has been regarded by some critics as being in the basement of television sports coverage, is hoping to change its image by appointing an executive who once covered space shots and national elections.

"He's a real sports buff," said a CBS network spokesman about the appointment of Robert Wussler, who is now a V.P. at Chicago's WBBM-TV.

Wussler, 37, who was named to the post last week, admitted in a telephone interview that he has never set foot in the offices of CBS Sports in New York. And, he added, that the last sporting event he participated in covering was the 1960 Olympics.

SO IT MAY sound absurd that the media barons at CBS would choose a man who has had so little experience with sports coverage, especially to head up an operation that has been behind NBC and ABC.

But, if one analyzes the choice, it seems sound. At least on paper.

"CBS has been successful in daytime programming, in night-programming, in news, but the least successful in sports," Wussler said. "We pioneered many areas of sports coverage such as pro football and golf, but in the past few years we've seemed to have lost our touch. We haven't been aggressive enough and we're a little lackluster.

Wussler's job is definitely cut out for him.

CBS Sports has lost the coverage of the prestigious Kentucky Derby to ABC. CBS had the Derby for more than two decades. Although the network still has contracts for the other two segments of racing's triple crown, the Preakness and the Belmont Stakes, it is expected they will be the subject of intense bidding by ABC and NBC.

IN THE AREAS of professional hockey and basketball, CBS's coverage of these events has been heavily criticized. And, perhaps, the most difficult chore for Wussler will be the handling of his staff, which has been without a leader since William McPhail quit May 9.

Nevertheless, Wussler brings to the new post a wealth of experience gained as a producer for CBS's coverage of Apollo space flights, the Republican and Democratic national conventions, and election night reports.

He also was in charge of the coverage of several presidential trips, including President Nixon's visit to China in 1972. For his coverage of the Apollo 13 flight he won two Emmy awards.

Shelby Lyman on chess

Last-ditch push can mean loss

No one makes a greater effort at chess than Laslo Portisch. After mulling a clear place in the Candidates' Matches by a weak finish in the Petropolis Interzonal, Portisch steeled himself to win a three-way playoff with Pliginskys and Geller and qualify for the Candidates match the hard way.

But needing three wins, he quickly went two down to Petrosian in their quarter-final match. Then, surprisingly, with an admirable showing of fortitude, he wrested two points back from Petrosian to pull even in Game 12.

It is not unusual for last-ditch efforts to fall on the verge of apparent victory. So it was in this case. In the 13th game (with the score tied 2-2), Portisch, not yet unwound from his previous effort, pushed too hard and lost.

He had reached the position in Diagram 1, which objectively offers neither side real winning chances. But Portisch tried to force things with 1... Q-B5, a "clever combination" that shortly backfired. Portisch's reason for this move is logical. He has seen that if white plays 2. PxQ, he can answer with 2... Nxp check; 3. K-N3 and NxQ. Portisch (black) would then be a pawn ahead. Of course white need not play 2. PxQ. But the move 1... Q-B5 threatens 2... Q-K5! with some pressure on the black position.

Tragically, Portisch had not seen far enough ahead. For Petrosian surprised him by in fact answering 1... Q-B5 with the apparently "forbidden" 2. PxQ, which gives up the pawn for what is likely (in Petrosian's estimation) a winning endgame attack.

After 1... Q-B5?; 2. PxQ!, there ensued ... Nxp check; 3. K-N3, NxQ; 4. R-B3, N-N5; (he should have tried 4... N-N7) 5. P-R3, N-R3; 6. P-N4, N-N1; 7. R-B7, P-QR4; and 8. P-N5. (See Diagram 2.)

Diagram 2

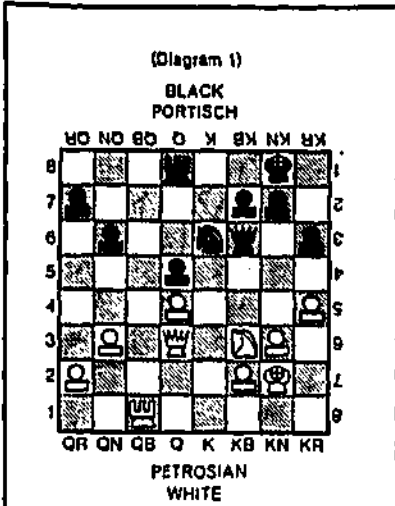

White has used the initiative he gained in exchange for the pawn to fatally paralyze the black pieces. With no counterplay by his opponent to bother him, he hereafter made short shrift of his opponent.

There followed 8... N-Q2; 9. K-KB4, P-R4; 10. N-K5, N-B1; 11. R-N7, P-B3; 12. N-B6 and the win is easy. The black queenside

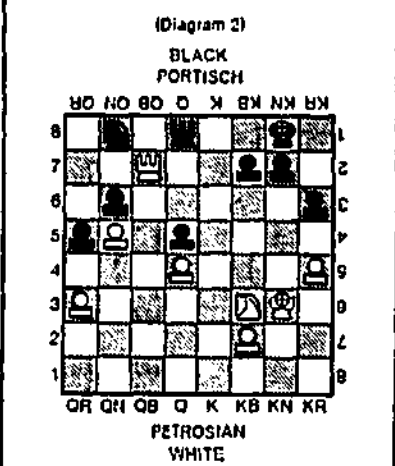

Diagram 3 pawns must fall. (Portisch resigned eight moves later.)

It is interesting to note how black has succumbed. The white rook has sufficiently held up the black knight, rook and king while the white king and knight freely penetrated. In such a situation, black's extra pawn must measure small against the long term gains of the ram-paging white pieces. It is especially true here as black's queenside pawns are weak and the white pawn at N5 has only a short distance for promotion.

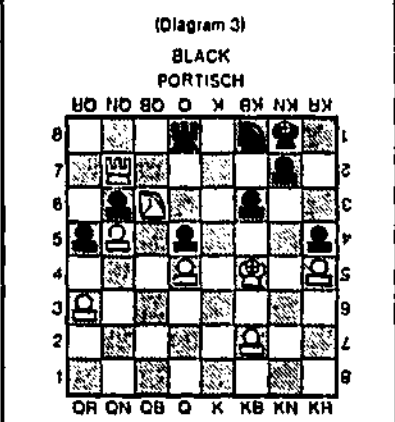

Petrosian's luck in winning this game did not hold in his semifinal match with Black to play and lose?

Black is tied up

Black's pawns fall

Karpov, who demolished him in short order.

West keeps partner unhappy

If you always lead your partner's suit you will keep your partner happy. Furthermore, you will do far better than a man who is always looking around for a surprise lead.

West was one of those lookers-around. He opened the eight of spades!

South went up with dummy's king and played the six of hearts. East won with the ace and could do nothing better than to lead another spade. South won, led a trump and finessed dummy's eight. He had decided that East would not have played the ace of trumps if he didn't have to.

After the eight held, South cashed the queen of trumps, led a club and since one eight-spot finesse had worked he tried another. After that one worked it was a cinch for South to wind up making his contract with an overtrick.

South had really played the hand like a man with second sight, but all the brilliance in the world wouldn't have helped him if West had just opened a diamond and East finessed the jack.

Furthermore, West really had an automatic diamond lead. With four trumps he would want to force South to start ruffing.

Astaire dances one more time

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD — Fred Astaire vowed he would never dance in the movies again, yet there he was on a 26th Century-Fox soundstage tripping the light fantastic.

Instead of Eleanor Powell or Ginger Rogers, his partner was Jennifer Jones.

There were no taps on his shoes and no rat-a-tat-tat rhythm. Fred, age 73, was dancing a demure foxtrot as part of his role in "The Towering Inferno."

Chances were nil that he would break into a buck and wing, samba, cha-cha-cha or even a waltz.

"This is it," he said during a break in the action. "All the dancing I'm going to do. I like straight dramatic roles. I don't have to worry about slippery stages, long dance rehearsals and choreography."

"When I played my first straight role in 'On the Beach' back in 1958 nobody expected me to break into a dance. And everyone will know I'm not going to do a musical number in this picture."

Astaire isn't dancing, but it's not because he isn't up to it physically. He is as slender as always without an ounce of fat on him.

He accepted his cameo role in "The Towering Inferno" because of all the excitement it involves and the star-studded cast — Paul Newman, Steve McQueen, Faye Dunaway, Robert Wagner and a dozen others.

"This is a picture almost everyone wanted to be in," he said, grinning. "I'm having a ball. If I hadn't done this picture I'd be lazy."

ASTAIRE IS ANYTHING but that. He goes to his Beverly Hills office every morning to take care of his correspondence and later oversees his stable of thoroughbred race horses.

While his current work may not be seen on the screen until next year, Fred is on display around the country in "That's Entertainment," the MGM collage of musical hits going back to the 1920s.

"They've got about a half-dozen clips of my numbers in the picture," Fred said. "But there isn't one entire scene that hasn't been edited."

Astaire wasn't critical. He simply stated a fact. Although he is the greatest dancer of his kind ever developed in the United States, he has little use for nostalgia and rarely gives thought to the so-called good old days.

"I ENJOYED 'That's Entertainment,'"

FRED and JENNIFER

ment," seeing faces I'd known. But I have no feeling about the past. I'm not a nostalgia buff.

"And I'm not crazy about discussing the things I did in those movies. I came from the stage. When a play had run its course, it was over and forgotten. I made one movie after another the same way.

"There was no way to guess they would all come back in bunches on a television tube. I'm happy they were successful and people enjoyed those musicals. However, I don't watch them on television because I'm not interested in what I did in the past."

Presbyterian sexist purge is foolish

Are the widely beloved hymns "Faith of Our Fathers" and "Once to Every Man and Nation" in need of revision because of "sex-exclusive language"?

Do the terms "God of our Fathers" and "If a Man is in Christ" — as well as the Nicene Creed really constitute "sexist language"? Why, yes indeed — according to the National Convention Workbook ("Blue Book") of the 2.9 million-member United Presbyterian Church. For this denomination's General Assembly voted in 1971 that "the so-called generic usages of masculine nouns, pronouns and adjectives are no longer acceptable in any church documents."

Accordingly, 16 pages of the current Blue Book is devoted to a Women's Lib-designed purge of the denomination's worship book. The cost of this endeavor is estimated at $110,000 — from the national headquarters income, which since

Religion today

by Rev. Lester Kinsolving

1972 has plummeted 25 per cent from $40 million to a current $30 million.

How the Holy Trinity will emerge from such preposterous Presbyterian foolishness boggles the mind.

CAN WE IMAGINE reciting (with a straight face): "In the name of the Mother, the Daughter, and Miss (whoops) Ms. Holy Ghost." Or: "In the name of the Elderly Person, the Younger Person and the sexless Holy Spirit."

Independent of such massive liturgical imbecility — from a denomination traditionally renowned for scholarship — is that this kind of stuff has already been disdained by one of Women's Lib's theological vanguard, Prof. Mary Daly of Boston College.

She delicately described this Presbyterian effort as "half-assed changes."

Prof. Daly made the following comments at a recent convention of the Religion Newswriters Assn.:

• She corrected St. Paul's ideal of "In Christ there is neither . . . male or female" by announcing, "In Christ, there is only male."

• "For women to seek leadership in the Catholic Church is as absurd as a black seeking leadership in the Ku Klux Klan."

• If you can rape a woman in the street, you can rape the land! . . . Radical feminism is not concerned with an equal slice of the pie but with power.

• "As for my book 'The Church and the Second Sex', almost every page has something with which I now disagree." (Prof. Daly wrote this book only seven years ago — a time period she refers to as "light years ago.")

Prof. Daly accepted this column's vehement apology for having described her recently as "a prominent Catholic theologian." (She continues teaching at the Jesuit-owned Boston College and her recent adoption of radical feminism as a new religion was not widely announced.) She affirmed that "there is nothing wrong with changing history to her-story."

But she scoffed when I asked her if a man who had hernias should be expected to refer to them as himnias.

Watergate's lesson: cheating a fact of life

Religious leaders of all theological and political persuasions agree that the Watergate scandal reveals some kind of flaw in the instilling of a moral base through the educational process.

One response to that vacuum has come from the National Educational Assn., a major teachers' union.

The NEA has announced that, with Watergate as the catalyst, it has put together a series of lesson plans on the problems of morality associated with the government scandal.

"TOO OFTEN," an NEA spokesman said, "Teachers have felt they could only show good citizenship by being totally loyal to the government and never questioning what it actually does."

He added that the NEA lesson plans show that the "system is fine" but some individuals within it have caused problems.

Some theologians, however, are worried that attempts to teach children about morality in the post-Watergate era still make dramatically wrong assumptions about people's innocence.

"We cannot bring a stronger morality to public places," according to Roman Catholic lay theologian Michael Novak, "nor increase even by a little the circle

World of religion

by David E. Anderson of morality in our private lives, unless first of all we clear the mist of false innocence from our eyes."

NOVAK, WRITING in the current issue of A.D. magazine, a joint publication of the United Presbyterian Church and the United Church of Christ, stressed that the lesson of Watergate is not that there is some higher morality of a mythical past to recapture.

"Our children need to be told often and accurately about the power of evil," Novak said. "Once we grasp the power of evil in each of us," he added, "We are in a better position to base our families upon an accurate Christian realism."

For Novak there were two wrong lessons to teach about Watergate: first, and suggested by several of the young men caught in the web of the scandal, was politics is always corrupt and people should stay out of it; secondly, the sentimental and nostalgic idea that there was some "higher morality of our ancestors."

"Can any truly believe that the nation is less moral in 1974 than in 1934. . . or in any other year?" he wrote.

The trouble with Americans, he said, was that "we want to be moral so ardently that we begin to imagine that we are moral. We want others to believe that we are a good people."

BUT THE FOUNDING Fathers, he said, did not delude themselves about the goodness of the American people.

"They didn't trust anybody. American democracy is built upon the premise that human beings are too corrupt to trust."

He said the real lesson of Watergate should be aimed at preparing children "for a world in which injustice and falsehood and corruption occur with high regularity."

The need, he said, is to develop a Christian realism which will uncover "one deception at a time, day by day . . . setting up systems of detection that penetrate public masks and hold powerful tendencies in check."

"LET'S SHOOT THE DEVIL"

A very interesting and provocative film that takes a good hard look at a rather popular type of entertainment on today's TV, the "Western." By reenacting the curiously stereotyped plot of the "Western" the extremes of good and bad are contrasted and the false morality so strongly demonstrated is explained. The plot is imaginative, humorously painted and very easy to follow.

Chicago's only undefeated coach relaxes

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

"If you'd have goosed me before the game I'd have jumped over the damn lights."

And so Jim Spavital summed up the tension of being the new coach of a new team in a new league, the Chicago Fire of the World Football League. Spavital seemed much more relaxed as he carried on a happy press conference at Maryville Academy in Des Plaines.

Following their 17-0 victory over the Houston Texans in the league opener Chicago has something that is decidedly strange and hard to adjust to: an undefeated professional football team.

The WFL is peopled with individuals, some might say the dregs, from that other professional league and various football backgrounds. But the pressure of starting so ambitious an undertaking as another pro football league instilled in the Fire players and coaching staff an intensity of purpose that spawned a remarkably well played game.

Since the time of year is similar to when the NFL plays their exhibition games a whole array of mistakes might have been expected. But such was not the case.

Only the Fire's running game, which relies so heavily on timing between the backs and the offensive line, broke down and failed to produce as expected.

"Of course we have to work on our running game," said a relaxed Spavital. "With Pinder playing all the time it will improve."

Pinder played long enough to gain three yards on three carries before he got caught up in the spirit of the game and was ejected for fighting with a Houston player.

The other pre-game rushing threat that everybody was wondering about was Northern Illinois' Mark Keller. Keller hauled the ball 11 times for 24 yards. Seventeen of those came on one carry.

"Mark didn't do all that badly," Spavital said. "He's willing and he works hard. Plus this was his first pro football game and he was very tense."

"Pinder's fight," he continued. "Well, what can you say. It was an emotional game. Pinder thought somebody took a cheap shot."

"We have a lot more offense than we showed the other night. We'll certainly open the game up in later games."

Pinder caught a touchdown pass from quarterback Virgil Carter before he was ejected. Carter represented the one solid bit of offense the Fire needed.

A former Bear, Carter returned to Chicago to complete 21 very short passes in 34 attempts for 184 yards and two touchdowns.

"Houston's philosophy," Spavital said. "And this may not be true, was to let us have the short pass and keep us from getting behind them."

"We will be pass oriented," he continued. "But we've got to establish our running game because one without the other is worthless."

"Houston has a lot of veterans from the NFL," Spavital said. "And players from that league are used to playing themselves into shape. I think they'll be a better team as the year goes on."

Rule innovations were a big attraction that the WFL preached as it grew towards its premiere season. To the NFL fan who expects nothing but punts and field goals they might have seemed rather bizarre.

For instance, after each touchdown there was no need to try for the extra point. That came with the touchdown. The Fire twice went for an eighth point with Carter missing each time. Once by passing and once by running.

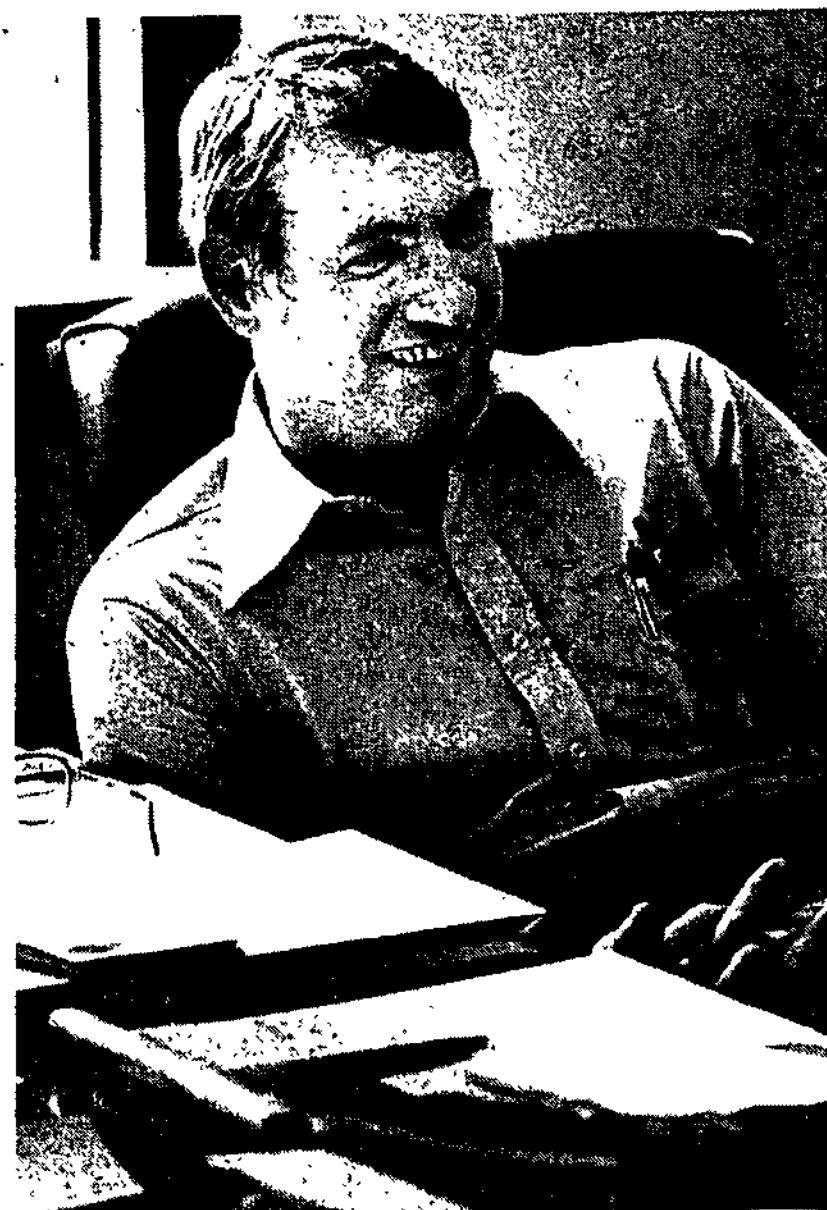

Two more changes involved the man-in-motion and that salvation of all punt return men — the fair catch. The first is allowed, the second has been done away with.

"There wasn't as much use of the man-in-motion tonight as there will be later," Spavital said. "The players didn't feel comfortable going toward the line of scrimmage yet. We work on it a lot but it takes a lot of timing."

The lack of a fair catch is old stuff to Spavital, who coached in Canada where return men are regarded as poor life insurance risks. The Fire return men adjusted by letting most punts bounce.

"We've worked on the returns," Spavital said. "I thought they made mistakes in letting it hit."

But that's all trivial to the coach of an undefeated pro football team. So Jim Spavital relaxed at Maryville — the Fire's training site this summer — with a lot of uncertainty ahead but possibly the most important game of his career behind.

A RELAXED Jim Spavital holds court for his Chicago Fire football team at Maryville Academy yesterday afternoon for its season opener.

25th Illinois Open at Rolling Green

The 25th annual Illinois Open Championship will begin play on Monday at Rolling Green Country Club in Arlington Heights. Eighty-eight professionals and 56 amateurs will play 18 holes on Monday and Tuesday with the low 60 scorers and ties playing 18 holes on Wednesday.

There are 44 exempt professionals and 11 exempt amateurs competing in the championship. The remainder of the field qualified for the championship on July 2nd at Plum Tree National Golf Club (Harvard, Ill.).

Nine former Illinois Open Champions are competing this year including the defending champion Rick Ten Broeck. Others are John Gostele (1972), Bill Ogden (1932, 67), Emil Esposito (1966), Chuck Malchaski (1961), Bob Harris (1953, 56) and Ernie Ball (1953). The low scoring amateur in 1973 is also competing, Gary Ostrega.

Fifteen Herald area players will be competing for the title. Teeling off first will be Mario Vitale, an amateur out of Rohn Roy Golf Club in Prospect Heights, and Michael Harrigan, a pro playing out of Rolling Green. They'll begin play at 8:00 Monday morning.

Going off at 8:24 a.m. will be Scott Anderson, an amateur out of Inverness Golf Club, from Arlington Heights.

Steve Jenne, playing out of Rolling Green, will be teeing off at 9:12 a.m.

Paired with two amateurs is Brad Stake, also an amateur, from Arlington Heights. He's playing out of Stonehenge G.C. He'll be playing at 12:30 p.m.

Jim Urban, a pro from Buffalo Grove who'll represent Briarwood CC, will be playing with talented Ostrega, out of Elmhurst CC. They'll tee it up at 1:02 p.m.

Palatine's George Capoun, playing out of Inverness GC, will tee off at 1:18 p.m.

Mount Prospect's Dave Nelson, playing out of Mount Prospect GC, will be the only amateur in this threesome, which goes off at 8:24 a.m.

John Gostele of Palatine will be representing Twin Orchards CC when he tees off at 8:56 a.m.

Another Palatine resident — Len Floren — will be playing out of White Pines GC. He'll tee off at 9:12 and 8:00, respectively.

Going out at 9:04 this morning will be Schaumburg's Tom Jacobsen of White Pines GC.

Arlington Heights' Chris Marszalek, playing out of Hillcrest CC, will be the only amateur in his threesome. He'll go off at 12:54 p.m.

Going off second to last tomorrow will be Wheeling's Ken Bartosh, playing out of Westmoreland CC. He'll tee it up at 1:26 p.m.

Last but certainly not least is host professional Billy Ventresca. This Arlington Heights resident will play with highly regarded amateur Scott Rittersagen of Calumet CC and Emil Esposito, Mount Prospect resident and head pro of Dominick CC. They'll go off at 1:31 this afternoon and 9:52 tomorrow morning.

Rolling Green, celebrating its 50th anniversary, promises a good test over its par 72, 3165 yards of lush fairways and towering trees.

Lions edge Prospect, 5-4

A nimble bit of scheduling found the Logan Square Lions playing on their home field as the visiting team Wednesday, handling Mount Prospect, 5-4, in eight innings.

The game was originally scheduled for Prospect's home, Hal Sprehe Field at Forest View. But conflicts with other baseball organizations and the weather caused the site to be moved across town.

Prospect started the scoring in the bottom of the fifth when Greg Pfaff reached base on an error and was driven in by Sal Fioretti's double. Fioretti later scored on Jim Hammers' two base hit.

That two run lead was quickly eradicated in the following inning when Jim Dumke doubled and John Coruso walked. Jim Bucaro followed with a three-run homer.

Prospect produced another run in the bottom of the sixth to tie the score and set up the extra inning.

Back to back singles in the top of the eighth by Coruso and Bucaro and a double by Steve Bobowski pushed in the Lions' first run in the eighth. Pat Rooney followed with a single to score Bobowski.

Prospect's last chance came up short when George Mischevich singled and went to second on a wild pitch. Fioretti whacked his second double of the game to score Mischevich but the inning ran out before the Prospect catcher could get home with the tying run.

THE BEST IN Sports

For masochists only—'Ride and Tie'

by MURRAY OLDERMAN

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. — (NEA) — The dust clogs the nostrils and at better than 5,000 feet elevation the breath comes in sharp, painful gasps. The terrain, coming across the Chiloquin Ridge and down through Hell for Slim Draw and over Hogback Mountain, is tortuous and rocky.

It's a hell of a place to run a race. But they did.

And they even had some people watching it. I can testify to that because I left bits of my flywheel shield, oil pan and muffler which were gouged out on the dirt trail to Hell for Slim Draw.

The contestants were a rare breed, too. They included a physician, a taxidermist, a couple of city firemen, a rodeo cowboy, two college professors, a tavern keeper, a minister and a college track coach. Plus some descendants of Arabians.

The event, to allay the suspense, was something called Levi's fourth annual "Ride and Tie" Race, and it's a cinch you'll see nothing like it anywhere else on the American sporting scene.

It was won by a couple of tousel blond characters from Auburn, Calif., up in the foothills of the High Sierra, who looked like escaped beach boys, and their horse, Smoke. Gordy Ainsley is a 27-year-old drug abuse counselor who claims to be the first 200-pounder in the history of the world to run the marathon under three hours. Jim Larimer is a 25-year-old future elementary school teacher. By avocation, they are both endurance riders. Smoke, who belongs to Larimer, is three-quarters Arabian and he has to be a rugged stallion because Ainsley, with full tack, puts 221 pounds on the horse's back.

A digression is vital to explain "tie and ride." It's a transportation form of the old West when two guys had only one horse between them. So one man (or woman) starts out running and the other riding. And the rider ties his horse at a place on the trail where his partner on foot can catch up to it, and begins running himself. Then the original runner mounts and rides on ahead and they repeat the process.

A hearded public relations man named Bud Johns, who is a retired sports writer, dreamed up this race as both a promotional and fun thing a few years ago. Now they've got these characters, both men and women, coming in from all over the country to punish themselves by alternately running and riding over this scenic but forbidding country.

From a remote meadow on the Sprague River in the back country to the finish line at the Fairgrounds in Klamath Falls, it was 33.5 hot, dusty, sweaty and grimy miles.

Ainsley and Larimer made it in four hours, 12 minutes and 45 seconds — more than a quarter of an hour ahead of the field.

"I had," said Larimer looking at 6-4½, 205-pound Gordy, "two horses on my team." Jim was swigging on his first beer in three months of arduous training. He was also looking forward to his cut of the $3,150 winners' swag, put up by Levi Strauss as sponsor, to pay for the rest of his education at Sacramento State.

Gordy said, "I feel terribly grateful to Jim's horse." Smoke was the only one of the trio who had to make the 33-plus miles on his own hooves.

Ken Williams, a mustachioed dude who finished third in the field of 48 teams, viewed it as a spiritual experience. He is about to get his master's degree in economics from San Jose State and was once a distance runner in track.

"It's got me by the grabolies," he said. "Once you've done it, and this was my third 'tie and ride,' you realize it's the toughest thing in the world. It's my biggest loser economically every year in time and expense, but you get married to this thing."

"Why do I do it? It's the toughest game in town and I've tried them all. In a marathon you become mesmerized with fatigue until everything is just a red glow. In this one, you're just as tired, but you've got to think because there's more than just you involved. There's your horse and your partner. I'm writing a whole story on the strategy of tie and ride racing."

"The strategy," noted Ainsley of the winning team, "works around the horse. One, do not hurt the horse. (Both men and the horse must finish the race to count.) Two, get the horse through the vet checks."

At five points along the rugged trail, veterinarians checked the horses for pulse and respiration to make sure they weren't abused.

No one, I noticed, ever checked the two-legged animals among whom were 22 women.

Finishing 16th, Joe Amlong, a 37-year-old air force captain in Montana who won a rowing gold medal at the 1964 Olympics in Tokyo, said, "It's an excuse to stay in shape."

Legion All-Stars play Sunday

It will be Wheeling against the rest of the league when the fourth annual Ninth District American Legion all-star game is played Sunday at the St. Vistor high school diamond in Arlington Heights.

The baseball action will begin at 3 p.m. and it will pit the first-place Wheeling sluggers of coach Gerry Grybash against the elite from the rest of the district, including some of the best pitchers the area has ever produced.

As usually happens, Wheeling led the balloting of coaches and sportswriters for spots on the all-star team. Grybash's squad put eight players on the select team: outfielders Jeff Brissan and Ken Margalski; infielders George Kaage and Ron Henricks; catcher Paul Groot; and pitchers Mitch Gullett, Jeff Hanisch, and Willie Kozel. The eight will play for Wheeling Sunday.

The remainder of the team is: outfielders — George Vukovich and Bruce Hanson of Arlington Heights; Tom Conyn and Jim Lyons of Park Ridge; Pat Rooney of Logan Square; and Ken Butzen of Mount Prospect.

Infielders — Tom Good and Brett Frase of Arlington Heights; Mike Quade and Jim Anderson of Mount Prospect; Ron Parker and Dan Lowy of Park Ridge; Pete Mroz of Norwood Park; and Jim Bucaro of Logan Square.

Catchers are Dave Mnichowicz of Logan Square and Paul McVicker of Norwood Park, and the pitchers are Buddy Hughes and Rich Haaning of Mount

The all-star coach is John Wendel of Logan Square, assisted by Larry Nomenlini of Logan Square and Jerry Romes of Park Ridge. The all-star team will have the home advantage.

Wheeling will be trying to even up the all-star series. The all-stars have beaten the first place team in each of the past two years after Logan Square won the inaugural match.

Adashek among tourney victors

Dick Adashek won the men's A division of the Arlington Tennis Club's round robin tournament held July 4 and 6 at Arlington High School.

Adashek and Ken Schaller were tied at 14 games, but Adashek got the nod since he had beaten Schaller in head-to-head competition. Larry Smith and George Nasser each had 10 games, with Smith taking third place.

Walt Fogel won the playoff for fifth over Bob Richman, Norm Albert and Bob Drauss. Ron Thomas won the playoff for ninth and Tom Cassidy for 13th.

Scott Dunne was the men's B division victor over Bob Schultz, Jess Kunkel and Steve Adashek. Joe Shekleton wound up fifth, Perry Ell ninth and Bud Smith 13th.

Ninth-grader Mike Doering captured the men's C division crown over his father, Chuck, as well as Wayne Gorski and Dick Halduck. Bill Ellis placed fifth, Larry Kynast ninth and Tom Hanson 13th.

Bobbie Schultz swept past Pat Rittle, Judy Graves and Sandy Nelson for the women's A division championship. Meridy Zeigler got by Cacky Gardner, Agnes Meeker and Linda Struthers for fifth, Caryann Mucha ended in ninth and Carolyn Munns in 13th.

Sylvia Daletski came out on top in the women's B division after disposing of Jody Kynast, Janice Robson and Carol Rino. The fifth slot went to Diane French and the ninth to southpaw Joan Schaefer.

Democrats at the races

Maline Township Regular Democratic Organization will sponsor their annual "Nite at the Races," Wednesday, July 31, 1974, at Sportsman's Park, 3301 South Laramie, Chicago.

Tickets are available to everybody, regardless of political affiliation, for $8.00 apiece. The price includes transportation, dinner and prizes. They can be purchased by calling 823-7998 or 692-3388.

From campuses nationwide

Steve Sparkes of Arlington Heights, a senior member of the Bucknell University soccer team, was recently named to that school's Dean's List for the past semester. A grade point average of 3.2 or better out of 4.0 was needed to achieve the honor.

Mount Prospect's George Moldenhauer and Richard Bugalske of Arlington Heights, both sophomore hockey players at the University of Wisconsin-Stout, have been named to the Wisconsin State University Conference academic honor roll for maintaining a grade point average of 3.0 (B) or better for the academic year.

Four former area athletes are among 48 varsity athletes at Western Illinois University who have been recommended to the Faculty Athletic Council to receive athletic awards for the 1974 spring season.

Sophomore Randy Jepperson of Mount Prospect and senior Gerald Grybash of Palatine were members of the Leatherneck baseball team that compiled a 31-12 record and participated in the NCAA Mid-east Regional Division II baseball playoffs.

Wheeling freshman Bill Chlebek and junior Tom Sayrt of Arlington Heights were members of the outdoor track squad.

Chuck Ruppenthal of Fremd High School has been recruited by University of Illinois head track coach Gary Wlencke. Ruppenthal, who as a prep, ran the mile and two-mile event for the Viking track team, also ran cross country finishing 60th in Illinois last year.

Palmer, Phillips to join forces for cancer celebrity golf exhibition

Tickets are now on sale for the American Cancer Society Celebrity golf exhibition co-starring Arnold Palmer and Wally Phillips Aug. 26 at the Butterfield Country Club.

General admission (gallery) tickets are $5 each for the 1:30 p.m. Palmer-Phillips 18-hole exhibition.

Some 400 "VIP" tickets are also now on sale at $100 each. This donation entitles ticket holders to VIP parking in the club lot, clubhouse privileges, breakfast, a special Arnold Palmer golf clinic, noon buffet luncheon, the afternoon exhibition, banquet ticket, entertainment, souvenir and eligibility for prize drawings.

Twelve "Super VIP" tickets are available to those pledging a $1000 contribution to the fight against cancer. "Super VIPs" will be able to play 18 holes of golf including three holes with Palmer and Phillips, and, in addition, will be entitled to VIP parking, breakfast, participation in the golf clinic with Arnold Palmer, luncheon with the celebrities, two banquet tickets, entertainment and prizes.

The 18 hole golf exhibition will be preceded by matches among Chicago sportswriters, radio and television, theater and sports personalities who will play nine holes beginning at 9 a.m.

A 6 p.m. cocktail hour will round out the day's activities, followed by a banquet and entertainment featuring Palmer, and Phillips as master of ceremonies.

Ticket information and details about the Arnold Palmer celebrity golf exhibition are available through the American Cancer Society, 37 S. Wabash Ave. (372-0471, extension 74). Tickets may also be purchased at the Butterfield Country Club, located just south of the Oakbrook Shopping Center.

Fenton stops Elk Grove, 7-0

Elk Grove's Ken Wajerski broke up a no-hit attempt by visiting Fenton with a single after two were out in the fifth inning, but it didn't spark a Grenadier comeback as the Bison won Wednesday, 7-0.

The Grove could muster just three hits while using three pitchers of its own in trying to stop Fenton. Two of them — starter and loser Bill Strybel and Wajerski — had never pitched before. Steve Kliff finished up.

Grid signup slated

Final registration for Arlington Heights Boys football will be held at Recreation Park on Saturday, July 13, from 8 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.

The fee is $25 for the first boy and $20 for each boy thereafter. If a boy has not previously registered, he must bring his birth certificate. A parent must accompany each boy.

Reader contends: Feigner is faster!

Dear fans forum:
I have had a hard time convincing anybody that the famous softball pitcher, Eddie Feigner, could throw a softball faster underhanded than a major league pitcher could throw a hardball overhanded. I once faced Feigner in a game and I insist that he threw it darn hard!

Bert Krondt
Schaumburg

ED. Note: Last year Feigner appeared in the area for a game and he was interviewed by a Herald reporter. At that time, Feigner said that his fastball has been clocked at 101 m.p.h. That is faster than the quickest fastball of most major leaguers — Bob Feller, Sandy Koufax, and Nene Duren included. But, of course, Feigner pitches from a distance of 45 feet, opposed to 60 feet, six inches for the big leaguers.

FAN RAPS WHITE SOX

Dear fans forum:
I'm starting to get tired of all the publicity the Chicago White Sox have been getting in the metropolitan papers. Everybody keeps raving about the Sox and all their wonderful players, especially Dickie Allen. I can't believe how easy Allen got off this year — not showing up for spring training and all.

But the really funny thing about the Sox is that now, with the season half over, all the Sox are actually playing decently, and still the writing is on the wall. No matter what the Sox do from now on out, they won't be able to win their division. Allen and Herrmann can each hit 60 homers and Jim Kaat and Bart Johnson can win more games than anyone expected them to, and still the Sox will be in second or third place behind Oakland.

STRIKES ANGER READER

To the editor:
I've been amused by the antics of the players' strike in the National Football League. It seems like the two sides have decided that they are going to clash, and that's that. They never even think about the fans. The players should realize that the people who pay good money to see the games don't care about the legal technicalities — they just want to see the games. And the owners should see that they'll never make a profit unless there is a team on the field.

But the clincher for me was when I read what the owner of the Los Angeles Rams said in the paper the other day: "If we gave Ed Garvey and his players association everything they wanted, that wouldn't satisfy him, and they'd say, 'We still want a strike.'"

So I guess I'll watch the Chicago Fire until the NFL decides to go on strike in a couple months.

LET PLAYERS PICK STARS

Fans Forum:
My gripe is the way they are picking the all-star baseball teams. Guys like Mike Schmidt and Steve Garvey aren't even on the ballot. And if they were, they probably wouldn't even get any votes. Everybody either votes for their favorites or else they vote for the big name players. It's not fair to the really deserving players.

I don't buy the argument that fan balloting increases interest in the game. Most fans don't vote anyway. I think that the ballot should be given back to the players since they know better than anybody who the all-stars are. The fans would be able to respect the choices of the players and still maintain an interest in the game. Then the All-Star game would really mean something.

Little League tourney opens

The Hoffman Estates Senior Little League entry will play tonight for the divisional championship at the district tourney in Dundee.

The team, sponsored by the Hoffman Estates Community Baseball Association, defeated East Elgin, 7-6, and Elgin American, 6-5, in preliminary contests in order to reach the finals, which will be played at 6 p.m. tonight. The winner of the divisional finals will advance to the regionals.

Golf openings still available for Pro-Am

It's the chance to play with a touring professional golfer.

It's the chance to win five fabulous door prizes of $100,000 each of S&H Green Stamps.

It's the chance to other fine awards.

And, most importantly, it's the chance to have fun while helping children.

It's the 1974 Child & Family Classic — a Pro-Am Tournament at Wood Dale's Dominion Golf and Country Club on Monday, July 22.

The one-day affair will benefit the Child and Family Services of Chicago, a 116-year-old charity that provides foster care, adoption and homemaker services for children throughout the Chicago metropolitan area.

This Pro-Am will be held the day after the prestigious United States Open for women, being put on by LaGrange Country Club. The tourney will bring the top names on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour to Chicagoland.

Some of the women who have entered the Pro-Am Tournament are leading money winner Joanne Carner, two-time U.S. Open champ Donna Caponi Young and LPGA veterans Patty Berg, Marilyn Smith and Jackie Pung.

The amateur field has not been completely filled. Those wishing to join in the fun (the cost is fully tax deductible) should contact Dana Johnson at 427-8780.

Anderson-Biermann sliding in Twilight Golf League

First place Anderson-Biermann Hardware dropped their second match of the 1974 season this week in Mount Prospect Twilight Golf Tuesday Division action, and saw their point margin over second place Licht's Paint store reduced to 4 points.

In the rain-delayed matches, Annen & Busse Realtors surprised Anderson-Biermann 5-4-2-1, one individual match not going the minimum 6 holes, while runner-up Licht's Paint Store, with all matches completed, whipped J & B Meat Market 6-1-3-2.

Meeske's Supermarket clung to third place despite a 4-6 defeat by hotly-pursuing Illinois Range.

George L. Busse & Co. with another 7-1-2-1 victory, this time over Arch-Anon, Inc., turned in the best team performance of the evening, and moved up another couple of notches in the standings.

In other matches, Louie's Barber Shop trimmed Keefer's Pharmacy 6-1-3-1, while Mt. Prospect State Bank edged Kirchhoff Insurance 5-3 in another rain-curtailed contest.

Low shooters for the session were Ed Lauling with a 37, and Don Snyder with a 39. Lauling, coming fresh off the chiropractor's bench after a siege with a bad back, took low gross honors, and his net of 31 also gave him the low net award.

Birdies were reported by E. Lauling No. 5; L. Johnson No. 5; D. Meyer No. 7; J. Driscoll No. 13 and No. 14; C. Dresser No. 15; and C. Ulman No. 16.

C. P. Floors stays in 2nd

C. P. Floors took five out of seven points from Miles & Miles Insurance to remain in second place in standings of the Old Orchard Scratch League play last Friday night. Clarence Peterson led the Floors boys with a one over par 35, his best score this year. Greg Carney posted a 39, matching his best this year but couldn't take the match against Peterson's 35.

Baird and Warner Realtors captured 4 1/2 out of seven in its duel with Bob Burrows Chevrolet. Jim Douglas carded his best-of-the-year score 37 to keep the Bairds solidly in first place. Ralph Ganser had to shoot even par 34 for the Chevy boys to win his match against Bob Kronn's 35.

Bob Lee turned in his first sub-par score of the year, a 35, to lead the charge for Team No. 8 over Team No. 7. Would have been more fun if Bob's opponent had made the scene, especially with that deuce on the 193-yard 7th hole and then a birdie on No. 9.

Hussissian and Associates gained four out of seven from Sauganash Corporation in a rather unusual manner — only one win (a forfeit) by Jack Wheeler and four matches tied. John Keeley and George Johnson battled too to tie, shooting 37 and 38 respectively; then Bill Hugo and Mike Graft fought to a 40 and 41 to tie the match.

Winner of Titleist balls for closest-to-the-pin shots on par three holes were Bob Altermatt on three, Bill Hugo on seven, Mike Melchorre on 14 and Jim Douglas on 17. Only Melchorre sunk the putt for a deuce.

District IV tournament this weekend at Harper

The Woodfield Babe Ruth League will host the District IV state Babe Ruth League tournament at Harper College this weekend. In addition, two area all-star teams — the Woodfield Nationals and the Woodfield Americans — will travel to LaCrosse, Wis. to compete in the National Invitational Baseball Tournament.

At Harper College, Woodfield is hosting the District 4 Babe Ruth tournament this weekend. Six teams will compete for the district crown. Woodfield, Lombard, Downers Grove, Irving Lake, Woodridge, and Schaumburg will compete at Harper College. First round action has Downers Grove against Irving Lake at 2 p.m. this afternoon. Later Schaumburg battles Woodridge at 4:15 p.m. On Saturday, Lombard plays the winner of the Down-ers vs. Irving Lake game at 11:45 a.m., followed by Woodfield against the winner of the Schaumburg - Woodridge game at 2 p.m. The district championship game will be played at 4:15 p.m. Saturday to complete the action at Harper College.

Selected to this year's 1974 Woodfield team are: from the league-leading Palatine Cubs, Kevin McKenna, Tim Prokof, and Doug Buenow; from the Rolling Meadows Cardinals, Lou Citro, Bill Hopkins, and Bill Blisley; from the Hoffman Estates Giants, Steve Stompanato, Paul South and Tim Harkness; from the Hoffman Estates White Sox, Ray Gawron and Ted Pellus; from the Elk Grove A's, Kevin McCloughan; and from the Elk Grove Orioles, Joe Woelfel, Tony Kees and Tom Ulke. Tony Stompanato has been selected as team manager.

At LaCrosse, in the National Invitational Tourney, Mr. Rick Jesky has been named as manager of the Woodfield Nationals and Mr. Dave Mills will manage the Woodfield Americans. The Nationals will meet Tomah, Wis., Friday, July 12 at 9 p.m. In the tournament's "feature" game of the day at Copeland Park in LaCrosse. At 10:30 p.m., also at Copeland Park, the Americans square-off against a host LaCrosse team. Close to 90 teams have accepted invitations to play in the NIT.

Mount Prospect midget signup set

The Mount Prospect Football Association has extended its registration dates for the coming season. New and returning boys can sign up this Saturday or July 20 at the Mount Prospect Country Club (Community Center) from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m.

They will also be weighed in on the official MPMFA scale along with the boys that have already registered. All boys must be weighed in before they can start practicing.

The boys must be in grade school and be between the ages of 8 and 14 as of Dec. 1, 1974. They must live in the Village of Mount Prospect or in the Mount Prospect Park District. The park district extends to Touhy Avenue between Mount Prospect Road and Busse Road.

All boys who did not play in 1973 must be accompanied by a parent or guardian and must bring their birth certificate as proof of age. The registration fee is $18, plus $10 for each additional brother.

Assignments will be made based on age and weight and to teams insofar as possible that represent the area the boys live in.

New and used equipment will be available for sale on both signup and weigh-in Saturday dates.

Cheerleaders can still register too. The fees are $5 for each girl plus $2.50 for each additional sister. New girls must bring their birth certificates as proof of age.

Additional information can be obtained from Commissioner Dick Skoog (437-0139) or Women's Auxiliary President Mary Van Wazer (437-4038).

Toyota maintains 'Y' League lead

Toyota holds first place in the standings at the halfway point of the Northwest Suburban YMCA Twilight Golf League season. With 40 first-half points, Toyota leads runnerup Allen's by seven big points. Hilliker is third and Keefer is fourth.

In final first-half action recently, seven golfers notched birdies, including Howard Rudin, who birdied both the 13th and the 17th holes. Other birdies were recorded by Al Wood (1st), Len Franklin (10th), Herb Chessman (13th), Norm Campbell (12th), Dick Dewar (15th), and Mike Schwartz (8th).

Three golfers tied with a low gross score of 39 — Art Kling, Wally Busch, and Harold Petersen. Al Wood, with a 30, was the low net leader. Petersen and Harold Voight were right behind at 31. First half low gross leader was Wally Busch and low net leader was Bob McCabe.

Open crowns new champs

Jack Laffey of Arlington Heights triumphed in the men's 45 year old singles 2-6, 7-6 and 6-2 during the Des Plaines open tennis tournament July 4-8. The tourney drew 385 entries in 10 categories.

A serious knee injury to Des Plaines' Al Valquet forced him to default the men's 35 year old singles championship to John Foreman. In the men's junior vets 35-45 age bracket, G. Lemus won easily 6-2, 6-1. Dale Fritz defeated Rod Schroeder for the men's singles title.

Foreman and Steve Morgan topped the men's 45 age division doubles competition in a three set battle. In the men's doubles, the team of Schroeder and Barry Maxwell bested H. Hugelot and R. Petschul 6-4, 6-2.

In the women's categories, Chris Schaeffer of Glenview prevailed in singles play, while Andrea Laffey of Arlington Heights and Sue Whiting took the doubles event.

Chris Canar of Park Ridge, a member of the Des Plaines Club, was victorious in the senior women's singles. Sue Hoschl and Kathy Blatchford won in the senior doubles.

Last week, Des Plaines' tennis teams split with Northbrook. The men's A team lost 4-1; while the men's B team captured a 3-2 decision. The junior boys romped 5-0, but the women fell 4-1.

This Saturday, Des Plaines meets Elmhurst on the Maine West courts.

Bird business bonanza

They're experts at luring exotics to United States

by JUDY JOBBITT

It's for the birds. That's how Zoological Enterprises got started. When Dave D. Mathis and George Kroesen heard that the United States' ban on importing exotic birds was to be lifted, they decided it was time they start their business for importing strange and unusual birds to the United States.

The result of this decision is Zoological Enterprises at 1031 Lunt Ave., Schaumburg, which imports birds for distribution to zoos, pet stores and breeders.

WHILE THE BAN on importing exotic birds has been lifted, the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture has imposed strict regulations to protect the United States against rare diseases the birds have been known to carry.

The ban first was imposed four years ago when a group of parrots brought to the United States brought in exotic Newcastle Disease, fatal to humans.

Consequently, imported exotic birds now must be placed under quarantine for 30 days to determine if they carry any harmful exotic diseases.

From the time they are placed in their cage for transport to the United States to the time the quarantine is completed, the birds are kept locked under careful surveillance.

Only certain people are allowed into the back room where they are kept caged. And even these people must undergo decontamination before they enter or leave the tight security area.

"We're the cleanest people in town," quipped Mathis about the minimum of four showers a day he takes at Zoological. Each time he enters the security area, he must shower and change into special clothing and repeat the process on the way out.

When the birds arrive they must go through three government inspections — the U.S. Dept. of the Interior, USDA and customs. They are then escorted under tight security to Zoological where they are locked behind sealed doors for 30 days.

Only government officials can break the seals to the doors.

Besides the area with cages, autopsy and feed rooms are sealed.

Each day a veterinarian checks the birds and conducts autopsies on the birds that have died. If a bird is found dead, culture samples are taken and sent to the USDA laboratory in Ames, Iowa, for study. After 14 days, cultures are taken from the healthy birds to make sure they are well.

Of the 457 African gray parrots Zoological recently imported, only nine birds died. Mathis said the normal loss is about 30 per cent. All nine deaths in this group were due to dehydration that occurred while the birds were being shipped.

THE ENTIRE warehouse area is cleaned and disinfected daily to reduce the chances of infection and death, said Mathis. If a bird is found to be carrying a contagious disease, the entire shipment must be exterminated and the warehouse disinfected and inspected before a new shipment is brought in.

Mathis said he hopes quarantine stations like Zoological will help eliminate smugglers who bring exotic birds across the border without any inspection and possibly with harmful diseases.

"We have the satisfaction we have brought in good quality stock into the United States," he said. To ensure the quality of birds they import, Mathis said Kroesen or he must know the exporter, where the exporter is getting the birds and how the exporter catches the birds.

Kroesen, who has been a breeder for the past 20 years, flies to various parts of the world to set up exports.

THEY ALSO WORK closely with zoos to bring in endangered species. If a zoo requests an endangered species, Zoological will keep the bird in quarantine without charge.

Mathis said they do this to encourage breeding in the United States. "This way we'll all benefit in the end," he said.

Before Zoological could be set up in Centex Industrial Park, the two men had to make sure there were no private breeders within a one-half-mile radius of the center. They also must be one-half mile from any pet shops or zoos.

AFRICAN GRAY PARROTS passed quarantine and are set for shipment to their owners. Dave D. Mathis gets one of the cages ready at Zoological Enterprises, one of nine quarantine stations in the United States.

The shipment of African grey parrots was their first successful shipment since they opened in March. The birds were taken out of quarantine June 25.

THE DAY THE quarantine was lifted, all the birds were shipped to their owners. That night Zoological already was getting the warehouse ready for the next shipment due to arrive June 29. This shipment included between 2,000 to 3,000 birds from Asia, India, South America and Africa. Several endangered species also were in the shipment.

Zoological only sells birds wholesale, said Mathis. More than 200 zoos have contacted them about getting birds, he said, in addition to pet stores and bird breeders. Mathis said through importing new exotic birds the quality of breeding in the United States should improve. He said the quality of breeding has gone down because the ban necessitated in-breeding.

So in another 30 days, if no fatal diseases develop, another batch of birds will be out on the market.

Catholic schools join to hire music teacher

Sacred Heart of Mary High School, Rolling Meadows, and St. Viator High School, Arlington Heights, have pooled their resources to hire a full-time music teacher for next fall in a move towards closer cooperation.

The two Catholic high schools, one for girls and one for boys, have shared programs in the past. St. Viator students have taken art classes at Sacred Heart and Sacred Heart students have attended band classes at St. Viator.

But this is the first time the two schools have jointly hired a teacher, said Gerald Giles, Sacred Heart principal.

"I think it's further evidence of increasing cooperation between us," he said.

"We hope it will be continued beyond that," Giles said. He said he hoped both schools would see the advantages of "more and more jointness" in the use of facilities and hiring of personnel. No specific plans besides the joint music program have been developed.

"The cooperative arrangement provides us with a new opportunity to increase the services of both schools," said Donald P. Houde, associate principal at St. Viator.

THE FIRST STEP towards closer cooperation was taken last year when Sacred Heart and St. Viator co-sponsored plays for the first time, Giles said. In the past, girls from Sacred Heart and boys from St. Viator's had taken part in each others' dramatic productions, but shows were not produced jointly, Giles said.

Giles added that the two schools had approximately 175 families in common and it was "only natural" that closer cooperation should develop.

Under the new music program, band lessons will be held for students of both schools at St. Viator in the mornings. In the afternoon, orchestra instruction for both schools will be held at Sacred Heart.

The teacher will be Anthony Peluso of Hillside. Peluso has a masters of music education from the Eastman School of Music, Rochester, N.Y. and a bachelor's degree in music and music education from DePaul University, Chicago.

CAP 'hurts credibility': Smet

Second planner repudiates fledgling political party

by LYNN ASINOF

Wheeling Plan Comr. Devere Smet Wednesday became the second village official to disavow himself from the Citizens Action Program (CAP), saying the would-be political party was damaging his personal credibility.

Smet followed Plan Comr. Gil Monoson in publicly announcing the end of his affiliation with CAP, a nine-month-old group originally announced as a "citizens' lobby." Monoson left the group, saying that it had restricted his freedom to speak openly on village issues.

While Monoson left CAP saying that the organization had criticized him for his stands on village issues, Smet said that there had been "no falling out" between himself and CAP.

"I just don't think that as a commission member, since I did get reappointed, that it's a good idea to get involved in other groups," Smet said. He said outside involvement is particularly damaging when it carries political overtones, such as his CAP membership did.

SMET NOTED THAT CAP is repeatedly linked to James Stavros, former Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman who was sentenced to four years in prison and a $25,000 fine for extortion and tax evasion. Stavros and five others were charged following a year-long federal probe into official corruption involving the shakedowns of Wheeling developers.

Originally a seven-man group, CAP now consists of Trustee William Hein, Plan Comr. Jack Metzger, Police and Fire Comr. Michael Moran, and Park Commissioners Hugh Wilson and Frank Sehnaltmann.

Smet said he fears some reprisals from CAP for his action, noting that Monoson has been attacked several times since he left the "citizens lobby" in late May.

"I know he (Monoson) received some repercussions when he left, and I'm certainly hoping that I don't have to suffer the same thing," he said.

Smet said that while he was never part of the "inner circle" of the CAP group, he was tainted by his association with that group.

"I just don't think I have to live in the village with that sort of stigma," he said. "I just want to be completely out of it."

Smet said the CAP stigma surfaced during discussions on his reappointment to the plan commission last week. The Wheeling Improvement Party (WHIP) had asked that all incumbent commissioners be replaced by new volunteers, saying that persons serving on the commissions were tainted by the Stavros scandal.

THE VILLAGE board reappointed Smet by a one-vote margin after a lengthy discussion over his high rate of absenteeism. Smet said his absences were caused by illness and because he had to work nights for a lengthy period.

"I thought that perhaps it was a situation that if I had not been involved in any political group that perhaps the people would have been a little bit more understanding," Smet said of the discussion prior to his reappointment.

Smet said he did not know whether CAP is still a functioning group in the village. "I was never in on the inner parts of anything, and I really don't know how the situation is right now," he said. Smet said that the inner circle of CAP is Hein and Metzger.

Calling his plan commission seat "the thing I want to do best," Smet said, "I feel that if you are going to do something, you should be able to devote yourself to that. If you are all over the place, you can only do one thing well."

Court case continued for village clerk

A continuance was granted this week in the traffic court case against Wheeling Village Clerk Evelyn Diens.

Mrs. Diens, 53, of 323 N. First St., Wheeling, was charged with failure to yield to a pedestrian in a June 14 accident that injured an 11-year-old boy. The boy, Mark Redmond, 160 Sunrise Dr., Wheeling, was treated at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines.

The case, which had been scheduled for Tuesday in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court, has been continued to Aug. 13 in the same courtroom.

Jaycees in middle of planner tiff

by LYNN ASINOF

The Wheeling Jaycees are embroiled in a political battle between Plan Commissioners Gil Monoson and Jack Metzger, which Monoson said resulted from his defection from the Citizens Action Program.

Monoson charged Thursday that Metzger and Trustee William Hein, both leaders in CAP, are mounting a "political smear" campaign against him because he has raised touchy issues in the village.

The Jaycee board of directors took action on the matter in closed session Wednesday night by conducting an investigation of charges leveled by Metzger against Monoson, according to Jaycee sources. The board was expected to seek revocation of Metzger's Jaycee membership at a meeting last night because of his conduct in the matter.

AT ISSUE IS Monoson's handling of the finances for an ad book for the Jaycees Fourth of July celebration. Metzger has accused Monoson of taking personal checks for advertisements by businessmen and cashing them in his own name. Monoson contends that while he did cash three checks, he never pocketed the money but set it aside to draw a cashier's check to cover all outstanding debts for the ad book.

Metzger said Thursday that he raised the issue with the Jaycees board because "I thought it was my obligation to bring it to the attention of the board." He said that he came across the check-cashing issue by accident, and felt the board was the appropriate body to handle an investigation.

Monoson, however, maintained that the charges are political since the book-keeping of most Jaycee projects is somewhat informal.

"You don't quit the boys. It's just that easy," Monoson said, noting his decision in May to leave CAP because the group (Continued on Page 5)

With monorail

18-story Hyatt Regency Hotel planned for Schaumburg

by PAT GERLACH

An 18-story Hyatt Regency Hotel, high-rise commercial and residential buildings, all connected by monorail, are planned for development on the 153-acre Union Oil property in Schaumburg.

Developers are suggesting a proposed cultural center be located in an I-shaped mall area in the center of the complex rather than on the 40-acre Schaumburg Road civic-cultural center complex.

The design concept is reportedly the brainchild of Marshall Bennett of Bennett and Kahnweiler. His partners in the project include Jack N. Pritzker, a Chicago attorney and financier, Union Oil Co. and possibly the Village of Schaumburg.

Informal meetings to discuss preliminary plans have been held with village officials over the past 18 months, according to Trustee Herbert J. Aigner.

A STRIP AT THE eastern edge of the property, along I-90, is being reserved for prime commercial space which might be utilized as midwest corporate headquarters for several major U.S. firms, Aigner said.

The Hyatt Regency Hotel would be at one end of the mall area and contain the cultural center and commercial space. The hotel chain is owned by the Pritzker family.

Aigner and Trustee Ray G. McArthur confirmed that a multi-family high-rise cluster development is planned at the west edge of the development.

The existing Union Oil Co. building is included in the total site and demolition of the structure is possible after 15 years.

SOURCES SAY that Bennett has asked the village to:

- Build all streets and install utilities
- Construct a pedestrian overpass at Golf Road
- Construct a bridge or underpass at I-90 near Golf Road
- Build a secondary access road from Meacham to Roselle road midway between the tollroad and Golf Road

- Design and construct a monorail
- Provide water reservoirs, wells, and sewers and waive all tap-on fees.

Bennett, who is vacationing in Sun Valley, Idaho, could not be reached for comment.

THE PROJECT, to be completed over the next 20 years, is being designed by James DeStefano, of Skidmore, Skidmore, Owings and Merrill, Chicago architects. Real Estate Research, a Chicago consulting firm, has been researching a market for the complex for several years, sources say.

Robert Archie, a spokesman for Union Oil, confirmed his company's involvement in the project, but said he has little information on the plan. Archie said a $300,000 price tag on the project "appears grossly exaggerated" unless major revisions have taken place since he saw the design concept.

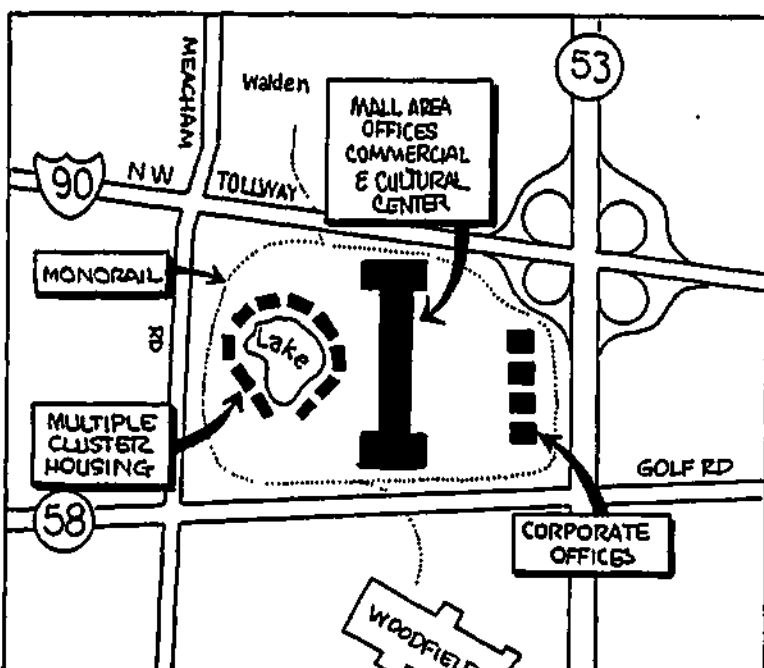

Sociologist Pierre DeVise considers the project "very feasible" for the Schaumburg area, which he considers "one of the hot suburban real estate markets."

BUT DeVise, an assistant professor of urban sciences at the University of Illinois Chicago Circle Campus, said he "deplores" the type of development being planned there because "it is taking away from the center-city Chicago" hub of activity.

The Northeastern Illinois Plan Commission (NIPC) refused to comment on the plan "because of its purely local nature," a spokesman said, adding that NIPC is now "negotiating" with the village on population forecasts.

Village Pres. Robert O. Alcher said through a spokesman Thursday he is "not at liberty to discuss the project." The village has not received a petition for zoning or annexation of the property now in unincorporated Schaumburg Township, he added. The spokesman refused to comment on whether a petition is expected though sources close to the developers anticipate an early August meeting to announce plans.

To make teachers aware of stereotyping

Schools to conduct sex-role seminars

by JILL BETTNER

Wheeling-Buffalo Grove School Dist. 21 is planning a series of workshops next year to increase teacher awareness of sex-role stereotyping in the classroom.

The workshops will be conducted by Dist. 21 personnel under the direction of Marjorie Beu, assistant superintendent for instruction.

Last month, a local parent group asked the school board to provide in-service training for teachers on sex role stereotyping and offered to assist in running the sessions.

The Citizens Task Force on Education, headed by Judy Brady-Keller and Carol Wrahl of Arlington Heights, submitted a proposed outline for a teacher training program to the school board.

MISS BEU SAID, however, that the decision was made that Dist. 21 staff members were better qualified to design and implement instruction for teachers. The curriculum director said the workshops are not being set up specifically in response to the task force request.

"We're doing this in response to a need that we all recognize," she said, adding that attempting to make teachers more aware of sex role stereotyping and sexual bias is part of the district's emphasis on "affective education."

Affective education deals with heightening both teacher and student emotional sensitivity.

"As we see affective education in our district, our main goal is to help kids develop a positive attitude about themselves rather than a self-concept that would hinder learning," Miss Beu said. "This is just one more phase of developing a healthy self-concept."

Materials on sex-role stereotyping and sexual bias published by the National Education Assn. are to be used in the workshops scheduled for early next fall.

Miss Beu said the sessions will be conducted individually for staff at each of the 17 schools in the district so that the context of each workshop can be geared to meet the needs of particular building programs. She added that small group meetings will allow teachers to interact and discuss their feelings more freely than they might in a large group.

ONE OF THE recommendations previously made by the task force was that teachers be provided with supplementary materials to use along with regular textbooks that portray men and women in traditional sex roles. The supplementary materials would give teachers ideas for changing stories by substituting a woman in the role of a doctor, for example, instead of a man.

Miss Beu said she could see adding books on sexual bias to the professional libraries in local schools, but said she feels asking teachers to use supplementary classroom materials as suggested by the task force isn't necessary.

"I think if we can give teachers a good exposure to what sex role stereotyping really is, they can handle it on their own without giving them a specific prescription for situations in the classroom," she said.

Jaycees probe charges against plan official

was restricting his freedom to speak on village issues. He said some members of the CAP group are connected with James Stavros, former Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman who is serving a four-year prison sentence for extortion and tax evasion.

MONOSON SAID Hein, Metzger and police and fire commission member Michael Moran are Stavros' "heirs apparent" in trying to establish political control over the village. Stavros, a behind-the-scenes power in Wheeling government, was charged with five others following a year-long federal probe into official corruption involving the shakedown of Wheeling developers.

Monoson said he first was criticized by CAP members after he publicly called on the village to ban vending machines owned by syndicate-linked companies.

He said he later raised issues that also disturbed the powers that be. These issues included calling for the disclosure of all secret land trust beneficiaries that would profit from village action and a stricter policy on zoning decisions.

"The only thing that they can do is come after me on a personal character assassination," Monoson said, adding that he is not in a financial situation that would allow other pressures to be applied.

METZGER, HOWEVER, said his actions were not politically motivated. "If I was going to make a grandstand play, I would have bided my time," he said. "I would have brought it out at the appropriate political moment."

Hein also said that he has never brought political matters into the Jaycee organization, saying that the only political charges are coming from Monoson.

"Gill wants to make it a political thing, but it's not," Hein said. "I have no vendetta against him."

Monoson, Hein and Metzger all said they would fight for their position in the matter.

"I'm going to vote my conscience as long as I am able to remain a member of that plan commission," Monoson said. "I'm going to step on everybody's toes. I'm going to divulge every secret land trust in town. I don't plan to serve any political party or political puppet."

The Jaycee board has taken action after investigating the matter, and was expected to chastise Metzger for his conduct at a membership meeting last night.

Old Town may face lawsuit if MSD rules are not met

The Metropolitan Sanitary District has threatened to sue the Prospect Heights Old Town Sanitary District for failure to comply with sewer-inspection requirements.

The MSD Board of Trustees voted Thursday to give the local sanitary district until July 22 to inspect sewer connections within its boundaries.

At about the same time Thursday, the OTSD had a pretrial hearing on its suit against the MSD. The OTSD suit asks the court to tell the district "what its duties are," said Richard Schulz, OTSD superintendent. "Our suit is basically about sewer connections within the boundaries of our district."

THE OTSD SUIT was prompted, in part, by the MSD requirements that municipalities and local sanitary districts inspect sanitary sewers for illegal infiltration of stormwater.

The requirements, which went into effect Jan. 1, 1973, call for inspections of downspouts, roof drains, damaged manholes, sewers crossing creeks and ditches and illegal connections of sump pumps and storm sewers to sanitary sewers.

If the OTSD fails to meet the MSD deadline, the MSD attorney is to seek a court order to force compliance with the inspection requirements. The MSD also would seek fines of between $100 and $1,000 per day for each day past the deadline that the OTSD violates the MSD inspection requirements.

SCHULZ SAID THE OTSD has "a continuous program of sewer evaluation" and has had it since before the MSD ordinance was enacted. He said the district has failed to file the required reports, however, because of its own suit against the MSD, which was filed early this year.

MSD Chief Engineer Forrest C. Neil Thursday said the OTSD had offered no defense at a hearing June 20 and had refused to supply atlases of the Prospect Heights district to the MSD.

"We are very hopeful of working with the MSD on this," Schulz said. In the OTSD suit, the judge set aside a 60-day period for the OTSD and MSD to work out an agreement.

Thief makes clean sweep of van, contents

A 1974 Dodge van containing three vacuum cleaners was reported stolen Wednesday from 733 Lakeview Dr., Wheeling police said.

The owner, Leroy W. Edgerton of the same address, told police the van and contents are worth $7,000. The van was stolen between 5 p.m. Tuesday and 9 a.m. Wednesday, police said. An employee of Edgerton's maid service company had had the vehicle in his possession and he also has disappeared, police said.

The van is gold and white.

Kindergarten classes at St. Alphonsus

Kindergarten classes will be reinstated this fall at St. Alphonsus School, 411 Wheeling Rd., Prospect Heights. The classes were discontinued four years ago because of lack of interest and lack of space.

Persons interested in either program should call Geri Podlin at 392-8538 or Marilyn Novak at 392-1284 for more information.

Village expected to give approval to buy golf club

by JOE FRANZ

Buffalo Grove officials are expected to approve an agreement next week to purchase the 120-acre Buffalo Grove Golf Club.

Along with the purchase agreement, the village board also will pass an ordinance changing the zoning on property surrounding the golf course. Early this year, the board agreed to allow multi-family housing around the course, if the village was given the opportunity to purchase it.

If the contract to purchase the golf course is executed as planned, the village would take over operation of the 18-hole golf course Oct. 31. The village would have five years in which to arrange a method of financing the facility.

If the village arranges financing and the owners receive the money on or before Dec. 31, 1979, the village would pay $1.1 million. After that date, however, the price would be $1.2 million.

If the agreement to purchase the course is approved, the village would make an initial down payment of $1,000 and then make annual payments of that amount to the owners until financing is arranged. In addition, the village would be required to make monthly interest payments on the unpaid balance.

THE OWNERS have requested 6 per cent interest for the first two years and 7 per cent interest for each of the remaining three years. Village officials said financing would be arranged as soon as possible to avoid paying more interest than necessary.

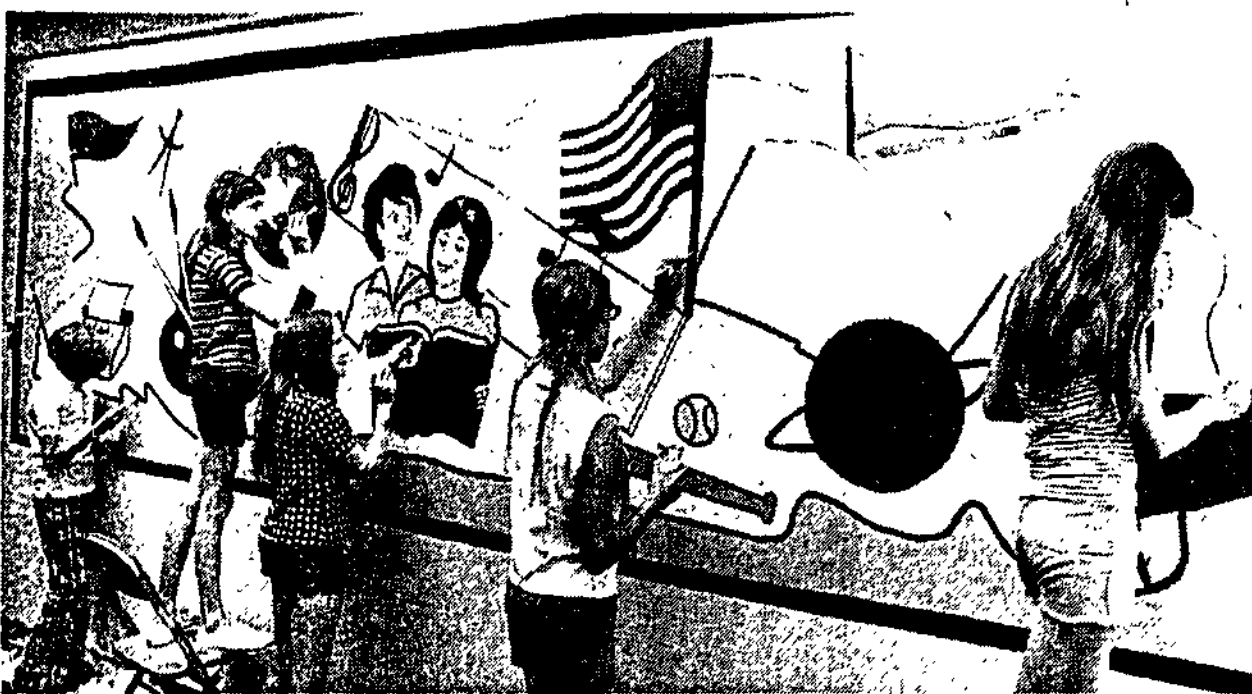

In any case, the village could conceivably pay approximately $363,000 in interest before financing of the course is arranged. The interest would be approximately $68,000 for each of the first two years and approximately $77,000 for each of the remaining three years.

After financing is arranged, the village would be paying interest each year on the declining balance.

Village officials are considering alternate methods of financing the course, including several that would raise property taxes. They say there is still a chance, however, that a tax increase may not be necessary.

Some village board members said they are skeptical about raising taxes to buy the course, while others have said they

Schools plan workshops on sex roles

by JILL BETTNER

Wheeling-Buffalo Grove School Dist. 21 is planning a series of workshops next year to increase teacher awareness of sex-role stereotyping in the classroom.

The workshops will be conducted by Dist. 21 personnel under the direction of Marjorie Beu, assistant superintendent for instruction.

Last month, a local parent group asked the school board to provide in-service training for teachers on sex role stereotyping and offered to assist in running the sessions.

The Citizens Task Force on Education, headed by Judy Brady-Keller and Carol Wrabl of Arlington Heights, submitted a proposed outline for a teacher training program to the school board.

MISS BEU SAID, however, that the decision was made that Dist. 21 staff members were better qualified to design and implement instruction for teachers. The curriculum director said the workshops are not being set up specifically in response to the task force request.

"We're doing this in response to a need that we all recognize," she said, adding that attempting to make teachers more aware of sex role stereotyping and sexual bias is part of the district's emphasis on "affective education."

Affective education deals with heightening both teacher and student emotional sensitivity.

"As we see affective education in our district, our main goal is to help kids develop a positive attitude about themselves rather than a self-concept that would hinder learning," Miss Beu said. "This is just one more phase of developing a healthy self-concept."

Materials on sex-role stereotyping and sexual bias published by the National Education Assn. are to be used in the workshops scheduled for early next fall.

Miss Beu said the sessions will be conducted individually for staff at each of

Schools to offer bilingual program

A bilingual program for Spanish-speaking students and children with Spanish surnames will be offered next fall by elementary School Dist. 96 and High School Dist. 125.

Along with Districts 96 and 125, which serve the Lake County section of Buffalo Grove, Elementary School Districts 102 and 103 will participate in the cooperative program that has been set up with a $20,000 grant from the state superintendent's office.

A new law requires all Illinois school districts with at least 20 children who have "limited English-speaking ability" attending any one school to provide bilingual instruction by 1976.

THE COOPERATIVE program was established by the southern Lake County schools because the population of children who either have Spanish surnames or are bilingual is widely dispersed throughout the four districts.

Wayne Schnable, Dist. 125 curriculum coordinator who drew up the grant proposal for the program, said there are about 87 students, including some preschool youngsters and ranging through the twelfth grade, who would benefit from the bilingual program.

The $20,000 grant will cover the cost of hiring one bilingual instructor, one bilingual teacher aide, the purchase of audio visual materials and other instructional materials, plus in-service training for regular classroom teachers and pupil evaluation.

THE INSTRUCTOR and teacher aide are to divide their time between the four school districts, working with both individuals and groups of students.

In addition to providing help for Spanish-speaking students who have problems with English, the program also will include instruction in Spanish language and culture.

Officials feel the Lake County school districts are somewhat fortunate to receive the full amount requested for the program from the state superintendent's office.

Although state monies for bilingual instruction were increased by over $400,000 this year, many school districts all over the state are competing for funds in order to establish programs by the 1976 deadline.

Downtown Schaumburg will be carved during the next 20 years across the sprawling Union Oil Co. property.

With monorail

18-story Hyatt Regency Hotel planned for Schaumburg

by PAT GERLACH

An 18-story Hyatt Regency Hotel, high-rise commercial and residential buildings, all connected by monorail, are planned for development on the 153-acre Union Oil property in Schaumburg.

Developers are suggesting a proposed cultural center be located in an I-shaped mall area in the center of the complex rather than on the 40-acre Schaumburg Road civic-cultural center complex.

The design concept is reportedly the brainchild of Marshall Bennett of Bennett and Kahnweiler. His partners in the project include Jack N. Pritzker, a Chicago attorney and financier, Union Oil Co. and possibly the Village of Schaumburg.

Informal meetings to discuss preliminary plans have been held with village officials over the past 18 months, according to Trustee Herbert J. Aigner.

A STRIP AT THE eastern edge of the property, along I-90, is being reserved for prime commercial space which might be utilized as midwest corporate headquarters for several major U.S. firms, Aigner said.

The Hyatt Regency Hotel would be at one end of the mall area and contain the cultural center and commercial space. The hotel chain is owned by the Pritzker family.

Aigner and Trustee Ray G. McArthur confirmed that a multi-family high-rise cluster development is planned at the west edge of the development.

The existing Union Oil Co. building is included in the total site and demolition of the structure is possible after 15 years.

SOURCES SAY that Bennett has asked the village to:

- Build all streets and install utilities
- Construct a pedestrian overpass at Golf Road
- Construct a bridge or underpass at I-90 near Golf Road
- Build a secondary access road from Meacham to Roselle road midway between the tollroad and Golf Road

- Design and construct a monorail
- Provide water reservoirs, wells, and sewers and waive all tap-on fees.

Bennett, who is vacationing in Sun Valley, Idaho, could not be reached for comment.

THE PROJECT, to be completed over the next 20 years, is being designed by James DeStefano, of Skidmore, Skidmore, Owings and Merrill, Chicago architects. Real Estate Research, a Chicago consulting firm, has been researching a market for the complex for several years, sources say.

Robert Archie, a spokesman for Union Oil, confirmed his company's involvement in the project, but said he has little information on the plan. Archie said a $300,000 price tag on the project "appears grossly exaggerated" unless major revisions have taken place since he saw the design concept.

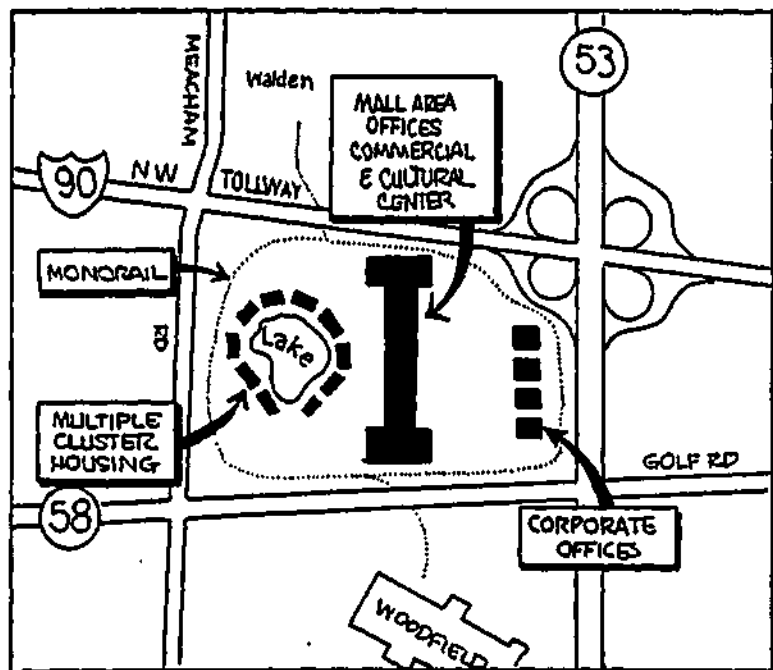

Sociologist Pierre DeVise considers the project "very feasible" for the Schaumburg area, which he considers "one of the hot suburban real estate markets."

BUT DeVISE, an assistant professor of urban sciences at the University of Illinois Chicago Circle Campus, said he "deplores" the type of development being planned there because "it is taking away from the center-city Chicago" hub of activity.

The Northeastern Illinois Plan Commission (NIPCC) refused to comment on the plan "because of its purely local nature," a spokesman said, adding that NIPCC is now "negotiating" with the village on population forecasts.

Village Pres. Robert O. Atcher said through a spokesman Thursday he is "not at liberty to discuss the project." The village has not received a petition for zoning or annexation of the property now in unincorporated Schaumburg Township, he added. The spokesman refused to comment on whether a petition is expected though sources close to the developers anticipate an early August meeting to announce plans.

If all terms are agreeable

Fire vote may get go-ahead Monday

Buffalo Grove may clear the final hurdle Monday night on its way to a referendum that would put the village under one fire department.

The village board this week received a revised agreement from the Wheeling Township Rural Fire Protection District that makes provisions for the transfer of property and buildings to the village once a municipal fire department is formed. The agreement is the only matter that has been holding up a referendum.

The village board more than five months ago voted to support a referendum that would put the village in the Wheeling district.

AT PRESENT, the village is served by three fire districts and officials say consolidating the village into one district will make it easier to form a municipal department in the future.

Before the referendum is conducted, officials want to work out an agreement with the Wheeling district, so there are no problems when the village decides to form a municipal department.

Under the agreement, the village must notify the fire district in writing 180 days before forming a municipal department.

In turn, the district would transfer all land and buildings to the village. The village, however, would assume all outstanding debts on the real estate.

AFTER A MUNICIPAL fire department is formed, the village would contract with the fire district to service nearby areas that are not within its limits.

This is included in the agreement because some unincorporated areas may become isolated from the rest of the fire district.

While the village still is part of the fire district, the Wheeling district agrees to spend for Buffalo Grove fire protection an amount approximately equal to tax revenue collected in the village.

The district also agrees to consult the village before purchasing additional land or constructing new fire stations.

THE VILLAGE RECENTLY reached agreement with the Buffalo Grove Fire Dept. Inc., which is contracted by the Wheeling district, concerning the transfer of equipment, firemen's salaries, personnel policies and fringe benefits.

The village plans to consolidate the two agreements. If the agreement is approved Monday night, village officials are hopeful the referendum can be put to the voters in August or September.

Currently the southern part of the village is in the Wheeling district while the northern portion is in the Long Grove and Vernon fire districts.

Officials have said they would prefer forming a municipal department now, but village finances will not permit it. They predict it will be two to three years before tax revenue will be adequate to support a municipal department.

Officials study rezoning request for animal clinic

A request for annexation and zoning to allow a veterinary clinic at Buffalo Grove and Old Chester roads is being reviewed by Buffalo Grove officials.

Dr. William Fabian, a veterinarian, has a contract to purchase about three-fourths of an acre at the southwest corner of the intersection. Under the proposal, an adjacent piece of unincorporated property also would be annexed.

Annexation of the additional piece is necessary because village ordinances require at least one acre for the business zoning that has been requested. The adjacent property contains a home, beauty shop and locksmith.

THE LAND ON which the veterinary clinic is proposed has a two-story home.

At the property to be annexed is zoned commercial by Lake County.

Fabian told the plan commission Wednesday night that he plans to convert the existing home into a clinic. He said he would treat small domestic animals on the premises.

Animals would be kept overnight at the clinic, if necessary, he said, but none would be boarded at the site. The clinic would not disturb neighboring property owners, Fabian said.

A public hearing before the plan commission on the proposal is set for Aug. 7. The commission has asked the building department for a recommendation on the feasibility of converting the home into a clinic.

Cat population called problem; ask regulation

A Buffalo Grove resident this week said there are many stray cats in the village and they are becoming a health hazard.

Richard Heinrich, 633 Patton Dr., said the number appears to be on the increase and has asked the village to take steps to control them.

"At the present time, the matter is becoming a matter of public safety," he told the village board this week. "The cats are becoming a definite health hazard."

The board directed the village attorney to investigate what, if any, action can be taken to regulate cats.

Board members said the village has the authority to license cats, but doubts it has the power to control the number.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said he has asked the Board of Health to review the matter and report its findings to the village board.

Village OK expected to buy golf club

would favor it if it becomes necessary. VILLAGE MGR. Daniel Larson said all indications are that the golf course is a moneymaking operation and it may pay for itself. The owners have consented to an audit that would determine the financial condition of the course.

Larson said the village is looking at three possible methods of financing the course. It could sell general obligation bonds, revenue bonds or a combination of both, he said.

If the village chooses to finance the course through the sale of general obligation bonds, officials said homeowners could be assessed as much as an additional $25 annually for 20 years. The sale of general obligation bonds would have to be approved by voters in a referendum.

If the village chooses to finance the course through a combination of bonds, officials estimate the cost to homeowners at an additional $4.50 to $5 per year, depending on the ratio of each type of bond.

Larson said the amount of the tax increase, if any at all, would depend on the amount of revenue raised through the operation of the golf course.

Larson said he prefers financing the course through general obligation bonds because the village would receive a cheaper interest rate than with revenue bonds.

Course to help teachers learn about sex roles

the 17 schools in the district so that the context of each workshop can be geared to meet the needs of particular building programs. She added that small group meetings will allow teachers to interact and discuss their feelings more freely than they might in a large group.

ONE OF THE recommendations previously made by the task force was that teachers be provided with supplementary materials to use along with regular textbooks that portray men and women in traditional sex roles. The supplementary materials would give teachers ideas for changing stories by substituting a woman in the role of a doctor, for example, instead of a man.

Miss Ben said she could see adding books on sexual bias to the professional libraries in local schools, but said she feels asking teachers to use supplementary classroom materials as suggested by the task force isn't necessary.

"I think if we can give teachers a good exposure to what sex role stereotyping really is, they can handle it on their own without giving them a specific prescription for situations in the classroom," she said.

Four rifles stolen

Four rifles of unknown value were stolen during several burglaries in the past month at the Edward Norzely residence, 3613 N. Buffalo Grove Rd., unincorporated Buffalo Grove.

The rifles, which were reported stolen Wednesday, include a .22-caliber rifle, two shotguns and an antique shotgun. All had been kept in a rear storage garage on the Norzely property.

Village orders open cistern be closed; deadline issued

Elk Grove Village Trustee Michael Tosto ordered an abandoned open cistern outside the village's western boundaries to be boarded up. Cook County officials, meanwhile, gave owners of the property five days to fill it or face a violation charge.

"We can decide later whose responsibility it is to fill the cistern in or make it safe; but I'll not argue whose problem it is while a child drowns," said Tosto.

Tosto said he was not aware of the problem until he read of Mitchell Trail residents' complaints in The Herald Wednesday. Residents on the west side of Elk Grove Village have been complaining for months, they say, to any agency that would listen about the abandoned, open water cistern near their homes. They feared, they said, the weed-covered opening posed a threat to children.

MRS. JOHN BURTON, 1413 Mitchell Tr., said a Cook County Building and Zoning Violation department inspector looked at the cistern with her Wednesday and said "It's a little problem but not catastrophic."

After months of being bounced from agency to agency, Mrs. Burton said Cook County officials admitted it was their responsibility but was told she would have to send in a written complaint and wait for her turn for inspection. "I felt I was just getting the runaround again and was worried about the kids," she said.

James Domico, Cook County building and zoning department violations supervisor, disputed Mrs. Burton's charges Tuesday. "A complaint had been telephoned into the department just this week, and an inspection was ordered immediately," he said.

Domico told The Herald Thursday an inspection was made, a violation definitely exists and the owner of the property, Ira Cohen of 100 N. LaSalle St., Chicago, has been notified and has promised to fill the cistern in within five days.

"WE WILL MAKE another inspection then and if it's not filled in we will issue a citation to Cohen," said Domico.

Mrs. Burton said she is pleased that Cook County is responding but unhappy about the way they are going about it. "A ticket or fine won't keep a child from falling in the hole," she said.

The cistern holds about four feet of stagnant water and is located on property near the Mitchell Trail cul-de-sac and Rohlfing Road. It adjoins the village boundaries and lies in an unincorporated area of Schaumburg Township in Cook County.

A WATER-FILLED open cistern will be boarded up by Elk Grove Village officials while Cook County officials attempt to force the owner of the property, in an unincorporated area of Schaumburg Township adjoining the village, to fill the cistern. Parents say it poses a threat to children.

NIPC backs road-work program

A $1.6 million widening and improvement program for part of Higgins Road and for River Road from Devon Avenue south to Higgins Road in Rosemont has been endorsed by the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission.

The village of Rosemont and the Illinois Department of Transportation are requesting $1,144,220 from the federal government for the project. NIPC must review requests for federal funding in the Chicago area, and make recommendations.

The project includes widening the section of River Road by 10 feet, with four lanes for traffic. Also included are combination curbs and gutters, sidewalks, median channelization, storm sewers, pavement stripping and upgrading of traffic control signals and street lighting.

Higgins Road, which has long been in poor condition, will be widened and repaved from Willow Creek east to River Road. Another section of River Road, from south of Williams Street to the Rosemont village limits, will also be widened.

The improvements are designed to reduce traffic congestion. River Road is designated an arterial roadway in the regional transportation interim plan and the 1955 arterial test network being evaluated by the Chicago Area Transportation Study.

Man accidentally torches own home

An Elk Grove Village man using a blowtorch to remove paint from the outside of his house at 1321 Cumberland East Dr., Elk Grove Village, accidentally ignited his home, causing $400 in damage Thursday.

Firemen said flames from the torch ignited a bird's nest inside the building's eaves, causing the wood-frame structure to burn. Firemen extinguished the blaze moments after it was reported.

Make Mr. Farris happy; pay school fees by mail

"Make Mr. Farris happy" reads the top line of the events sign in front of Elk Grove High School, Arlington Heights Road and Kennedy Boulevard.

"Mr. Farris," Rick Farris, assistant principal for administrative services, will only be happy if he has mail sacks full of money from parents on his desk before Aug. 11.

Farris initiated a new fee payment program this year at Elk Grove High School so parents can mail book fees to the school all summer, instead of waiting until one week before school begins, standing in line and paying in person.

"WE'RE ATTEMPTING to relieve the confusion and congestion that comes at fee payment time," said Farris. "Instead of having one week set aside for people to come in and pay we're using the mail system for their convenience."

"Last year we had a really bad experience here," Farris said. "People were crowding in, it was hot, there was pushing, shoving, kids were arguing with parents, parents were arguing with other Downtown Schaumburg will be carved during the next 20 years across the sprawling Union Oil Co. property.

With monorail

18-story Hyatt Regency Hotel planned for Schaumburg

by PAT GERLACH

An 18-story Hyatt Regency Hotel, high-rise commercial and residential buildings, all connected by monorail, are planned for development on the 153-acre Union Oil property in Schaumburg.

Developers are suggesting a proposed cultural center be located in an I-shaped mall area in the center of the complex rather than on the 40-acre Schaumburg Road civic-cultural center complex.

The design concept is reportedly the brainchild of Marshall Bennett of Bennett and Kahnweiler. His partners in the project include Jack N. Pritzker, a Chicago attorney and financier, Union Oil Co. and possibly the Village of Schaumburg.

Informal meetings to discuss preliminary plans have been held with village officials over the past 18 months, according to Trustee Herbert J. Algrer.

A STRIP AT THE eastern edge of the property, along I-90, is being reserved for prime commercial space which might be utilized as midwest corporate headquarters for several major U.S. firms, Aigner said.

The Hyatt Regency Hotel would be at one end of the mall area and contain the cultural center and commercial space. The hotel chain is owned by the Pritzker family.

Algrer and Trustee Ray G. McArthur confirmed that a multi-family high-rise cluster development is planned at the west edge of the development.

The existing Union Oil Co. building is included in the total site and demolition of the structure is possible after 15 years.

SOURCES SAY that Bennett has asked the village to:

- Build all streets and install utilities
- Construct a pedestrian overpass at Golf Road
- Construct a bridge or underpass at I-90 near Golf Road
- Build a secondary access road from Meacham to Roselle road midway between the tollroad and Golf Road

- Design and construct a monorail
- Provide water reservoirs, wells, and sewers and waive all tap-on fees.

Bennett, who is vacationing in Sun Valley, Idaho, could not be reached for comment.

THE PROJECT, to be completed over the next 20 years, is being designed by James DeStefano, of Skidmore, Skidmore, Owings and Merrill, Chicago architects. Real Estate Research, a Chicago consulting firm, has been researching a market for the complex for several years, sources say.

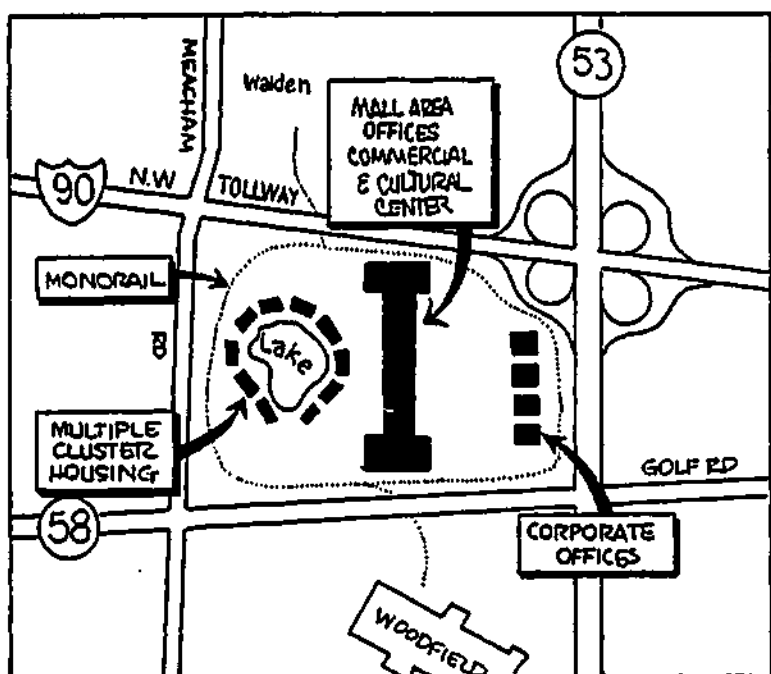

Robert Archie, a spokesman for Union Oil, confirmed his company's involvement in the project, but said he has little information on the plan. Archie said a $300,000 price tag on the project "appears grossly exaggerated" unless major revisions have been taken place since he saw the design concept.

Sociologist Pierre DeVise considers the project "very feasible" for the Schaumburg area, which he considers "one of the hot suburban real estate markets." BUT DeVise, an assistant professor of urban sciences at the University of Illinois Chicago Circle Campus, said he "deplores" the type of development being planned there because "it is taking away from the center-city Chicago" hub of activity.

The Northeastern Illinois Plan Commission (NIPC) refused to comment on the plan "because of its purely local nature," a spokesman said, adding that NIPC is now "negotiating" with the village on population forecasts.

Village Pres. Robert O. Atcher said through a spokesman Thursday he is "not at liberty to discuss the project." The village has not received a petition for zoning or annexation of the property now in unincorporated Schaumburg Township, he added. The spokesman refused to comment on whether a petition is expected though sources close to the developers anticipate an early August meeting to announce plans.

Long hours, lengthy work week, salary risks

You can bet on it—race track clerk's life not easy

by KURT BAER

Louis Spidalette stood at the betting window on the second floor grandstand at Arlington Park Race Track and talked about his job.

"Listen. This is our livelihood, our profession. At times it seems inhuman, and we have more broken homes than almost anybody. But nobody makes us do it. It's just our livelihood, our profession."

Spidalette works 12 hours a day, six days a week, as a mutual clerk at Chicago area race tracks. Like many of his co-workers who collect the money and hand betters the mutual tickets, he holds a job back of the betting windows at two different tracks each day.

Right now he spends his days at Arlington Park and his nights at Sportsman's Park in Cicero, some 50 miles away from his home in McHenry.

He knows that when he leaves his house at 11 a.m. each day he won't return until 1 a.m. the following morning.

THIS WEEK, mutual clerks protested delayed starting times on the nine-race program at Arlington Park.

Accord reached on final time

Arlington Park Race Track officials and the Electrical Workers Union that represents the track's parimutuel clerks have agreed that the last weekday race will be run no later than 5:40 p.m.

The time of the last Saturday race reportedly still is being negotiated.

Wednesday, parimutuel clerks showed up more than an hour late for work at Arlington Park to protest a lengthening of the daily racing program. The action delayed the start of Wednesday's first race by about 10 minutes.

Mutuel clerks were unhappy about the later racing times because they said it made it impossible for them to report on time for a second job at Sportsman's Park.

Both union and race track officials Thursday declined comment on the dispute.

or now, with the 55-m.p.h. limit, getting a ticket," he says.

"We're not here to gamble. We're here to serve the public. And to do that we have to be able to get to our job on time," says Bell.

Parimutuel tickets sellers make a minimum union wage of $43.75 per track, per day. A man working double shifts, six days a week can earn a gross income of $24,000.

Each seller and cashier is financially liable for his own mistakes while behind the betting counter.

The man who cashes a "pigeon," that is a losing or counterfeit ticket, must make up the payoff price out of his own pocket. Similarly, the seller who punches out a wrong ticket may wind up buying that chance himself if no other buyer comes to the window before the closing bell.

Two mistakes at the $10 window, and a clerk has lost a half day's pay.

"IT'S EXPERIENCE that makes the difference. Some guys are already short by as much as $400," Spidalette says, pulling out his latest pay check to show that the price of a seller's "sins" show up as one more computerized deduction.

So far, he has lost only $24 this year. His experience on the job dates back to 1952.

Two tracks is a rough schedule to keep the men say, but they do it voluntarily. Of the estimated 135 sellers and 80 cashiers on the job at Arlington Park Thursday afternoon, the majority also worked that night at Sportsman's.

"The only time I see my wife she's in pajamas," says Bell. "She's in her nightgown when I leave in the morning, and at night when I get home," says Bell.

"With the high price of living, what else can we do?" asks Nuccio.

Parimutuel clerks have not had a contract wage increase for three years, and like almost everyone else, these men say they are not keeping pace with the cost of living.

WAGES ARE BETTER at New York and California race tracks, and so are the afternoon post times, they say.

At Aqueduct race track in New York

the first race goes off at 1:30 p.m., at Hollywood Park in California, post time is 12:45 p.m.

Some mutual clerks say an earlier post time would work well at Arlington Park, not just for themselves, but for the racing fan as well.

"This is a summer race track and people want to get in early so that they can get home and cleaned up before dinner," says one seller.

"You could also count on people coming out during their lunch hour to bet the (daily) double," says another.

Spidalette, Bell, Nuccio and the other mutual clerks say they are most concerned about serving the racing public.

"There is only one thing we can give 'em at the race track, and that's service," says Bell.

Lines at the sellers' windows and even longer back ups at the cashier's counter do not please the fan or the clerks.

"There's one way to solve the problem and that's to put on more men," he says, admitting that, because of the cost, such a move is not likely.

Mr. Librarian

He's not just an old spinster, he can tell you the weather and the boys can identify...

by FRAN SLIMMER

Librarians aren't the stereotyped, bespectacled old spinsters anymore — there's a bespectacled young man working in the children's section of the Elk Grove Public Library.

Mark West, 24, joined the library staff three weeks ago and is already making friends with the youthful "regulars."

"It's amazing the frequency we see some of these children," he said of some readers who come into the library at least once a week.

West said he first received a "neutral response" from the young readers, who didn't much care whether the person who checked out the books was a man or a woman.

BUT, HE SAID, his presence is a service because a male librarian gives the he doesn't expect youngsters to be afraid to approach him for help.

West held a marketing job before he came to Elk Grove Village, but said he is better suited for the library job.

"My background is in psychology," he said. He received a B.S. in psychology from Bradley University in Peoria, and did graduate work in child psychology, behavior and development. He applied for the children's librarian post because "I wanted to get back into a more child-related job."

Child psychology is important in this job, West said, because he helps design programs that would attract children to the library.

One plan he has is to set up a weather station at the library. West worked in the geography department at Bradley and taught an introductory class, so he said he has the knowledge to set up such a station.

THE WEATHER STATION would be rather simple, West said, and would probably include a thermometer, a barometer for air pressure, a hydrometer for humidity, a wind vane and an anemometer to measure wind speed.

"With these instruments we can do a pretty fair job of predicting the weather around here," he said. He also plans to organize bulletin boards explaining forecasting.

He said he might try to tie the forecasting with Scouting, because Boy Scouts can earn merit badges in weather predicting.

The library offers study hours for preschoolers, which are held this summer on Tuesdays at 7 and 8 p.m. West uses picture books, story cards, finger plays and songs to hold the 3- to 5-year-olds' interest.

"Three-year-olds get bored quickly, so we keep things moving," he said. But the whole idea of the story hours is "to give children exposure to literature," he said. Librarians want children to know "books are your friends," he said.

While story hours are now limited to preschoolers, he said, Elk Grove librarians are exploring the possibility of having a similar program for older children.

ANOTHER SUMMER reading program is geared toward "any child who reads, through sixth grade," West said. Children read at least 10 books, and this year's program, Book Fiesta, will end with a piñata party Aug. 14.

Children as young as 3 come into the library and look at or check out books, West said. "There's no reason a child can't start reading at that age, if the parents take the time," he said.

Before he came to the Elk Grove library, West worked for the Illinois Dept. of Public Aid both as a volunteer and salaried employee. While there, he helped coordinate activities between that department and the Department of Children and Family Services in Peoria County, and he worked as an ADC caseworker.

He is enrolled in the graduate school of education at Loyola University and is coordinating activities of a folk-guitar group at St. Zachary's Church in Des Plaines, where he now lives.

West also taught sixth-grade religious classes for a while, and his friends consider his move to the library a "natural progression" in working with children, he said.

Only one person really teases him about his job, he said — his mother. She's a children's librarian in Park Ridge.

Consultants seek more time

Village delays $22,000 study to weigh buying lake water

A $22,000 study of Elk Grove Village's total water supply and distribution system that includes weighing the merits of buying water from Lake Michigan has been delayed until September.

Elk Grove Village officials contracted with Greeley and Hansen, Chicago water consultants, to conduct the study in April. A final report was expected in July, but consultants have asked for more time to study the issue.

Elk Grove Village has a contract with the Tree Towns Water Commission composed of Elmhurst, Villa Park, and Lombard in DuPage County. The commission in 1972 offered a plan for pumping water from Lake Michigan to the Northwest suburbs. The plan could supply nearly 2 billion gallons of water a year to Elk Grove Village.

That same year, the state authorized allocation of Lake Michigan water to Elk Grove Village and other communities through the Tree Towns Commission and Elk Grove contracted with Tree Towns.

HOWEVER, the Metropolitan Sanitary District is contesting the state allocations and a Lake County Circuit Court judge in 1972 ordered the state to hold new hearings on the allocations.

Greeley and Hansen will represent the village of Elk Grove in the hearings in an attempt to protect the village's 2-billion-gallon-a-year allocation and get it increased if possible.

James Clementi, Elk Grove Village water department chief, said the village could start using the lake water by 1975 if it wanted to, but is not now facing a water shortage.

The village has nine deep wells and over 9 million gallons of reservoir.

"Eventually, we will have to look to Lake Michigan for water like other suburbs in the Galesburg strata where our wells tap. But we aren't in a hurry," he said.

THE GREELEY STUDY, in addition to providing advice about the village's participation in the Tree Towns Water Commission, will suggest future well sites. It will also pinpoint location of large reservoirs needed if Elk Grove Village were to bring Lake Michigan water to the village.

It is estimated it could cost $1.3 million for Lake Michigan water the first year the Tree Towns system is operational.

The Tree Towns contract is not the only option open to Elk Grove Village for obtaining water.

It can buy water directly from Chicago, make provisions for piping its own allocation from Lake Michigan, or purchase water from various water commissions, not only the Tree Towns Commission.

According to Elk Grove Village Mgr. Charles Willis, the Greeley study will help the village decide what direction it intends to take.

High school board OKs new discipline policy

The High School Dist. 211 board of education approved a somewhat more lenient student discipline policy in a 6-1 decision Thursday.

Board member Jean Fiesler cast the dissenting vote against new policy, developed by the board's student discipline committee.

"The results of the student discipline policy committee were somewhat disappointing to me," said Mrs. Fiesler. "I think the basic defects as I saw them are still there."

Earlier Mrs. Fiesler had submitted an eight-page report recommending changes in discipline policy, particularly regarding expulsion. Mrs. Fiesler said she objects to the new policy because expulsion for truancy "deprives a child of his education."

The new policy retains the possible recommendation of expulsion for truancy and smoking violations, as well as drug possession and sales, possession of a dangerous weapon and other serious offenses.

"I believe it should take a substantial disruption of school activities to put a person out of school," said Mrs. Fiesler.

MRS. FISLER said she did agree with expulsion of students for serious offenses such as sale of drugs or possession of a dangerous weapon.

Mrs. Fiesler said she thinks there are other alternatives for handling truant students.

Board member Edward Perry said the policy "was a move toward more leniency" and right now no better alternatives are available.

Perry said the education committee program proposal for underachievers and highachievers students may provide an alternative to truancy expulsion.

The board voted to send the proposal to the administrative council for study. The board may vote on the council's recommendation on the alternative education proposal at its next meeting July 25.

Car-crash victim had sought job with Des Plaines

The victim of a fatal accident in Des Plaines Wednesday was a fire department job applicant who had completed an interview with city police and fire commissioners several hours before his death, Chief Donald Corey said.

The dead man, Robert James Hammer, 31, was undergoing the series of written and physical tests required by the city for jobs in the police and fire departments.

Hammer was killed in a rear-end collision on Touhy Avenue near Wolf Road when his auto struck a semi-trailer truck.

Police listed his address as being 10023 Lindale, Melrose Park.

Corey said Hammer, a one-time ambulance driver for a private company, had been at fire department headquarters Rand and River Roads for an oral interview and left about 9 p.m.

The accident, according to fire department's reports, occurred about 2:54 a.m. Hammer was pronounced dead on arrival at Holy Family Hospital at 3:15 a.m.

Stab victim listed in 'good' condition

An Addison man who was found stabbed in front of an Elk Grove Township tavern was listed in good condition Thursday at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village. He was being treated for stomach wounds.

James Bray, 22, of 463 Mill Rd., Addison, was found by Elk Grove Village police in the front seat of his car parked in front of Spruce Inn, 2835 Higgins Rd., Elk Grove Township, at 2:30 a.m. Thursday.

Bray told police someone had stabbed him in the stomach with a knife. Cook County Sheriff's Police investigating the incident and Elk Grove police assisting on the scene found the alleged knifer subdued by patrons inside the tavern.

Sheriff's police charged Fred Walter, 40, of Matteson, Ill. with the knifing.

Hope mailing school fees will halt crush

parents. It was bad."

This year the unpleasant scene will not be repeated. The only way parents can pay the book fees will be by mail or in person at the high school before Aug. 11.

Farris believes the new system, will save the taxpayers money as well as make things more convenient. In past years, the high school had to hire approximately 10 people for six days to handle the fee payment rush. "This way we can take care of it daily as part of our normal work load," Farris said.

ELK GROVE HIGH school is the only Dist. 214 school to try the new system. "Students have already registered for classes and had their ID pictures taken. All they need to do is come to school, Aug. 29, go to their homeroom, get a locker assignment and they're all set," he added.

As of Thursday, Farris had only received 200 mail payments out of the more than 2,400 sent out.

"We really need those back here; we need the cooperation of the parents," Farris said.

Strike's a plague for cement worker's family

by BETTY LEE

Maria Tamayo was wondering what to make for dinner as she sat in her living room. She was attempting to soothe her crying two-year-old.

Across the room her husband, Cirilo, was looking at the afternoon paper for the want ads. Until several weeks ago he was preparing roads for black-topping and concrete, but because of the cement truck drivers' strike, he was laid off. He has been looking for work ever since. Like thousands of others in the Chicago area, he and his family are affected by the strike, now in its sixth week.

"He's been out all morning," said Mrs. Tamayo. "It hurts when they strike and you have kids to support. When they're small they don't know what's going on."

The lifestyle of the Tamayo family changed considerably since the start of the strike.

BECAUSE OF THE strike, the Tamayos had to delve into their savings which was the money they were to use this winter when construction season is over.

"Savings? What savings," said Tamayo. "It's just dollars and nickels now."

Their finances also were strained when they had to make a sudden move two weeks ago from their rented home in Arlington Heights. Their landlord wanted them to vacate in seven days.

"I had such headaches," Mrs. Tamayo said. "We had to move so fast that we left furniture and things in the house. We need to buy another sofa and a bed, but everything is so expensive."

WITH THEIR BELONGINGS stuffed into their car, the Tamayos and their four children moved into Rand Grove Village in Palatine Township. The move meant an increase in rent — from $80 to $215 a month, even though the housing is federally subsidized.

"We like it here and it will be better for the kids," Mrs. Tamayo said. "I used to be so afraid that one of my kids would get hit by a car when we lived at the other place."

The Tamayos previously lived near the intersection of Arlington Heights and Golf roads, one of the busiest intersections in the village.

The strike also meant cutting down on food and clothing. "Even the basics — milk, meat and eggs, are expensive," she said.

She began making her own bread and snacks for the family instead of going to the bakery. Meals contain less meat now.

THREE OF HER four children will be attending school this fall, which will require new clothes, shoes and books.

Her husband's unemployment compensation is sometimes bolstered with Maria Tamayo's occasional sewing project. Whenever she can, Mrs. Tamayo sews to help the family finances. The Tamayos' eldest daughter, Mary, works in a factory to help out.

"As soon as I make money sewing dresses, I spend the money on food or whatever we need," she said. "And that's when I pay all the bills."

Mrs. Tamayo wants to go back to work, but because of physical problems, she stays at home. "I want to work so I can help him," she said as she glanced at her husband.

Two of her children run in and out of the apartment, playing games with each other. "Sure they know about the strike," said Mrs. Tamayo. "They know it's going to be hard not getting the things they want. But they'll learn."

Cement truck drivers have been on strike in Northern Illinois since mid-May, primarily because of a pay-hike disagreement in salary negotiations with the Northern Illinois Ready Mix and Materials Assn.

Talks broke off between the truck driver's union and management when negotiators turned down an offer of a $1.65-per-hour increase in benefits over three years. Drivers asked for a $1.50 per hour raise over three years. Also at issue was the possible inclusion of a cost-of-living escalator clause in the new pact.

Three-thousand members and affiliates of Local 785 of the Building Material, Lumber, Box Shaving, Roofing and Insulating, Chauffeurs, Teamsters, Warehousemen and Helpers Union have led the strike.

Construction has been tied up throughout Northern Illinois because of the walkout.

Negotiations were resumed recently.

Downtown Schaumburg will be carved during the next 20 years across the sprawling Union Oil Co. property.

With monorail

18-story Hyatt Regency Hotel planned for Schaumburg

by PAT GERLACH

An 18-story Hyatt Regency Hotel, high-rise commercial and residential buildings, all connected by monorail, are planned for development on the 40-acre Union Oil property in Schaumburg.

Developers are suggesting a proposed cultural center be located in an I-shaped mall area in the center of the complex rather than on the 40-acre Schaumburg Road civic-cultural center complex.

The design concept is reportedly the brainchild of Marshall Bennett of Bennett and Kahnweiler. His partners in the project include Jack N. Pritzker, a Chicago attorney and financier, Union Oil Co. and possibly the Village of Schaumburg.

Informal meetings to discuss preliminary plans have been held with village officials over the past 18 months, according to Trustee Herbert J. Aigner.

A STRIP AT THE eastern edge of the property, along I-90, is being reserved for prime commercial space which might be utilized as midwest corporate headquarters for several major U.S. firms, Aigner said.

The Hyatt Regency Hotel would be at one end of the mall area and contain the cultural center and commercial space. The hotel chain is owned by the Pritzker family.

Aigner and Trustee Ray G. McArthur confirmed that a multi-family high-rise cluster development is planned at the west edge of the development.

The existing Union Oil Co. building is included in the total site and demolition of the structure is possible after 15 years.

SOURCES SAY that Bennett has asked the village to:

- Build all streets and install utilities
- Construct a pedestrian overpass at Golf Road
- Construct a bridge or underpass at I-90 near Golf Road
- Build a secondary access road from Meacham to Roselle road midway between the tollroad and Golf Road

- Design and construct a monorail
- Provide water reservoirs, wells, and sewers and waive all tap-on fees.

Bennett, who is vacationing in Sun Valley, Idaho, could not be reached for comment.

THE PROJECT, to be completed over the next 20 years, is being designed by James DeStefano, of Skidmore, Skidmore, Owings and Merrill, Chicago architects. Real Estate Research, a Chicago consulting firm, has been researching a market for the complex for several years, sources say.

Robert Archie, a spokesman for Union Oil, confirmed his company's involvement in the project, but said he has little information on the plan. Archie said a $300,000 price tag on the project "appears grossly exaggerated" unless major revisions have taken place since he saw the design concept.

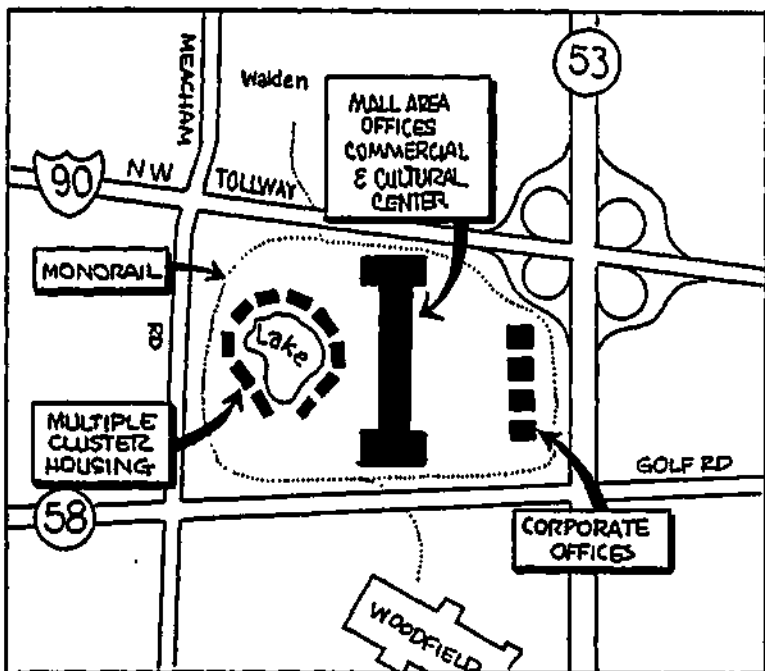

Sociologist Pierre DeVise considers the project "very feasible" for the Schaumburg area, which he considers "one of the hot suburban real estate markets."

BUT DeVISE, an assistant professor of urban sciences at the University of Illinois Chicago Circle Campus, said he "deplores" the type of development being planned there because "it is taking away from the center-city Chicago" hub of activity.

The Northeastern Illinois Plan Commission (NIPC) refused to comment on the plan "because of its purely local nature," a spokesman said, adding that NIPC is now "negotiating" with the village on population forecasts.

Village Pres. Robert O. Atcher said through a spokesman Thursday he is "not at liberty to discuss the project." The village has not received a petition for zoning or annexation of the property now in unincorporated Schaumburg Township, he added. The spokesman refused to comment on whether a petition is expected though sources close to the developers anticipate an early August meeting to announce plans.

High school board OKs new discipline policy

The High School Dist. 211 board of education approved a somewhat more lenient student discipline policy in a 6-1 decision Thursday.

Board member Jean Fiesler cast the dissenting vote against new policy, developed by the board's student discipline committee.

"The results of the student discipline policy committee were somewhat disappointing to me," said Mrs. Fiesler. "I think the basic defects as I saw them are still there."

Earlier Mrs. Fiesler had submitted an eight-page report recommending changes in discipline policy, particularly regarding expulsion. Mrs. Fiesler said she objects to the new policy because expulsion for truancy "deprives a child of his education."

The new policy retains the possible recommendation of expulsion for truancy and smoking violations, as well as drug possession and sales, possession of a dangerous weapon and other serious offenses.

"I believe it should take a substantial disruption of school activities to put a person out of school," said Mrs. Fiesler.

MRS. FISLER said she did agree with expulsion of students for serious offenses such as sale of drugs or possession of a dangerous weapon.

Mrs. Fiesler said she thinks there are other alternatives for handling truant students.

Board member Edward Perry said the policy "was a move toward more leniency" and right now no better alternatives are available.

Perry said the education committee program proposal for underachievers and highachiever students may provide an alternative to truancy expulsion.

The board voted to send the proposal to the administrative council for study. The board may vote on the council's recommendation on the alternative education proposal at its next meeting July 25.

CONCENTRATION is the secret of glue in place is David Kruzlock, a student at Paddock School.

Revised Old Madrid plans heard

Detailed site plans and statistics on the proposed revised plans for development of the Old Madrid complex at Baldwin and Hicks roads were presented to the Palatine Zoning Board of Appeals Thursday.

A timetable calling for the completion of the 66-acre complex by 1980 was presented by Sellsberg Inc., the developer. The timetable completion schedule is: residential, 1980; commercial and recreation, 1975; shopping center, 1977; office and commercial, 1980; and on-site improvements, 1975.

A request for a larger buffer zone on the western edge of the parcel adjacent to single-family homes was termed "economically unfeasible" by Howard Sellsberg.

He said building height at the western corner of the property will be limited to two stories for office and commercial use.

USES ON A 10-ACRE recreation and commercial area in the center of the development will include: handball and tennis courts, saunas, health spa, swimming pool, day-care facilities, boutiques and a restaurant with a 4 a.m. license for the serving of all alcoholic beverages. The recreation facilities would be set up as a private club for membership use (Continued on Page 5)

Long hours, lengthy work week, salary risks

You can bet on it—race track clerk's life not easy

by KURT BAER

Lewis Spidalette stood at the betting window on the second floor grandstand at Arlington Park Race Track and talked about his job.

"Listen. This is our livelihood, our profession. At times it seems inhuman, and we have more broken homes than almost anybody. But nobody makes us do it. It's just our livelihood, our profession."

Spidalette works 12 hours a day, six days a week, as a mutual clerk at Chicago's Arlington Park Race Track. Like many of his co-workers who collect the money and hand betters the mutual tickets, he holds a job back of the betting windows at two different tracks each day.

Right now he spends his days at Arlington Park and his nights at Sportsman's Park in Cicero, some 50 miles away from his home in McHenry.

He knows that when he leaves his house at 11 a.m. each day he won't return until 1 a.m. the following morning.

THIS WEEK, mutual clerks protested delayed starting times on the nine-race program at Arlington Park.

Accord reached on final time

Arlington Park Race Track officials and the Electrical Workers Union that represents the track's pari-mutuel clerks have agreed that the last weekday race will be run no later than 5:40 p.m.

The time of the last Saturday race reportedly still is being negotiated.

Wednesday, pari-mutuel clerks showed up more than an hour late for work at Arlington Park to protest a lengthening of the daily racing program. The action delayed the start of Wednesday's first race by about 10 minutes.

Mutual clerks were unhappy about the later racing times because they said it made it impossible for them to report on time for a second job at Sportsman's Park.

Both union and race track officials Thursday declined comment on the dispute.

On Tuesday, the last race was run at 6:12 p.m., more than a half hour later than usual.

Spidalette was due at Sportsman's Park that night at 6:45 p.m., 7 p.m. at the very latest. With a 6 p.m. post at Arlington, he can't make it.

"As long as the last race is off by 5:30, we can make it," says Joseph F. Nuccio, another ticket seller. "Sometimes it means gobbling your dinner, but the other way there's no dinner at all."

Ken Bell has spent the last 21 years working race track betting windows, both here and in New York. At age 65, he'll retire next year with a full pension.

"DRIVING BETWEEN tracks at 70 m.p.h., we take a chance on getting hurt, or now, with the 55-m.p.h. limit, getting a ticket," he says.

"We're not here to gamble. We're here to serve the public. And to do that we have to be able to get to our job on time," says Bell.

Pari-mutuel ticket sellers make a minimum union wage of $43.75 per track, per day. A man working double shifts, six days a week can earn a gross income of $24,000.

Each seller and cashier is financially liable for his own mistakes while behind the betting counter.

The man who cashes a "pigeon," that is a losing or counterfeit ticket, must make up the payoff price out of his own pocket. Similarly, the seller who punches out a wrong ticket may wind up buying that chance himself if no other buyer comes to the window before the closing bell.

Two mistakes at the $10 window, and a clerk has lost a half day's pay.

"IT'S EXPERIENCE that makes the difference. Some guys are already short by as much as $400," Spidalette says, pulling out his latest pay check to show that the price of a seller's "sins" show up as one more computerized deduction.

So far, he has lost only $24 this year. His experience on the job dates back to 1952.

Two tracks is a rough schedule to keep the men say, but they do it voluntarily. Of the estimated 135 sellers and 80 cashiers on the job at Arlington Park Thursday afternoon, the majority also worked that night at Sportsman's.

"The only time I see my wife she's in pajamas," says Bell. "She's in her nightgown when I leave in the morning, and at night when I get home," says Bell.

"With the high price of living, what else can we do?" asks Nuccio.

Pari-mutuel clerks have not had a contract wage increase for three years, and like almost everyone else, these men say they are not keeping pace with the cost of living.

WAGES ARE BETTER at New York and California race tracks, and so are the afternoon post times, they say.

the first race goes off at 1:30 p.m., at Hollywood Park in California, post time is 12:45 p.m.

Some mutual clerks say an earlier post time would work well at Arlington Park, not just for themselves, but for the racing fan as well.

"This is a summer race track and people want to get in early so that they can get home and cleaned up before dinner," says one seller.

"You could also count on people coming out during their lunch hour to bet the (daily) double," says another.

Spidalette, Bell, Nuccio and the other mutual clerks say they are most concerned about serving the racing public.

"There is only one thing we can give 'em at the race track, and that's service," says Bell.

Lines at the sellers windows and even longer back ups at the cashier's counter do not please the fan or the clerks.

"There's one way to solve the problem and that's to put on more men," he says, admitting that, because of the cost, such a move is not likely.

Salary hikes OK'd for school workers

Salary increases ranging from about 8 per cent to approximately 13.5 per cent were approved by the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 Board of Education for the coming school year.

The salary package does not include teachers. The proposals approved at Wednesday night's board meeting are for the pupil personnel and department of instruction staff, nurses, principals, assistant junior high school principals, administrators, cafeteria workers and the transportation staff.

Under the department of pupil personnel services and department of instruction, salary increase averaged about 10.5 per cent. This area includes social workers, a guidance coordinator, psychologists, a coordinator of health services, a testing consultant, department chairmen, supervisors, program directors and a coordinator of television services.

THE HIGHEST salary in that category is $20,202 for the school psychologist. Last year, the comparable salary was $19,240. The lowest salary is in the social worker category at $13,334 for the coming year. Last year, that salary was $11,560.

Nurses' salaries have increased almost 11 per cent for the coming school year. The highest salary is $11,298. The comparable salary was $10,302 last year. The lowest salary is $9,044, up from last year's comparable $7,876.

Principals salaries increased an average of almost nine per cent. They range from $18,544 to $26,124 for the coming year. Last year's comparable range was $16,828 to $24,341.

Salaries of assistant junior high school principals have increased about 13.5 per cent. The highest salary is $14,061, up from $12,358 last year. The lowest is $12,579, up from last year's $11,010.

ADMINISTRATIVE SALARIES have increased about 8 per cent for the coming year. The highest salary is $30,968 and the lowest is $11,935. Last year's comparable salaries were $29,211 and $11,000. The superintendent's salary is not included in that category.

Wages for cafeteria supervisors are up about 9 per cent. Last year's salaries were $4,365 and this year's are $4,801.

In the transportation department, mechanics received a 10 per cent increase. Drivers of special education buses will be paid the same as last year, $3.75 to $4 per hour.

Last year, school bus drivers received $3 per hour starting salary and $3.68 per hour after five years. This coming year, they will receive $3 starting salary and $3.00 in almost six years.

Elementary school signup set

Registration for elementary school-age children new to the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 area will be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Aug. 5 through Aug. 16 at the Dist. 15 administration center, 505 S. Quentin Rd., Palatine.

Children need not accompany their parents. However, parents should have a transfer or other evidence of the previous school attended and an official birth certificate. Hospital or baptismal certificates will not be accepted.

Book rental fees will be collected at the time of registration. Cost is $10 for children in kindergarten through sixth grade and $11 for children in grades seven and eight. Children five years old on or before Dec. 1 are eligible for kindergarten.

Forms which parents will be requested to complete require the name and telephone number of a local physician and the names of two individuals in the area who can be called in case of an emergency when parents cannot be reached.

Insurance plans for students will be available at the time of registration. A $2.60 premium provides coverage during the school day and a $18 premium provides 24-hour coverage during the school year.

Correction

The now starting times for Lake Louise, Gray M. Sanborn, Joel Wood and Willow Bend schools will be 8:50 a.m. for next fall, not 8:15 a.m. as reported in Thursday's Herald.

The starting times for the other elementary schools is 8:30 a.m., following a recommendation by the Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction that no schools start earlier than that time. All four junior high schools will start classes at 9:15 a.m.

The later starting times mean children will not be walking to school in the dark. This was the case last year when, in the middle of the winter, the country switched to Daylight Savings Time in an attempt to conserve energy.

The starting times have been staggered because the school district has only a limited number of buses to serve all 20 schools.

only. The developer is requesting three other 4 a.m. liquor licenses and three licenses for the sale of package liquor, for a total of seven licenses.

Landscaping, street, walkway and lighting plans were detailed on the site plan.

The site plan and information provided by Seltzer Inc. were in response to a series of questions from ZBA members two weeks ago.

Seltzer is attempting to change plans which now call for the construction of four 14-story apartment buildings and a 26-acre commercial development. The revised plans, if approved, would include nine condominium buildings, a 10-acre recreation and commercial development, an 18-acre shopping center with a Woolco Department Store and an eight-acre commercial and office development.

No decision had been reached on the revised plans by Herald press time.

Strike's a plague for cement worker's family

by BETTY LEE

Maria Tamayo was wondering what to make for dinner as she sat in her living room. She was attempting to soothe her crying two-year-old.

Across the room her husband, Cirilo, was looking at the afternoon paper for the want ads. Until several weeks ago he was preparing roads for black-topping and concrete, but because of the cement truck drivers' strike, he was laid off. He has been looking for work ever since. Like thousands of others in the Chicago area, he and his family are affected by the strike, now in its sixth week.

"He's been out all morning," said Mrs. Tamayo. "It hurts when they strike and you have kids to support. When they're small they don't know what's going on."

The lifestyle of the Tamayo family changed considerably since the start of the strike.

BECAUSE OF THE strike, the Tamayos had to delve into their savings which was the money they were to use this winter when construction season is over.

"Savings? What savings," said Tamayo. "It's just dollars and nickels now."

Their finances also were strained when they had to make a sudden move two weeks ago from their rented home in Arlington Heights. Their landlord wanted them to vacate in seven days.

"I had such headaches," Mrs. Tamayo said. "We had to move so fast that we left furniture and things in the house. We need to buy another sofa and a bed, but everything is so expensive."

WITH THEIR BELONGINGS stuffed into their car, the Tamayos and their four children moved into Rand Grove Village in Palatine Township. The move meant an increase in rent — from $80 to $215 a month, even though the housing is federally subsidized.

"We like it here and it will be better for the kids," Mrs. Tamayo said. "I used to be so afraid that one of my kids would get hit by a car when we lived at the other place."

The Tamayos previously lived near the intersection of Arlington Heights and Golf roads, one of the busiest intersections in the village.

The strike also meant cutting down on food and clothing. "Even the basics — milk, meat and eggs, are expensive," she said.

She began making her own bread and snacks for the family instead of going to the bakery. Meals contain less meat now.

THREE OF HER four children will be attending school this fall, which will require new clothes, shoes and books.

Her husband's unemployment compensation is sometimes bolstered with Maria Tamayo's occasional sewing project. Whenever she can, Mrs. Tamayo sews to help the family finances. The Tamayos' eldest daughter, Mary, works in a factory to help out.

"As soon as I make money sewing dresses, I spend the money on food or whatever we need," she said. "And that's when I pay all the bills."

Mrs. Tamayo wants to go back to work, but because of physical problems, she stays at home. "I want to work so I can help him," she said as she glanced at her husband.

Two of her children run in and out of the apartment, playing games with each other. "Sure they know about the strike," said Mrs. Tamayo. "They know it's going to be hard not getting the things they want. But they'll learn."

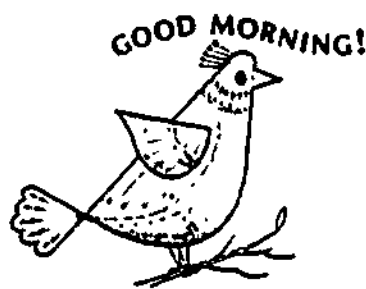

Cement truck drivers have been on strike in Northern Illinois since mid-May, primarily because of a pay-hike disagreement in salary negotiations with the Northern Illinois Ready Mix and Materials Assn.

Talks broke off between the truck driver's union and management when negotiators turned down an offer of a $1.65-per-hour increase in benefits over three years. Drivers asked for a $1.50 per hour raise over three years. Also at issue was the possible inclusion of a cost-of-living escalator clause in the new pact.

Three-thousand members and affiliates of Local 786 of the Building Material, Lumber, Box Shaving, Roofing and Insulating, Chaffeurs, Teamsters, Warehousemen and Helpers Union have led the strike.

Construction has been tied up throughout Northern Illinois because of the walkout.

Negotiations were resumed recently.

18-story Hyatt Regency Hotel planned for Schaumburg

by PAT GERLACH

An 18-story Hyatt Regency Hotel, high-rise commercial and residential buildings, all connected by monorail, are planned for development on the 153-acre Union Oil property in Schaumburg.

Developers are suggesting a proposed cultural center be located in an I-shaped mall area in the center of the complex rather than on the 40-acre Schaumburg Road civic-cultural center complex.

The design concept is reportedly the brainchild of Marshall Bennett of Bennett and Kahnweiler. His partners in the project include Jack N. Pritzker, a Chicago attorney and financier, Union Oil Co. and possibly the Village of Schaumburg.

Informal meetings to discuss preliminary plans have been held with village officials over the past 18 months, according to Trustee Herbert J. Aigner.

A STUHP AT THE eastern end of the property, along I-90, is being reserved for prime commercial space which might be utilized as midwest corporate headquarters for several major U.S. firms, Aigner said.

The Hyatt Regency Hotel would be at one end of the mall area and contain the cultural center and commercial space. The hotel chain is owned by the Pritzker family.

Aigner and Trustee Ray G. McArthur confirmed that a multi-family high-rise cluster development is planned at the west edge of the development.

The existing Union Oil Co. building is included in the total site and demolition of the structure is possible after 15 years.

SOURCES SAY that Bennett has asked the village to:

- Build all streets and install utilities
- Construct a pedestrian overpass at Golf Road
- Construct a bridge or underpass at I-90 near Golf Road
- Build a secondary access road from Meacham to Roselle road midway between the tollroad and Golf Road

- Design and construct a monorail
- Provide water reservoirs, wells, and sewers and waive all tap-on fees.

Bennett, who is vacationing in Sun Valley, Idaho, could not be reached for comment.

THE PROJECT, to be completed over the next 20 years, is being designed by James DeStefano, of Skidmore, Skidmore, Owings and Merrill, Chicago architects. Real Estate Research, a Chicago consulting firm, has been researching a market for the complex for several years, sources say.

Robert Archie, a spokesman for Union Oil, confirmed his company's involvement in the project, but said he has little information on the plan. Archie said a $300,000 price tag on the project "appears grossly exaggerated" unless major revisions have taken place since he saw the design concept.

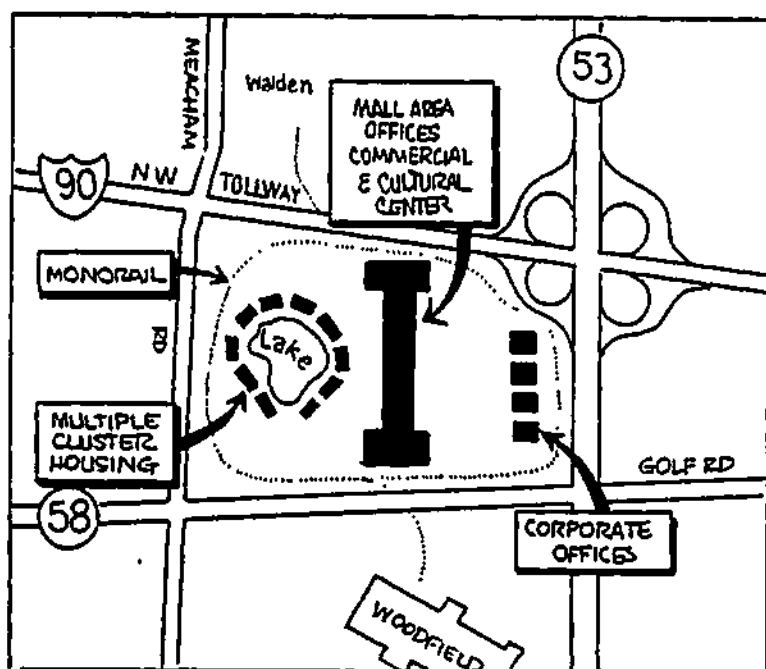

Sociologist Pierre DeVise considers the project "very feasible" for the Schaumburg area, which he considers "one of the hot suburban real estate markets."

BUT DEVISE, an assistant professor of urban sciences at the University of Illinois Chicago Circle Campus, said he "deplores" the type of development being planned there because "it is taking away from the center-city Chicago" hub of activity.

The Northeastern Illinois Plan Commission (NIPC) refused to comment on the plan "because of its purely local nature," a spokesman said, adding that NIPC is now "negotiating" with the village on population forecasts.

Village Pres. Robert O. Atcher said through a spokesman Thursday he is "not at liberty to discuss the project." The village has not received a petition for zoning or annexation of the property now in unincorporated Schaumburg Township, he added. The spokesman refused to comment on whether a petition is expected though sources close to the developers anticipate an early August meeting to announce plans.

A MONORAIL, commercial space, a cultural center and cluster housing are shown in artist Dick Westgard's concept of plans for Union Oil Co. property in Schaumburg. The project would be completed over 20 years.

Salary hikes OK'd for school workers

Salary increases ranging from about 8 per cent to approximately 13.5 per cent were approved by the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 Board of Education for the coming school year.

The salary package does not include teachers. The proposals approved at Wednesday night's board meeting are for the pupil personnel and department of instruction staff, nurses, principals, assistant junior high school principals, administrators, cafeteria workers and the transportation staff.

Under the department of pupil personnel services and department of instruction, salary increase averaged about 10.5 per cent. This area includes social workers, a guidance coordinator, psychologists, a coordinator of health services, a testing consultant, department chairmen, supervisors, program directors and a coordinator of television services.

THE HIGHEST salary in that category is $20,202 for the school psychologist. Last year, the comparable salary was $19,240. The lowest salary is in the social worker category at $13,324 for the coming year. Last year, that salary was $11,760.

Nurses' salaries have increased almost 11 per cent for the coming school year.

The highest salary is $11,208. The comparable salary was $10,302 last year. The lowest salary is $9,044, up from last year's comparable $7,876.

Principals salaries increased an average of almost nine per cent. They range from $18,544 to $26,124 for the coming year. Last year's comparable range was $16,828 to $24,341.

Salaries of assistant junior high school principals have increased about 13.5 per cent. The highest salary is $14,061, up from $12,358 last year. The lowest is $12,579, up from last year's $11,010.

ADMINISTRATIVE SALARIES have increased about 8 per cent for the coming year. The highest salary is $30,968 and the lowest is $11,935. Last year's comparable salaries were $29,211 and $11,000. The superintendent's salary is not included in that category.

Wages for cafeteria supervisors are up about 9 per cent. Last year's salaries were $4,365 and this year's are $4,801.

In the transportation department, mechanics received a 10 per cent increase. Drivers of special education buses will be paid the same as last year, $3.75 to $4 per hour.

Grade school registration dates scheduled

Registration for elementary school-age children new to the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 area will be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Aug. 5 through Aug. 16 at the Dist. 15 administration center, 505 S. Quentin Rd., Palatine.

Children need not accompany their parents. However, parents should have a transfer or other evidence of the previous school attended and an official birth certificate. Hospital or baptismal certificates will not be accepted.

Book rental fees will be collected at the time of registration. Cost is $10 for children in kindergarten through sixth grade and $11 for children in grades seven and eight. Children five years old on or before Dec. 1 are eligible for kindergarten.

Forms which parents will be requested to complete require the name and telephone number of a local physician and the names of two individuals in the area who can be called in case of an emergency when parents cannot be reached.

Long hours, lengthy work week, salary risks

by KURT BAER

Lewis Spidalette stood at the betting window on the second floor grandstand at Arlington Park Race Track and talked about his job.

"Listen. This is our livelihood, our profession. At times it seems inhuman, and we have more broken homes than almost anybody. But nobody makes us do it. It's just our livelihood, our profession."

Spidalette works 12 hours a day, six days a week, as a mutual clerk at Chicago area race tracks. Like many of his co-workers who collect the money and hand betters the mutual tickets, he holds a job back of the betting windows at two different tracks each day.

Right now he spends his days at Arlington Park and his nights at Sportsman's Park in Cicero, some 50 miles away from his home in McHenry.

He knows that when he leaves his house at 11 a.m. each day he won't return until 1 a.m. the following morning.

THIS WEEK, mutual clerks protested delayed starting times on the nine-race program at Arlington Park.

Accord reached on final time

Arlington Park Race Track officials and the Electrical Workers Union that represents the track's pari-mutuel clerks have agreed that the last weekday race will be run no later than 5:40 p.m.

The time of the last Saturday race reportedly still is being negotiated.

Wednesday, pari-mutuel clerks showed up more than an hour late for work at Arlington Park to protest a lengthening of the daily racing program. The action delayed the start of Wednesday's first race by about 10 minutes.

Mutuel clerks were unhappy about the later racing times because they said it made it impossible for them to report on time for a second job at Sportsman's Park.

Both union and race track officials Thursday declined comment on the dispute.

On Tuesday, the last race was run at 6:12 p.m., more than a half hour later than usual.

Spidalette was due at Sportsman's Park that night at 6:45 p.m., 7 p.m. at the very latest. With a 6 p.m. post at Arlington, he can't make it.

"As long as the last race is off by 5:30, we can make it," says Joseph F. Nuccio, another ticket seller. "Sometimes it means gobbling your dinner, but the other way there's no dinner at all."

Ken Bell has spent the last 21 years working race track betting windows, both here and in New York. At age 65, he'll retire next year with a full pension.

"DRIVING BETWEEN tracks at 70 m.p.h., we take a chance on getting hurt, or now, with the 55-m.p.h. limit, getting a ticket," he says.

"We're not here to gamble. We're here to serve the public. And to do that we have to be able to get to our job on time," says Bell.

Pari-mutuel tickets sellers make a minimum union wage of $43.75 per track, per day. A man working double shifts, six days a week can earn a gross income of $24,000.

Each seller and cashier is financially liable for his own mistakes while behind the betting counter.

The man who cashes a "pigeon," that is a losing or counterfeit ticket, must make up the payoff price out of his own pocket. Similarly, the seller who punches out a wrong ticket may wind up buying that chance himself if no other buyer comes to the window before the closing bell.

Two mistakes at the $10 window, and a clerk has lost a half day's pay.

"IT'S EXPERIENCE that makes the difference. Some guys are already short by as much as $400," Spidalette says, pulling out his latest pay check to show that the price of a seller's "sins" show up as one more computerized deduction.

So far, he has lost only $24 this year. His experience on the job dates back to 1952.

Two tracks is a rough schedule to keep the men say, but they do it voluntarily. Of the estimated 135 sellers and 80 cashiers on the job at Arlington Park Thursday afternoon, the majority also worked that night at Sportsman's.

"The only time I see my wife she's in pajamas," says Bell. "She's in her nightgown when I leave in the morning, and at night when I get home," says Bell.

"With the high price of living, what else can we do?" asks Nuccio.

Pari-mutuel clerks have not had a contract wage increase for three years, and like almost everyone else, these men say they are not keeping pace with the cost of living.

WAGES ARE BETTER at New York and California race tracks, and so are the afternoon post times, they say.

At Aqueduct race track in New York

the first race goes off at 1:30 p.m., at Hollywood Park in California, post time is 12:45 p.m.

Some mutual clerks say an earlier post time would work well at Arlington Park, not just for themselves, but for the racing fan as well.

"This is a summer race track and people want to get in early so that they can get home and cleaned up before dinner," says one seller.

"You could also count on people coming out during their lunch hour to bet the (daily) double," says another.

Spidalette, Bell, Nuccio and the other mutual clerks say they are most concerned about serving the racing public.

"There is only one thing we can give 'em at the race track, and that's service," says Bell.

Lines at the sellers windows and even longer back ups at the cashier's counter do not please the fan or the clerks.

High school board OKs new discipline policy

The High School Dist. 211 board of education approved a somewhat more lenient student discipline policy in a 6-1 decision Thursday.

Board member Jean Fidler cast the dissenting vote against new policy, developed by the board's student discipline committee.

"The results of the student discipline policy committee were somewhat disappointing to me," said Mrs. Fidler. "I think the basic defects as I saw them are still there."

Earlier Mrs. Fidler had submitted an eight-page report recommending changes in discipline policy, particularly regarding expulsion. Mrs. Fidler said she objects to the new policy because expulsion for truancy "deprives a child of his education."

The new policy retains the possible recommendation of expulsion for truancy and smoking violations, as well as drug possession and sales, possession of a dangerous weapon and other serious offenses.

"I believe it should take a substantial disruption of school activities to put a person out of school," said Mrs. Fidler.

MRS. FIDLER said she did agree with expulsion of students for serious offenses

Schools to get use of films

The Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 Board of Education has agreed to allow four area parochial schools to use the Dist. 15 film library free during the coming school year.

The estimated annual cost of the program, approved Wednesday night, is $4,600, according to Marion Omiatek, Dist. 15 Assistant Supt. for Instruction.

Omiatek said he is projecting a 20 per cent increase in cost, based on the addition of four schools to the district's 20 schools now using the film library. About $900 is estimated for added clerical costs and another $3,700 for the possible purchase of additional films.

The program will be studied during the coming school year and reviewed at the end of the first semester. Dist. 15 schools will have first call on the film library resources, according to the resolution. Films will only be transported as far as the nearest Dist. 15 school.

The request was made by St. Thomas of Villanova and St. Theresa schools in Palatine. Omiatek said he expects requests from Immaculate Lutheran, Palatine, and St. Colette, Rolling Meadows, soon.

Correction

The new starting times for Lake Louise, Gray M. Sanborn, Joel Wood and Willow Bend schools will be 8:30 a.m. for next fall, not 8:15 a.m. as reported in Thursday's Herald.

The starting times for the other elementary schools is 8:30 a.m., following a recommendation by the Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction that no schools start earlier than that time. All four junior high schools will start classes at 9:15 a.m.

The later starting times mean children will not be walking to school in the dark. This was the case last year when, in the middle of the winter, the country switched to Daylight Savings Time in an attempt to conserve energy.

The starting times have been staggered because the school district has only a limited number of buses to serve all 20 schools.

St. Paul S &amp; L gets charter for branch

The St. Paul Savings and Loan Assn. of Chicago has received official notification of a charter from the state for a Rolling Meadows branch office, a company spokesman said Thursday.

Joseph Sculli, vice president of the association, said although the charter has been received, a final decision on a location within the city will not be made for another 10 days to two weeks.

The association had spoken to the Rolling Meadows City Council about a possible location at the Topps Shopping Center, Meadow Drive and Kirchhoff Road, but Sculli said no agreement has been reached with owners of the center and present tenants.

Sculli said he hoped for a Kirchhoff Road location for the branch.

Site change being considered for St. Luke's med center

Rush Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center-North is planning to relocate near Schaumburg and Barrington roads. Low- and moderate-income housing is planned in the same area, The Herald learned Thursday.

"We are looking for alternative options for the site," Henry J. Buhrmann, St. Luke's administrator, said Thursday, confirming a report that the hospital might not be built on its current site northeast of Schaumburg Road and Illinois Boulevard.

Buhrmann emphasized, however, that no decision is yet finalized.

"We're considering all options available, as long as it's in Schaumburg, in terms of analyzing and evaluating costs relating to the program on our site," said Buhrmann.

He said the site change is being considered "in light of the inflation and the escalation of costs in the building industry."

"Within several weeks we'll be able to make statements. We aren't yet in a position to do so," Buhrmann said. He added any assumption that a move is planned "is terribly premature" because no decision will be finalized until all the analysis is completed.

More than one option is being considered, he added.

CRITICS OF St. Luke's plan to locate on the 10-acre site near Schaumburg Road and Illinois Boulevard said the land was in a flood plain when it was donated to the village two years ago by J. Emil Anderson & Sons.

A senior citizens' housing center with nursing facilities is currently planned on J. Emil Anderson land east of the current hospital site. A contingency on zoning of the land stated that the 10 acres for the hospital would revert to the village if the hospital were not built there.

No change of location has been filed with the Illinois Dept. of Public Health, said Robert Bilstein, administrator-hospital and laboratory section.

"If they (St. Luke's) do change sites, they do not have to reapply for operating permits," he said, adding, "they just have to notify the state so the state can amend the operating permit already issued."

No details were available Thursday on the plans for low- and moderate-income housing. However, Marvin Meyers of Meyers and Associates, is currently meeting with a Schaumburg Plan Commission committee regarding how much housing is required in the village under HUD 235 (single-family) and HUD 236 (apartment), federally subsidized housing programs sponsored by the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development.

Meyers' firm recently opened Schaumburg Green, a 367-unit apartment complex on Wise Road west of Roselle Road where 110 units are available under HUD 236.

With monorail

18-story Hyatt Regency Hotel planned for Schaumburg

by PAT GERLACH

An 18-story Hyatt Regency Hotel, high-rise commercial and residential buildings, all connected by monorail, are planned for development on the 153-acre Union Oil property in Schaumburg.

Developers are suggesting a proposed cultural center be located in an I-shaped mall area in the center of the complex rather than on the 40-acre Schaumburg Road civic-cultural center complex.

The design concept is reportedly the brainchild of Marshall Bennett of Bennett and Kahnweiler. His partners in the project include Jack N. Pritzker, a Chicago attorney and financier, Union Oil Co. and possibly the Village of Schaumburg.

Informal meetings to discuss preliminary plans have been held with village officials over the past 18 months, according to Trustee Herbert J. Aigner.

A STRIP AT THE eastern edge of the property, along I-90, is being reserved for prime commercial space which might be utilized as midwest corporate headquarters for several major U.S. firms, Aigner said.

The Hyatt Regency Hotel would be at one end of the mall area and contain the cultural center and commercial space. The hotel chain is owned by the Pritzker family.

Aigner and Trustee Ray G. McArthur confirmed that a multi-family high-rise cluster development is planned at the west edge of the development.

The existing Union Oil Co. building is included in the total site and demolition of the structure is possible after 15 years.

SOURCES SAY that Bennett has asked the village to:

- Build all streets and install utilities
- Construct a pedestrian overpass at Golf Road
- Construct a bridge or underpass at I-90 near Golf Road
- Build a secondary access road from Meacham to Roselle road midway between the tollroad and Golf Road

- Design and construct a monorail
- Provide water reservoirs, wells, and sewers and waive all tap-on fees.

Bennett, who is vacationing in Sun Valley, Idaho, could not be reached for comment.

THE PROJECT, to be completed over the next 20 years, is being designed by James DeStefano, of Skidmore, Skidmore, Owings and Merrill, Chicago architects. Real Estate Research, a Chicago consulting firm, has been researching a market for the complex for several years, sources say.

Robert Archie, a spokesman for Union Oil, confirmed his company's involvement in the project, but said he has little information on the plan. Archie said a $300,000 price tag on the project "appears grossly exaggerated" unless major revisions have taken place since he saw the design concept.

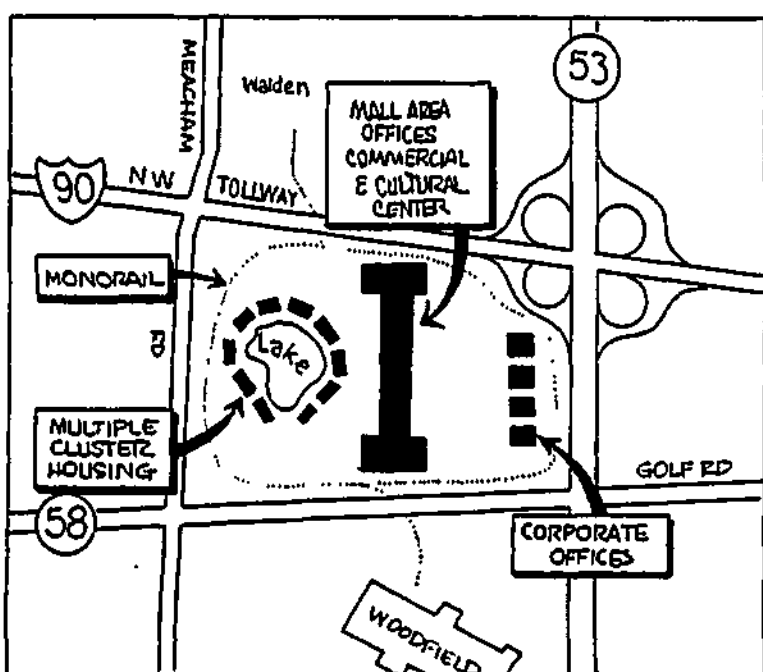

Sociologist Pierre DeVise considers the project "very feasible" for the Schaumburg area, which he considers "one of the hot suburban real estate markets."

BUT DeVISE, an assistant professor of urban sciences at the University of Illinois Chicago Circle Campus, said he "deplores" the type of development being planned there because "it is taking away from the center-city Chicago" hub of activity.

The Northeastern Illinois Plan Commission (NIPC) refused to comment on the plan "because of its purely local nature," a spokesman said, adding that NIPC is now "negotiating" with the village on population forecasts.

Village Pres. Robert O. Acher said through a spokesman Thursday he is "not at liberty to discuss the project." The village has not received a petition for zoning or annexation of the property now in unincorporated Schaumburg Township, he added. The spokesman refused to comment on whether a petition is expected though sources close to the developers anticipate an early August meeting to announce plans.

Downtown Schaumburg will be carved during the next 20 years across the sprawling Union Oil Co. property.

Problems plague residents

Apartment renter, landlord at odds

by STIRLING MORITA

Linda Dell is living at the Schaumburg Green apartments in Schaumburg under the threat of eviction, but she is "playing the whole thing by ear."

Miss Dell canceled her rent check for June when she experienced some "aggravating" incidents at the complex, part of which is still under construction on Wise Road just west of Roselle Road, she said.

She received a five-day eviction notice that was effective Sunday but it has not been enforced. She said other persons living in the building were holding back parts of their rent for promised services that have not been produced.

Miss Dell was one of the first persons to move into the complex when it opened for occupancy in June. She was placed in a temporary, first-floor apartment, but one night sewer water backed up and flooded the apartment, damaging some of her clothing, she said.

"I TOOK THE SHELVES out of the linen closet and walked around on them," Miss Dell said.

The most aggravating incident was when she was given three hours notice to move into her assigned apartment so carpet workers could replace the damaged carpeting. When she returned to the apartment, she found the workers had already finished their job and "opened up some of the groceries," she added.

The other apartment, also on the first floor, had its drawbacks, she said. Pointing out what she considered a potential hazard, Miss Dell said the electric vent fan above the bathtub did not belong in that position. She said her bathroom wall needed repair.

She cited no installation of a television antenna hookup, no air-conditioning, no outside landscaping and no pool facilities as some of the reasons most of the residents were angry.

DURING THE LAST week when the temperature hit the 90s, Miss Dell found relief by creating cross ventilation in conjunction with her across-the-hall neighbors — opening the patio and front doors.

However, the Mike Gruenfeld family on the second floor were not as fortunate. Mrs. Gruenfeld said the family beat the heat by going to relative's home. The apartment temperature

Strikes, delays plague 'Green'

by JUDY JOBBITT

Strikes and delayed shipments have plagued construction of Schaumburg Green on Wise Road west of Roselle Road, Schaumburg.

The 367-unit housing complex that opened in June is state and federally funded and has 110 units reserved for subsidized rent.

The most recent problem was a delay in shipment of steel railing for the complex's balconies. Although occupants have started to move in, one apartment building does not have railing on the balconies.

To prevent anyone from going out onto the unfinished balconies and possibly falling off, the glass doors to each balcony are bolted shut and posted with signs noting the danger.

The steel for the balconies is packaged and being shipped to the site. All balcony work should be completed within the next two weeks said Pat Nardi, construction manager.

OTHER POTENTIALLY dangerous situations also exist, although Nardi said "we build to code and take all precautions for safety."

Because of the cement truckers' strike, the patio area around the swimming pool has not been completed. The swimming pool is completed, but no fencing surrounds the pool to protect residents.

Norbert Spengler, a Schaumburg building department employee, said the pool should be fenced in according to village regulations. The pool has not been filled and has been pumped dry of rain water.

Residents complained to The Herald that the windows in the bedrooms are dangerous. The windows are at floor level and open from the bottom. Only a

Tot lot meeting set for July 25 by park board

The question of what is in store for a five-acre area near Andrew Lane will be taken up July 25 at the next Schaumburg Park Board meeting.

Six residents Thursday night sought help from the board in trying to convince Campanelli Bros. Builders, owners of the land, to clean up the site.

Residents said Campanelli Bros. had promised a tot-lot playground would be installed on the plot.

The land has been designated for possible park use, but the park district does not have deed to the land.

A park district staff member will check village zoning records to see what the construction company originally designated for the area.

He is to report back at the next meeting.

The residents complained of swampy land and rats in back of their homes. They were told by the board the area is a detention basin.

In other business the board formally approved the 1974-75 $473,675 budget. The budget was broken down into: $152,688 for grounds and maintenance; $308,007 for recreation; $13,000 for insurance and audit funds.

Thompson on dean's list

Thomas R. Thompson, 1148 Westview Dr., Elk Grove Village, an electrical engineering major, has been named to the dean's list at Illinois Institute of Technology for academic achievement during the previous semester. Thompson was one of 858 students named to the IIT dean's list, for attaining a grade point average of 3 or higher on a 4 scale.

screen prevents a child from crawling through and perhaps falling out, residents said.

There are no village regulations concerning the height, type or placement of windows, Spengler said. He agreed that the bedroom windows in the apartments are dangerous and that it would be better if they were placed at a safer height.

COMPLAINTS ALSO were received concerning the electric vent fans in some bathrooms. The vents placed on the upper part of the interior wall of the building (near the shower area) do not conform to village codes, said Spengler. They meet more lenient federal regulations.

The village is asking that the location of the vents be changed to meet village codes, said Spengler. He said they are not potentially dangerous at this time. "A person would have to practically disassemble the fan to hurt himself," he said.

"Any disparities that exist will be corrected," he said. "But you have to protect the public from themselves."

He said occupants have moved in or are in the process of moving and must move in because their leases expired at their previous residence. He said the village is requesting that no more apartments be rented in a building until it is completed.

Residents also complained about the air-conditioning. It has not been working since residents moved in. Although residents were promised it would be fixed last Monday, Nardi said it will not be working until today.

A BOTTLE OF champagne and a letter thanking the residents for their patience in living without air-conditioning during the hot spell was sent Wednesday to each apartment by the management. Residents also were invited to a picnic Sunday sponsored by Marvin Meyers, the builder.

The complex has 110 apartments reserved for individuals and families that qualify for rental subsidy under the Department of Housing and Urban Development guidelines. There is no difference between subsidized and non-subsidized units.

Two boys seized near concession stand

The principal of Jane Addams Junior High School stopped two 13-year-old Schaumburg boys from breaking into a concession stand Thursday at nearby Atcher Park, police reported.

Robert Cizek, the principal, saw one of the two boys attempting to remove a screw in the counter door at about 8:30 a.m. Cizek detained the two for Schaumburg police.

The boys were referred to the department's juvenile officer for investigation into possible attempted burglary charges.

The two were released to the custody of their parents.

New discipline rules approved

The High School Dist. 211 board of education approved a somewhat more lenient student discipline policy in a 6-1 decision Thursday.

Board member Jean Fister cast the dissenting vote against new policy, developed by the board's student discipline committee.

"The results of the student discipline policy committee were somewhat disappointing to me," said Mrs. Fister. "I think the basic defects as I saw them are still there."

Earlier Mrs. Fister had submitted an eight-page report recommending changes in discipline policy, particularly regarding expulsion. Mrs. Fister said she objects to the new policy because expulsion for truancy "deprives a child of his education."

The new policy retains the possible recommendation of expulsion for truancy and smoking violations, as well as drug possession and sales, possession of a dangerous weapon and other serious offenses.

"I believe it should take a substantial disruption of school activities to put a person out of school," said Mrs. Fister.

MRS. FISLER said she did agree with expulsion of students for serious offenses such as sale of drugs or possession of a dangerous weapon.

Mrs. Fister said she thinks there are other alternatives for handling truant students.

Board member Edward Perry said the policy "was a move toward more leniency" and right now no better alternatives are available.

Perry said the education committee program proposal for underachievers and highachiever students may provide an alternative to truancy expulsion.

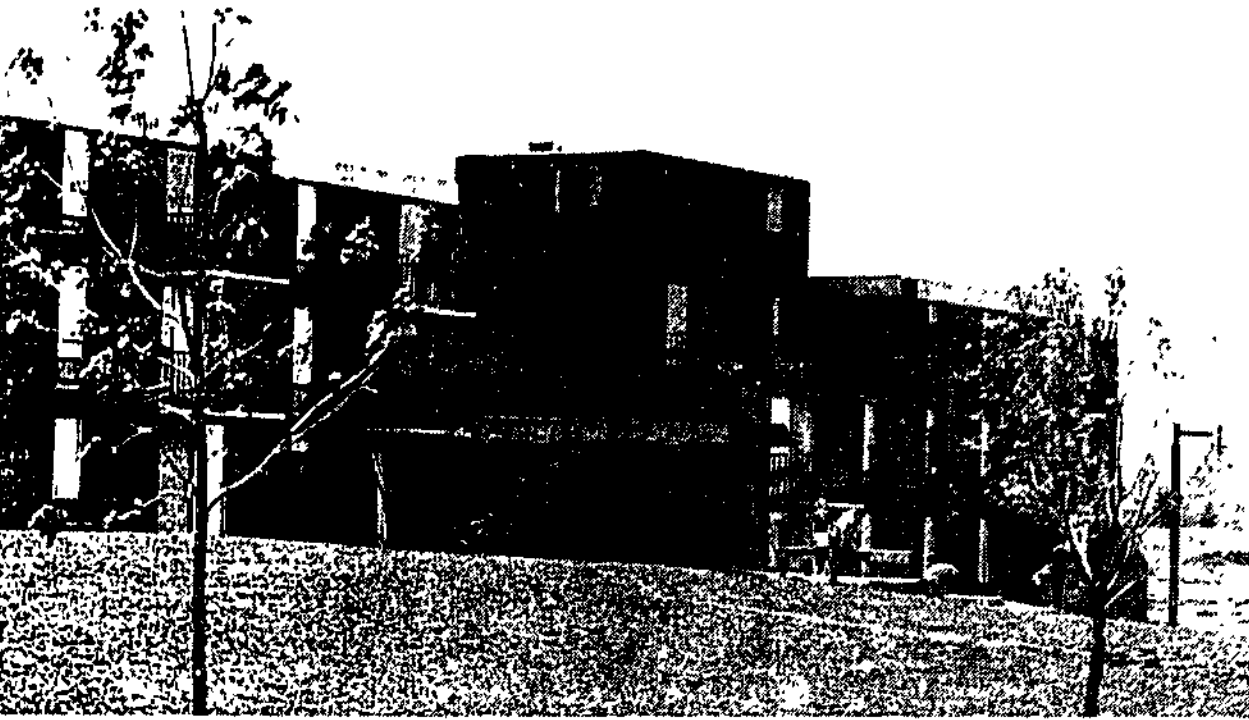

The board voted to send the proposal to the administrative council for study. The board may vote on the council's recommendation on the alternative education proposal at its next meeting July 25.

"It would not have been so bad if they would have told us things (swimming pool, air-conditioning and landscaping) would take a little longer," she said.

Both the Gruenfelds and Miss Dell said they looked at the apartment complex about four months ago. At that time, they were told the facilities and every-

APARTMENTS AT THE Schaumburg Green complex when temperatures climbed to the 90s and the long-were barely habitable early this week for some residents promised air conditioning was not in service.

Originally only two-and three-bedroom apartments were going to be subsidized, but the market demand for one-bedroom subsidized apartments necessitated a change in that policy, said Gordon Burns, marketing manager.

Originally the builder thought there would be more families seeking the apartments and subsidized rent, but individuals, particularly senior citizens, have been applying, said Burns.

The builder wants to serve the residents of Schaumburg, said Burns. Senior citizens who have lived in Schaumburg are hurt by the area's high rents, he said, so "we're trying to open the door to them." There is no age restriction that can legally be set on who is eligible for the subsidized units.

Don Rose, an Illinois Housing Development Authority spokesman, explained

THEY SELECTED THE housing because it appeared to be attractive facilities for a reasonable price.

The Gruenfelds received a bottle of champagne as a present from the management to make up for the lack of air conditioning. Gruenfeld said when he heard the management had a surprise for him, he thought he would receive a rent discount. But he was disappointed when he learned the gift was the bottle of wine.

Miss Dell said she did not receive a bottle and noted a neighbor had vowed to return his.

Also promised is a picnic Saturday for the residents. "There is a move on to boycott the picnic," Miss Dell said.

there are no restrictions on who the builder tries to attract to the building. "That's a marketing decision," he said.

MARKET VALUE RENTALS for the units in the seven-building complex range from $179 for a one-bedroom apartment to $265 for a three-bedroom apartment.

One-bedroom apartments cost $179, $189 or $199 with subsidized rent bringing the figure down as low as $130. A subsidized two-bedroom unit can be rented for $148 and a three-bedroom for $182.

To receive subsidized rent, individuals must submit an application for review by the complex's management and by IHDA. Income, the number of members in the family and the type of apartment requested are among the variables considered in the application.

Hearing sought on job ouster

A letter requesting a hearing by a Hoffman Estates patrolman who charges he resigned under pressure has been sent to an attorney who is an authority on policemen's rights.

William Catlin, chairman of the Hoffman Estates Police and Fire Commission, said he received the letter Wednesday from Richard Ricker, 22, and sent it to Walter Wellman, an attorney on retainer for the Illinois Assn. of Boards of Fire and Police Commissions.

Ricker, in his letter, not only requests negation of the resignation, but also a public hearing into the matter. Ricker, on the department for nine months, charged he was pressured into resigning hours after he fired gunshots during a car chase and accident June 17 in which he thought his life was in danger.

Police Chief John O'Connell has denied there was any pressure on Ricker to quit and said the resignation was for personal reasons and appeared to be normal. O'Connell has declined to specify for what reasons he called Ricker in for a meeting about 16 hours after the gunshot incident.

"It seems to me, it (the request for voiding the resignation) is plowing new ground here," said Catlin.

Catlin called Wellman one of the most "knowledgeable" men in the state concerning rights of policemen. He did not know when he would receive an opinion from Wellman.

Shot in arm for project

NIPC endorses $1.3 million flood-retention basin plan

A $1.3 million retention basin intended to help relieve flooding in Arlington Heights, Des Plaines and Mount Prospect was given a boost this week when it was endorsed for a federal grant by the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission.

The NIPC planning committee Wednesday lent its support to the attempt to secure $975,000 toward construction of the basin north of Central Road near Busse Road in Mount Prospect.

The NIPC endorsement does not assure the project of federal funding, but if NIPC failed to approve the basin, its chances of obtaining a federal grant would have been virtually nil.

AS IT IS, the grant application is not expected to be acted on by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency for awhile. James S. Braxton, assistant chief engineer of the Metropolitan Sanitary District, which will build the basin, described the project as having "low priority" among flood control measures.

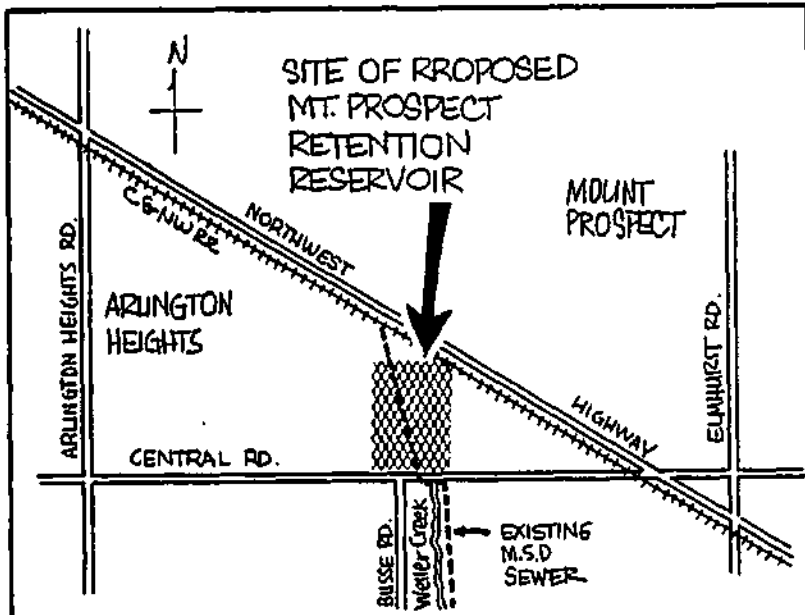

The basin, which will lie on Weller Creek, is designed to reduce flooding by storing 130 acre-feet of storm water runoff, equivalent to a volume of 130 acres in area, one foot deep.

By storing the water, the basin would lower the flow of Weller Creek and the Des Plaines River, making them less likely to overflow their banks during storms.

THE BASIN IS considered a temporary flood control measure, with plans proceeding for expansion to 850 acre-feet at a later date. The sanitary district has not yet acquired the 70-acre site.

The federal grant, if awarded, would cover three-quarters of the projected cost of the first phase of basin construction. The sanitary district would pay the

18-story Hyatt Regency Hotel planned for Schaumburg

by PAT GERLACH

An 18-story Hyatt Regency Hotel, high-rise commercial and residential buildings, all connected by monorail, are planned for development on the 153-acre Union Oil property in Schaumburg.

Developers are suggesting a proposed cultural center be located in an I-shaped mall area in the center of the complex rather than on the 40-acre Schaumburg Road civic-cultural center complex.

The design concept is reportedly the brainchild of Marshall Bennett of Bennett and Kahnweiler. His partners in the project include Jack N. Pritzker, a Chicago attorney and financier, Union Oil Co. and possibly the Village of Schaumburg.

Informal meetings to discuss preliminary plans have been held with village officials over the past 18 months, according to Trustee Herbert J. Aigner.

A STRIP AT THE eastern edge of the property, along I-90, is being reserved for prime commercial space which might be utilized as midwest corporate headquarters for several major U.S. firms, Aigner said.

The Hyatt Regency Hotel would be at one end of the mall area and contain the cultural center and commercial space. The hotel chain is owned by the Pritzker family.

Aigner and Trustee Ray G. McArthur confirmed that a multi-family high-rise cluster development is planned at the west edge of the development.

The existing Union Oil Co. building is included in the total site and demolition of the structure is possible after 15 years.

SOURCES SAY that Bennett has asked the village to:

- Build all streets and install utilities
- Construct a pedestrian overpass at Golf Road
- Construct a bridge or underpass at I-90 near Golf Road
- Build a secondary access road from Mencham to Roselle road midway between the tollroad and Golf Road

- Design and construct a monorail
- Provide water reservoirs, wells, and sewers and waive all tap-on fees.

Bennett, who is vacationing in Sun Valley, Idaho, could not be reached for comment.

THE PROJECT, to be completed over the next 20 years, is being designed by James DeStefano, of Skidmore, Skidmore, Owings and Merrill, Chicago architects. Real Estate Research, a Chicago consulting firm, has been researching a market for the complex for several years, sources say.

Robert Archie, a spokesman for Union Oil, confirmed his company's involvement in the project, but said he has little information on the plan. Archie said a $300,000 price tag on the project "appears grossly exaggerated" unless major revisions have taken place since he saw the design concept.

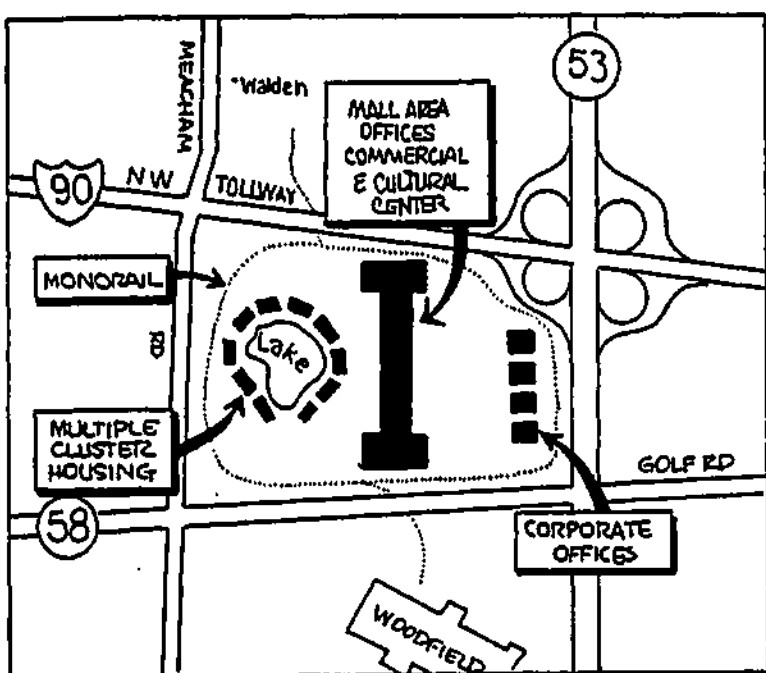

Sociologist Pierre DeVise considers the project "very feasible" for the Schaumburg area, which he considers "one of the hot suburban real estate markets."

BUT DEVISE, an assistant professor of urban sciences at the University of Illinois Chicago Circle Campus, said he "deplores" the type of development being planned there because "it is taking away from the center-city Chicago" hub of activity.

The Northeastern Illinois Plan Commission (NIPC) refused to comment on the plan "because of its purely local nature," a spokesman said, adding that NIPC is now "negotiating" with the village on population forecasts.

Village Pres. Robert O. Atcher said through a spokesman Thursday he is "not at liberty to discuss the project." The village has not received a petition for zoning or annexation of the property now in unincorporated Schaumburg Township, he added. The spokesman refused to comment on whether a petition is expected though sources close to the developers anticipate an early August meeting to announce plans.

Household benefit sale July 21

Mount Prospectors Betty Olsen and Doris Stech, active supporters of the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation, have exciting news for those who are interested in buying household items.

Many pieces that will be shown at the Merchant's Household Convention at McCormick Place next week are being donated to the Foundation. They will then be sold at a one-day benefit sale on July 21 at the Prudential Building Auditorium.

Such things as sofas, hide-a-beds, dining room sets, dinette sets, lawn furniture, dishes, glassware, and all sorts of appliances like toasters, lamps, oven broilers, fondue sets will be available.

"Since the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation is investing no money to purchase the items," said Betty Olsen, "they will be sold at very low prices. People can have an extravagant, wild buying spree and still be money-smart."

The sale is from 10 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. Sunday, July 21, in the building at 130 E. Randolph, Chicago. There's parking across the street.

Proceeds go to the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation.

She's visiting a friend who's there working on film production and direction. Barb expects to use Poland as a base from which to do a fair amount of European travel in the next couple of months.

Barb is a recent graduate of Roosevelt University where she majored in anthropology. Her father is Roland C. Becker, a park commissioner.

Friends of the Beckers will be interested in knowing that another daughter, Janice, is living in St. Paul, attending the University of Minnesota where she has received a grant to work on her Masters Degree in biochemistry.

The third Becker daughter, Marilyn, is married and living in Glenview.

THE PROSPECT Heights Improvement Assn. has scheduled an Art Fair and is encouraging artists, sculptors and craftsmen to participate. The event will be held on Sept. 22 at Elm and Camp McDonald Road. Those who are interested in displaying their wares are invited to contact Pat Kerwin at 537-0203 or Joan Masloske at 259-2577. Registration forms and booth assignments will be sent upon request.

Anyone in this area who is interested in going along with her to provide companionship for the men there should call 255-9392 (evenings).

Park board wrapup

Attendance record set at golf course

Last Friday, the day after the Fourth of July, was the busiest day ever at the Mount Prospect Country Club.

Some 464 golfers took advantage of the long weekend to tee off, reported Mount Prospect Park District Director Thomas W. Cooper. The record tops the previous high of about 400 golfers in a single day. Receipts on Friday exceeded $1,200.

In the month of June, some $16,592 was collected in daily golf fees, despite 18 rainy days. Last June, $17,631 was raised. Total receipts for 1974, including season passes, are $104,591. Last year at this time, $96,017 had been collected.

Fish appear in retention lake

An assortment of fish has turned up in the park district's retention lake at Clearwater Park. The state conservation department found some 43 goldfish, 3 bullhead and 18 mud minnows in the 3½-acre manmade lake. Where did they come from? "Eggs, I guess," surmised Cooper. The prevailing theory is that a couple of fish wandered over from the pond at the nearby St. Johns Apartments, 1500 Busse Rd., then proceeded to reproduce.

The park district plans to poison the lake next month to get rid of the fish, then stock it with bluegill and bass for fishing.

Heat detectors to be studied

The park board Monday night decided to study the feasibility of installing heat detectors in the washrooms at the Lions Park Recreation Center as a result of a small fire in a washroom there July 1. No one was injured in the fire, although the building was evacuated as a precaution.

The building currently has heat detectors in the hallways, but Park Comr. William Selep noted that most fires deliberately set by vandals take place in washrooms. Two board members suggested that instructors of classes be informed of exit procedures in case of fire.

No parking on grass urged

Park Comr. Elmer Blasco urged that cars be prohibited from parking on the grass during the annual Village Fair at Lions Park around the Fourth of July. He said the lawn already takes a beating with rides and individuals, and cars should be banned.

Asked about the numerous "ground skimmers" during the fireworks display on the Fourth, Cooper said it "happens in every show." He blamed it on "a little bit of sloppy handling and a little bit of moisture."

Tiles to prevent flooding

Lions Club names best in July 4 parade

Eight trophies were awarded by the Prospect Heights Lions Club after its Fourth of July parade, including an award for the best-decorated bicycle to J. Bingham.

The other winners were the Prospect Heights Park District Pacers Baton Corps, the Olive Street Gang and the Prospect Heights Park District Swim Team for floats. The best decorated vehicles among the Little League teams were the Cardinals, Indians, Greyhounds and Pirates.

More than 200 vehicles participated in the parade.

Attending Camp Mikquano

Christian Winn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Winn, 1430 N. Bridgeport Dr., Mount Prospect, is attending Camp Mikquano, Nelsonville, Wis.

Old Town may face lawsuit if MSD rules are not met

The Metropolitan Sanitary District has threatened to sue the Prospect Heights Old Town Sanitary District for failure to comply with sewer-inspection requirements.

The MSD Board of Trustees voted Thursday to give the local sanitary district until July 22 to inspect sewer connections within its boundaries.

At about the same time Thursday, the OTSD had a pretrial hearing on its suit against the MSD. The OTSD suit asks the court to tell the district "what its duties are," said Richard Schulz, OTSD superintendent. "Our suit is basically about sewer connections within the boundaries of our district."

THE OTSD SUIT was prompted, in part, by the MSD requirements that municipalities and local sanitary districts inspect sanitary sewers for illegal infiltration of stormwater.

The requirements, which went into effect Jan. 1, 1973, call for inspections of downspouts, roof drains, damaged manholes, sewers crossing creeks and ditches and illegal connections of sump pumps and storm sewers to sanitary sewers.

If the OTSD fails to meet the MSD deadline, the MSD attorney is to seek a court order to force compliance with the inspection requirements. The MSD also would seek fines of between $100 and $1,000 per day for each day past the deadline that the OTSD violates the MSD inspection requirements.

SCHULZ SAID THE OTSD has "a continuous program of sewer evaluation" and has had it since before the MSD ordinance was enacted. He said the district has failed to file the required reports, however, because of its own suit against the MSD, which was filed early this year.

MSD Chief Engineer Forrest C. Neil Thursday said the OTSD had offered no defense at a hearing June 20 and had refused to supply atlases of the Prospect Heights district to the MSD.

"We are very hopeful of working with the MSD on this," Schulz said. In the OTSD suit, the judge set aside a 60-day period for the OTSD and MSD to work out an agreement.

For animals, bikes and prisoners

Police to buy two wagons

The Mount Prospect Police Department plans to buy two station wagons for use in animal control, transportation of bicycles and prisoners.

Sealed bids for the two vehicles will be received until Aug. 1 by the police department. Chief Ralph J. Doney of the police department said two patrol cars with high mileage will be traded in when the two station wagons are purchased.

With two station wagons, the police will be able to station one of the vehicles on each side of the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks.

The station wagons will be used for many purposes for which the department's van is currently used. Doney said the van, beginning this fall, will almost exclusively be used for the Officer Friendly program. Equipment used in the Officer Friendly school liaison program will be stored in the vehicle and the van will have "Officer Friendly" painted on its sides.

Doney also said the ordering of only two vehicles at this time is part of a new procedure for the police department. In the past, all new vehicles have been ordered at the same time. Doney said vehicles now will be ordered twice a year.

"We will not be burdened by changing all the squad cars at the same time," he said. The new cars will be in service faster, he said.

Sgt. Hallihan to head investigative unit

Sgt. Patrick Hallihan has been appointed to head the investigative division of the Mount Prospect Police Department.

The appointment is effective this week. Det. Richard Pascoe, who has served as interim department head, will continue to be second in command. Hallihan replaces Ralph J. Doney, who was named police chief in May.

In a second appointment Patrolman Robert Barone is the police department's new liaison officer and will be in charge of publicity, press and community relations.

Doney also announced this week that two village policemen have been accepted for schooling at Northwestern University's Traffic Institute in Evanston.

Patrolman Theodore Gorski will take a course in "Supervision of Police Personnel" and Patrolman Roland Lischak will take a course in "Scene Accident Investigating." The three-week courses start Sept. 9.

Chicago woman's purse stolen here

A visitor to Mount Prospect left her purse Wednesday evening on a ground-level patio at 1103 Hunt Club Rd.

The purse was then stolen while the woman, Jessie A. Watson of Chicago, was inside the apartment. The purse contained a watch, a pair of eyeglasses and about $50 cash.

Prospectus sponsors open house Sunday

Prospectus, the Mount Prospect social services bureau, will sponsor an open house from noon to 5 p.m. Sunday at its office, 110 E. Northwest Hwy.

Prospectus recently received a $2,000 grant from Wheeling Township as part of the township's federal revenue-sharing funds.

Two-church summer school

St. Mark and St. Paul Lutheran churches in Mount Prospect will combine forces this summer for a vacation church school.

The school, with a "Bibletimes" theme, will feature a marketplace where youngsters will hear bible stories and work on projects relating to biblical times.

The classes are open to children 3 years old (who have attended Sunday School the past year) through sixth grade. Sessions will meet from 9 to 11:30 a.m. July 22 to Aug. 2 at St. Mark Lutheran Church, 200 S. Wille St. Registration is available both at St. Mark and at St. Paul Lutheran Church, 100 S. School St., at $2.50 per child.

Student pledges sorority

Paula Wegner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Wegner, 601 N. Forest, Mount Prospect, has pledged Delta Delta Delta social sorority at the University of Wisconsin, Madison.

Teichert hearing liquor-license offense cases

Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Teichert is hearing testimony on cases involving liquor licenses at two village establishments.

Teichert, who doubles as the village's liquor commissioner, must determine whether laws were violated by the Old Orchard Country Club, 700 W. Rand Rd., and the Walgreen Co. in the Mount Prospect Plaza, in unrelated cases involving minors.

At Old Orchard, two teen-agers reportedly were served Cold Duck without having been asked to show identification proving their age.

In the Walgreen's case, two underage youths found with beer in the parking lot at the Plaza said they purchased it at Walgreen's, but have been unable to recognize a clerk or produce a sales receipt.

Teichert heard some testimony this week, then continued both cases to next Wednesday. As liquor commissioner, he is authorized to levy fines or suspend or revoke liquor licenses.

Strike's a plague for cement worker's family

by BETTY LEE

Maria Tamayo was wondering what to make for dinner as she sat in her living room. She was attempting to soothe her crying two-year-old.

Across the room her husband, Cirilo, was looking at the afternoon paper for the want ads. Until several weeks ago he was preparing roads for black-topping and concrete, but because of the cement truck drivers' strike, he was laid off. He has been looking for work ever since. Like thousands of others in the Chicago area, he and his family are affected by the strike, now in its sixth week.

"He's been out all morning," said Mrs. Tamayo. "It hurts when they strike and you have kids to support. When they're small they don't know what's going on."

The lifestyle of the Tamayo family changed considerably since the start of the strike.

BECAUSE OF THE strike, the Tamayos had to delve into their savings which was the money they were to use this winter when construction season is over.

"Savings? What savings," said Tamayo. "It's just dollars and nickels now."

Their finances also were strained when they had to make a sudden move two weeks ago from their rented home in Arlington Heights. Their landlord wanted them to vacate in seven days.

"I had such headaches," Mrs. Tamayo said. "We had to move so fast that we left furniture and things in the house. We need to buy another sofa and a bed, but everything is so expensive."

WITH THEIR BELONGINGS stuffed into their car, the Tamayos and their four children moved into Rand Grove Village in Palatine Township. The move meant an increase in rent — from $80 to $215 a month, even though the housing is federally subsidized.

"We like it here and it will be better for the kids," Mrs. Tamayo said. "I used to be so afraid that one of my kids would get hit by a car when we lived at the other place."

The Tamayos previously lived near the intersection of Arlington Heights and Golf roads, one of the busiest intersections in the village.

The strike also meant cutting down on food and clothing. "Even the basics — milk, meat and eggs, are expensive," she said.

She began making her own bread and snacks for the family instead of going to the bakery. Meals contain less meat now.

THREE OF HER four children will be attending school this fall, which will require new clothes, shoes and books.

Her husband's unemployment compensation is sometimes bolstered with Maria Tamayo's occasional sewing project. Whenever she can, Mrs. Tamayo sews to help the family finances. The Tamayos' eldest daughter, Mary, works in a factory to help out.

"As soon as I make money sewing dresses, I spend the money on food or whatever we need," she said. "And that's when I pay all the bills."

Mrs. Tamayo wants to go back to work, but because of physical problems, she stays at home. "I want to work so I can help him," she said as she glanced at her husband.

Two of her children run in and out of the apartment, playing games with each other. "Sure they know about the strike," said Mrs. Tamayo. "They know it's going to be hard not getting the things they want. But they'll learn."

Cement truck drivers have been on strike in Northern Illinois since mid-May, primarily because of a pay-hike disagreement in salary negotiations with the Northern Illinois Ready Mix and Materials Assn.

Talks broke off between the truck driver's union and management when negotiators turned down an offer of a $1.65-per-hour increase in benefits over three years. Drivers asked for a $1.50 per hour raise over three years. Also at issue was the possible inclusion of a cost-of-living escalator clause in the new pact.

Three-thousand members and affiliates of Local 786 of the Building Material, Lumber, Box Shaving, Roofing and Insulating, Chaffeurs, Teamsters, Warehousemen and Helpers Union have led the strike.

Construction has been tied up throughout Northern Illinois because of the walkout. Negotiations were resumed recently.

Downtown Schaumburg will be carved during the next 20 years across the sprawling Union Oil Co. property.

With monorail

18-story Hyatt Regency Hotel planned for Schaumburg

by PAT GERLACH

An 18-story Hyatt Regency Hotel, high-rise commercial and residential buildings, all connected by monorail, are planned for development on the 153-acre Union Oil property in Schaumburg.

Developers are suggesting a proposed cultural center be located in an I-shaped mall area in the center of the complex rather than on the 40-acre Schaumburg Road civic-cultural center complex.

The design concept is reportedly the brainchild of Marshall Bennett of Bennett and Kahnweiler. His partners in the project include Jack N. Pritzker, a Chicago attorney and financier, Union Oil Co. and possibly the Village of Schaumburg.

Informal meetings to discuss preliminary plans have been held with village officials over the past 18 months, according to Trustee Herbert J. Aigner.

A STRIP AT THE eastern edge of the property, along I-90, is being reserved for prime commercial space which might be utilized as midwest corporate headquarters for several major U.S. firms, Aigner said.

The Hyatt Regency Hotel would be at one end of the mall area and contain the cultural center and commercial space. The hotel chain is owned by the Pritzker family.

Aigner and Trustee Ray G. McArthur confirmed that a multi-family high-rise cluster development is planned at the west edge of the development.

The existing Union Oil Co. building is included in the total site and demolition of the structure is possible after 15 years.

SOURCES SAY that Bennett has asked the village to:

- Build all streets and install utilities
- Construct a pedestrian overpass at Golf Road
- Construct a bridge or underpass at I-90 near Golf Road
- Build a secondary access road from Meacham to Roselle road midway between the tollroad and Golf Road

- Design and construct a monorail
- Provide water reservoirs, wells, and sewers and waive all tap-on fees.

Bennett, who is vacationing in Sun Valley, Idaho, could not be reached for comment.

THE PROJECT, to be completed over the next 20 years, is being designed by James DeStefano, of Skidmore, Skidmore, Owings and Merrill, Chicago architects. Real Estate Research, a Chicago consulting firm, has been researching a market for the complex for several years, sources say.

Robert Archie, a spokesman for Union Oil, confirmed his company's involvement in the project, but said he has little information on the plan. Archie said a $300,000 price tag on the project "appears grossly exaggerated" unless major revisions have taken place since he saw the design concept.

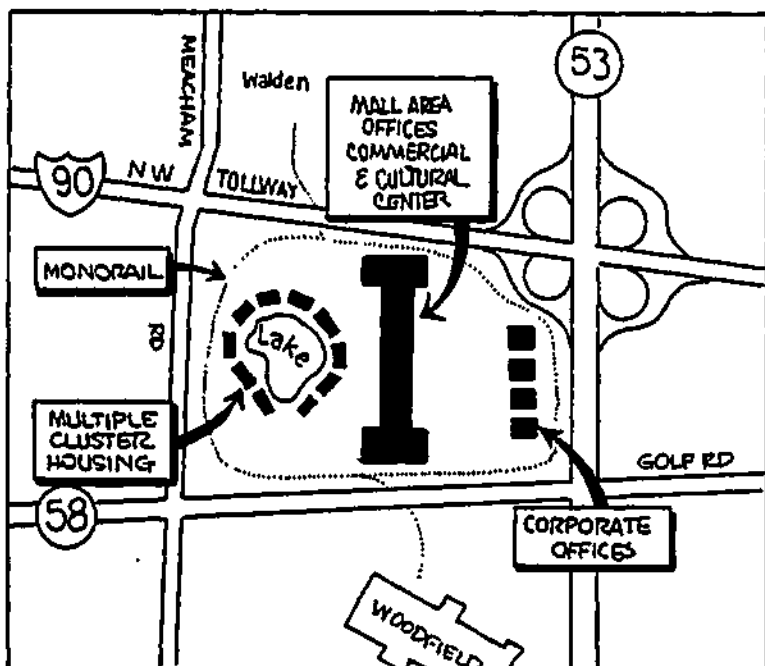

Sociologist Pierre DeVise considers the project "very feasible" for the Schaumburg area, which he considers "one of the hot suburban real estate markets."

BUT DEVISE, an assistant professor of urban sciences at the University of Illinois Chicago Circle Campus, said he "deplores" the type of development being planned there because "it is taking away from the center-city Chicago" hub of activity.

The Northeastern Illinois Plan Commission (NIPC) refused to comment on the plan "because of its purely local nature," a spokesman said, adding that NIPC is now "negotiating" with the village on population forecasts.

Village Pres. Robert O. Atcher said through a spokesman Thursday he is "not at liberty to discuss the project." The village has not received a petition for zoning or annexation of the property now in unincorporated Schaumburg Township, he added. The spokesman refused to comment on whether a petition is expected though sources close to the developers anticipate an early August meeting to announce plans.

Long hours, lengthy work week, salary risks

You can bet on it—race track clerk's life not easy

by KURT BAER

Lewis Spidalette stood at the betting window on the second floor grandstand at Arlington Park Race Track and talked about his job.

"Listen. This is our livelihood, our profession. At times it seems inhuman, and we have more broken homes than almost anybody. But nobody makes us do it. It's just our livelihood, our profession."

Spidalette works 12 hours a day, six days a week, as a mutual clerk at Chicago area race tracks. Like many of his co-workers who collect the money and hand betters the mutual tickets, he holds a job back of the betting windows at two different tracks each day.

Right now he spends his days at Arlington Park and his nights at Sportsman's Park in Cicero, some 50 miles away from his home in McHenry.

He knows that when he leaves his house at 11 a.m. each day he won't return until 1 a.m. the following morning.

THIS WEEK, mutual clerks protested delayed starting times on the nine-race program at Arlington Park.

On Tuesday, the last race was run at 6:12 p.m., more than a half hour later than usual.

Spidalette was due at Sportsman's Park that night at 6:45 p.m., 7 p.m. at the very latest. With a 6 p.m. post at Arlington, he can't make it.

"As long as the last race is off by 5:30, we can make it," says Joseph F. Nuccio, another ticket seller. "Sometimes it means gobbling your dinner, but the other way there's no dinner at all."

Ken Bell has spent the last 21 years working race track betting windows, both here and in New York. At age 65, he'll retire next year with a full pension.

"DRIVING BETWEEN tracks at 70 m.p.h., we take a chance on getting hurt, or now, with the 55-m.p.h. limit, getting a ticket," he says.

Accord reached on final time

Arlington Park Race Track officials and the Electrical Workers Union that represents the track's pari-mutuel clerks have agreed that the last weekday race will be run no later than 5:40 p.m.

The time of the last Saturday race reportedly still is being negotiated.

Wednesday, pari-mutuel clerks showed up more than an hour late for work at Arlington Park to protest a lengthening of the daily racing program. The action delayed the start of Wednesday's first race by about 10 minutes.

Mutuel clerks were unhappy about the later racing times because they said it made it impossible for them to report on time for a second job at Sportsman's Park.

Both union and race track officials Thursday declined comment on the dispute.

to serve the public. And to do that we have to be able to get to our job on time," says Bell.

Pari-mutuel tickets sellers make a minimum union wage of $43.75 per track, per day. A man working double shifts, six days a week can earn a gross income of $24,000.

Each seller and cashier is financially liable for his own mistakes while behind the betting counter.

The man who catches a "pigeon," that is a losing or counterfeit ticket, must make up the payoff price out of his own pocket. Similarly, the seller who punches out a wrong ticket may wind up buying that chance himself if no other buyer comes to the window before the closing bell.

Two mistakes at the $10 window, and a clerk has lost a half day's pay.

"IT'S EXPERIENCE that makes the difference. Some guys are already short by as much as $400," Spidalette says, pulling out his latest pay check to show

Dist. 23 wrapup

Travel allowance rate increases OK'd

The Prospect Heights Dist. 23 Board of Education Wednesday approved rate increases for travel allowances for district personnel, including hikes for mileage, meal and hotel and motel reimbursement.

The increases, which were approved by a unanimous vote of the four board members present for the meeting, include a 5-cent-per-mile increase for mileage to 15 cents per mile; a $5 per-day increase for meals to $15 per day, and a $10 increase per day for hotel expenses to $25 per day.

The increases for mileage and meals were approved as recommended by the administration. However, the board voted to increase the hike in hotel expenses from that proposed by the administration.

The recommendation had been for a $2.50-per-day hike from $15 per day to $17.50 per day. Board members agreed that a more reasonable increase would be $10, making the allowance $25 per day.

Evaluation guideline revised

The board approved a revised guideline for evaluating teachers. Revisions include the incorporation of definitions outlining the purpose and meaning of steps in the process, a revised checklist and rating system, and redefined deadlines for completing steps in the evaluation process.

The new guideline was developed by a committee composed of teacher representatives and Assistant Supt. Tom Rich.

$300 contribution approved

A $300 contribution to the Volunteer Service Bureau of Northwest Cook County was approved by the board.

The bureau provides thousands of man-hours of volunteer service to the district. "Without these volunteers, it would be impossible for us to run the district. We can't set a price on what they do. They're invaluable," Supt. Edward Grodzky told the board.

The money appropriated for the bureau is a contribution used to help the organization meet its operating expenses. Volunteers who come to the district are not paid but they receive space to work in and are provided district stationery.

During the past year the volunteers provided more than 2,600 hours of unpaid service at MacArthur Junior High School alone. The bureau also helps arrange for guest speakers and visitors to come to the schools.

The district's contribution to the bureau represented a $100 increase over last year's donation.

Stull to head path study

Board member John Stull was appointed chairman of an ad hoc committee to look into the possibility of developing gravel paths along Schoenbeck Road and Camp McDonald Road.

Stull plans to seek citizen help in approaching residents along both streets to get their views on having a gravel path run along their property.

A committee will also review a request from Ritzenthaler Bus Co. that an additional $480 be paid to the firm for bus services. The increase reflects higher costs for fuel, which has increased in price.

Dist. 23 is the second year of a three-year contract with the company and is not obligated to pay the increase. Business Mgr. James Hendren said the company has indicated when bidding for a new contract comes up next year, prices will reflect the higher costs.

The matter was referred to the finance committee for study.

Public backing bicycle regulation enforcement

The step-up in enforcement of traffic regulations for bicyclists is receiving public support, according to the Arlington Heights Police Department.

Capt. Maurice English said the department has received more than 10 telephone calls in the last week from residents expressing support for the program.

Police are continuing a policy instituted last year of issuing tickets to bicyclists who commit flagrant and potentially dangerous traffic violations. The citations are written on a parking ticket form and carry a $5 fine, which can be contested in court. About 100 have been written this year.

"The people who call say they are happy this is being done. For the most part, the callers are motorists who see cyclists creating hazards," English said.

ENGLISH SAID HE had received no calls from parents complaining that their child was being harassed.

Sgt. J. L. Plaisted of the traffic division, said his men, for the most part, agree with the program. "They tell me they hate to stop little kids, but they realize it's all meant to do some good," he said.

Plaisted said he had gotten just one call from a parent. "A boy's father called. He said he agreed with the ticket but thought that the fine was high."

Dramatics class offered for children

Creative dramas for children will be offered by the Arlington Heights Park District during its second session beginning July 29.

Classes will be held at Pioneer Park, 300 S. Fernandez, on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays for four weeks. Classes for 5 and 8 year olds will meet from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. Children 7 to 9 years old will meet from 11 a.m. to noon.

The instruction will cover pantomime, improvisation and story telling with an emphasis on self-expression and imagination.

The fee is $15. For more information call Pioneer Park, 394-4849, Monday through Friday from 1 to 5 p.m.

'UPPETEER HANS SCHMIDT performed "Punch and Judy" sketches before an audience of more than 50 persons Thursday at the Arlington Heights Memorial Library. Schmidt performed and explained his craft.

To make teachers aware of stereotyping

Schools to conduct sex-role seminars

by JILL BETTNER

Wheeling-Grange School Dist. 21 is planning a series of workshops next year to increase teacher awareness of sex-role stereotyping in the classroom.

The workshops will be conducted by Dist. 21 personnel under the direction of Marjorie Beu, assistant superintendent for instruction.

Last month, a local parent group asked the school board to provide in-service training for teachers on sex role stereotyping and offered to assist in running the sessions.

The Citizens Task Force on Education, headed by Judy Brady-Keller and Carol Wrabl of Arlington Heights, submitted a proposed outline for a teacher training program to the school board.

MISS BEU SAID, however, that the decision was made that Dist. 21 staff members were better qualified to design and implement instruction for teachers. The curriculum director said the workshops are not being set up specifically in response to the task force request.

"We're doing this in response to a need that we all recognize," she said, adding that attempting to make teachers more aware of sex role stereotyping and sexual bias is part of the district's emphasis on "affective education."

Affective education deals with heightening both teacher and student emotional sensitivity.

"As we see affective education in our district, our main goal is to help kids develop a positive attitude about themselves rather than a self-concept that would hinder learning," Miss Beu said. "This is just one more phase of developing a healthy self-concept."

Materials on sex-role stereotyping and sexual bias published by the National Education Assn. are to be used in the workshops scheduled for early next fall.

Miss Beu said the sessions will be conducted individually for staff at each of the 17 schools in the district so that the context of each workshop can be geared to meet the needs of particular building programs. She added that small group meetings will allow teachers to interact and discuss their feelings more freely than they might in a large group.

ONE OF THE recommendations previously made by the task force was that teachers be provided with supplementary materials to use along with regular textbooks that portray men and women in traditional sex roles. The supplementary materials would give teachers ideas for changing stories by substituting a woman in the role of a doctor, for example, instead of a man.

Miss Beu said she could see adding books on sexual bias to the professional libraries in local schools, but said she feels asking teachers to use supplementary classroom materials as suggested by the task force isn't necessary.

"I think if we can give teachers a good exposure to what sex role stereotyping really is, they can handle it on their own without giving them a specific prescription for situations in the classroom," she said.

98th birthday

Mrs. Emma Wiese of 13 N. Pine in Arlington Heights will celebrate her 98th birthday Monday.

She was born in 1876 and has resided in Arlington Heights since 1915, living in the house her husband built on Pine Ave.

Registration open for Sox-Tigers game

Signups are being taken for a family evening outing July 15 sponsored by the Arlington Heights Park District, to see the White Sox take on the Detroit Tigers.

The fee is $4.50 per person and includes box seats and bus transportation. The buses will leave Olympic Park at 6 p.m.

The trip is limited to 60 ticket holders. Reservations are now being taken at Frontier, Camelot, Recreation, Pioneer, Olympic and Forest View parks. All children must be accompanied by a parent.

Vacation school signup set

Registration is being taken for vacation church school at the First United Methodist Church, 1903 E. Euclid, Arlington Heights.

Sessions will begin July 22 from 9:15 to 11:30 a.m. Monday through Friday until Aug. 2. Classes are open to all children who will be 4 years old by Dec. 1, through those who will have completed sixth grade.

All classes will be limited to 25 persons. Church members will be given preference in the preschool classes only.

The two weeks of classes will include outdoor activities, arts and craft projects, refreshments and Bible studies.

The fee is $3 per child or $6 per family. For further information, call the church office at CL 5-8112 before 1 p.m. Monday through Friday.

OUR LEGACY FROM THE MEDICINE MAN

Who would ever think, on entering today's streamlined pharmacy, that many of the medicines available had their early beginnings with the medicine man. Of course, they have undergone many changes and refinements. In early days Indians chewed on roots (or leaves) of certain plants in order to extract a "magic substance." This later evolved to a "more sophisticated" technique of cooking the roots for hours and then boiling down the resultant liquid.

Thousands of years have passed since these earliest processes were begun. Our contemporary drugs may bear little resemblance to their crude ancestors, but many of the basic chemical substances do date back to the medicine man.

Long hours, low pay for race track clerks

that the price of a seller's "sins" show up as one more computerized deduction. So far, he has lost only $24 this year. His experience on the job dates back to 1962.

Two tracks is a rough schedule to keep the men say, but they do it voluntarily. Of the estimated 135 sellers and 80 cashiers on the job at Arlington Park Thursday afternoon, the majority also worked that night at Sportsman's.

"The only time I see my wife she's in pajamas," says Bell. "She's in her nightgown when I leave in the morning, and at night when I get home," says Bell.

"With the high price of living, what else can we do?" asks Nucio.

Parimutuel clerks have not had a contract wage increase for three years, and like almost everyone else, these men say they are not keeping pace with the cost of living.

WAGES ARE BETTER at New York and California race tracks, and so are the afternoon post times, they say.

At Aqueduct race track in New York the first race goes off at 1:30 p.m., at Hollywood Park in California, post time is 12:45 p.m.

Some mutuel clerks say an earlier post time would work well at Arlington Park, not just for themselves, but for the racing fan as well.

"This is a summer race track and people want to get in early so that they can get home and cleaned up before dinner," says one seller.

"You could also count on people coming out during their lunch hour to bet the (daily) double," says another.

Spidaletto, Bell, Nucio and the other mutuel clerks say they are most concerned about serving the racing public.

"There is only one thing we can give 'em at the race track, and that's service," says Bell.

Lines at the sellers windows and even longer back ups at the cashier's counter do not please the fan or the clerks.
